101,000 More Jobless

Times News Services

OTTAWA - The number of unemployed in Canada has swelled by 101,000 since last March, Statistics Canada reported today.

In March alone, another 38,000 were added to the jobless rolls for an actual total of 1,045,000, sending the unemployment rate, adjusted for seasonal changes, to 8.6 per cent of the work force. The figure for February was 8.3 per cent.

In B.C. unemployment climbed to 8.5 per cent of the work force in March, up from 8.4 per cent in February. There were 108,000 unemployed in a work force of 1,191,000 compared with 106,000 out of work a year ago in a work force of 1,133,000.

The actual Canadian unemployment rate last month was 9.7 per cent, an increase from 9.5 per cent in February.

There were 10,726,000 in the work force in March and 9,680,000 had jobs. In February, the work force was 10,584,000 and 9,577,000 were employed.

Seasonally-adjusted unemployment rates were up in seven provinces. The rate declined from February levels in only two provinces and was unchanged in March for Manitoba.

With one of the largest provincial work forces, Quebec's unemployment rate was up to 11.5 per cent in March from 10.9 per cent in February. This left an actual total of 351,000 out of work, up from 342,000 in February and the highest for any province.

In Newfoundland, the jobless rate jumped to 16.5 per cent last month from 15.8 per cent in February, still the highest rate.

Prince Edward Island's unemployment rate was up to 10.5 per cent in March from 8.2 per cent a month earlier, and the rate rose for Nova Scotia to 11.2 per cent from 10.3 per cent.

Only New Brunswick among the Atlantic provinces had a lower jobless rate last month than in February, falling slightly to 13.3 per cent from 13.4 per cent.

Ontario's unemployment rate jumped to 7.4 per cent in March from seven per cent in February. Thre were 345,000 unemployed in Ontario, second only to Quebec.

Among the Western provinces, Manitoba's unemployment rate held steady at 6.5 per cent, the same as in February.

Alberta had a decline in its unemployment rate last month, to 4.5 per cent from 4.7 per cent in February.

But the rate rose in Saskatchewan to 5.7 per cent in March from 5.1 per cent in the previous month.

Winter Lands Late Blow

LONDON (AP) — Winter weather surprised Britain and France today three weeks after the official arrival of spring.

British authorities reported at least three weather-related deaths, including two men killed when an army helicopter crashed in Northern Ireland.

In Scotland, blizzards grounded a Royal Air Force helicopter assigned to fly Robert Anderson, 46, from Aberdeen to Glasgow for emergency heart surgery. Three times the craft tried to make the trip and during the delay Anderson suffered a heart attack and died.

Snow fell over Scotland and 30 counties in England and Wales. In France, more than a foot of snow fell in parts of Normandy.

A Dull Budget With No Frills

Highlights

Retail sales taxes to be reduced shortly in most regions for six or nine months by arrangement with the provinces.

About $50 million a year in tax concessions offered to industry to encourage research and development.

Tax benefits for oil industry increased to encourage development of the Alberta oil sands and recovery of heavy oil deposits in the west.

Railways offered tax allowances to speed modernization.

Rules governing disposition of retirement savings plans reformed to make investment more flexible.

Tariff reductions on some consumer-item imports extended for a year beyond scheduled June 30 expiry, but levies increased on some chemicals, tires and goods from Britain and Ireland.

Projected federal deficit increased by 35 per cent to $11.5 billion on total outlays of $52.1 billion and income of $40.6 billion, excluding transactions in support of the dollar.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A business-like budget with no frills and little excitement was brought down by Finance Minister Jean Chretien Monday.

Retail sales taxes will be reduced in most provinces under a deal with provincial governments, but there were no cuts in personal income taxes as many had expected in what is considered to be a federal pre-election budget.

While there were some pockets of discontent, most sections of the Canadian business community were quick to applaud Chretien's budget.

"We happily endorse the fiscal co-operation of the provincial and federal governments which has made possible the sales tax cuts," the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said in a statement.

Sam Hughes, executive director of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said Chretien did "fundamentally the right things."

He said the arrangement with the provinces to cut retail sales taxes will help reduce regional disparity and encourage demand at the consumer level, "where it has to happen."

Hughes said Chretien acted responsibly in not reducing personal income tax because it would have thrown the government's cash flow into disarray.

"He showed reasonable restraint in not doing that in what could be an election year."

The finance minister also proposed more tax benefits for oil companies, railways and corporations that undertake more research and development in Canada.

Several provinces announced short-term reductions of two or three percentage points in over-the-counter sales taxes will take effect immediately. B.C. said its two-point cut would continue indefinitely.

Chretien told the Commons that he refused to make "irresponsible promises" in

Record $11B Deficit Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal spending deficit will total a record $11.5 billion this year, up more than 35 per cent from $8.5 billion last year and nearly double the $5.4 billion shortfall in 1976-77.

To cover the cash shortage, which is the difference between total projected outlays and income, the government will be forced to turn again to private money markets and to sell more Canada Savings Bonds.

The announcement of the deficit comes after the recent release of government figures showing the total national debt now standing at more than $67 billion.

Interest alone on the debt this year will cost taxpayers $6.5 billion, about 13 cents of every tax dollar.

DOLLAR SAGS

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar continued to flounder at its lowest level in 45 years on New York money markets today as foreign exchange dealers expressed dismay that Finance Minister Jean Chretien's budget contained little in the way of support for the sagging currency.

In opening trading on money markets, the dollar sank as low as 87.30 U.S. cents—down from Monday's close of 87.54 U.S. cents. By 11:30 a.m. EST, profit-taking and some commercial demand for Canadian dollars pushed the currency up to the 87.50 U.S. cents level.

Fox Plans To Stay

MONTREAL (CP) — Former federal solicitor-general Francis Fox said Monday he has decided to stay in politics and will seek the Liberal nomination in the new riding of Blainville-Deux Montagnes.

Fox told local Liberal organizers and reporters at a news conference in nearby Ste. Therese that he would welcome an offer to rejoin the cabinet if one is made.

He said his decision to seek the April 19 nomination was made following more than a month of meetings with party organizers. The new riding includes the more populous part of Fox's old riding of Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes.

Hard To Rap B.C. Budget

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Opposition criticism of Monday's provincial budget was tempered by the fact most believe it's an election budget containing so many goodies it's hard to attack.

All lauded the drop in sales tax from seven to the five per cent level of two years ago, but said that people should remember it was the Social Credit government which boosted the tax 40 per cent shortly after taking office.

NDP finance critic Dave Stupich of Nanaimo and Liberal leader Gordon Gibson decried the continuing emphasis of the Socred administration on placing so much of the burden for school taxes on municipal taxpayers. The easing announced in the budget was not enough.

Stupich said the Socreds are doing this in spite of the recommendations in the McMath report on property assessments and the party's own campaign promises.

Tory leader Vic Stephens, noting that it was his first budget, told reporters at a press conference that if the budget isn't an election budget, then the government is certainly keeping its options open.

Stupich said the $76 million surplus from 1976-77 which the government plans to use for job creation programs didn't come from good fiscal practices as Wolfe claims in his speech.

The former finance minister said it came from selling the three B.C. ferries for $38 million and from cashing in special funds established during the NDP administration.

Gibson also said the surplus anticipated for this year didn't come from good fiscal policies — it came because the Americans are buying B.C. lumber for their housing boom and because the rising world-wide price of oil has led to more exploration in this province.

Gibson isn't so positive it is an election budget because he feels the strong economic trend will continue next year.

The two keys to the "generosity" this year are a surprise gift of almost 10 per cent more revenues from more federal funds for the province and because of increased sales in resource industry.

Gibson said the budget increase this year over last year is more than the 9.8 per cent mentioned in the budget speech if apples are compared to apples.

The increase is actually 11.7 per cent if this year's budget estimates are compared with last year's budget estimates — the only comparison that's fair, Gibson said.

Wolfe was using a revised 1977-78 budget to make the comparison, Gibson said.

Laser Gift Bared

OTTAWA (CP) — A Carleton University professor handed over to the Soviet Union a sophisticated laser device against the request of the RCMP's security service but has continued to receive grants from the National Research Council, Progressive Conservative MP Tom Cossitt said today.

Cossitt told the Commons the scientific device was delivered to Moscow against a specific request from the research council and the RCMP by Professor Johannes Koningstein, an Ottawa resident.

Cossitt unsuccessfully sought to move a motion urging that Prime Minister Trudeau explain whether it is government policy to reward through thousands of dollars in grants those who have freely given highly-developed scientific devices to the Soviet Union against government recommendations.

Cossitt said Koningstein received or has been awarded more than $120,000 in grants from the federally-funded council for research into utilizing lasers.

Eugenics Reborn

By Ted Howard and Jeremy Rifkin
Pacific News Service
(Third of nine parts)

"Some day we will realize that the prime duty, the inescapable duty of the good citizens of the right type is to leave his or her blood behind him in the world; and that we have no business to permit the perpetuation of citizens of the wrong type. I wish very much that the wrong people could be prevented entirely from breeding; and when the evil nature of these people is sufficiently flagrant, this should be done. Criminals should be sterilized and feebleminded persons forbidden to leave offspring behind them . . . the emphasis should be laid on getting desirable people to breed."

These remarkable words were issued by one of the great political leaders of American history, the 26th president of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt. They represented the "enlightened" view of millions of Americans caught up in an ideological movement that has virtually disappeared from the history books. The movement was called eugenics, and in a 30-year span (1900-1929) it captured the attention of leading U.S. reformers, academics, professionals and political leaders.

Believing that criminals were born and not made, the famed criminal anthropologist Cesare Lombroso claimed it was possible to draw a composite profile of these people liable to commit particular types of crime.

"Thieves," he declared, "were characterized by small restless eyes, thick eyebrows, a crooked nose, thin beard and a narrow receding forehead.

"Sex criminals had bright eyes, a cracked voice, blond hair and a delicate face.

"Murderers had cold, glassy eyes, long ears, dark hair and canine teeth."

The major tool in the eugenicists' campaign to weed out these biologically inferior stock was sterilization. As a result of a systematic and co-ordinated drive, tens of thousands of American citizens were involuntarily sterilized under various laws enacted by the individual states after the turn of the century.

Sterilization was seen as a cure for everything from crime to feebleminded.

Tax Dodging Scheme Bared

OTTAWA (CP) — The income tax department said Monday it has uncovered a widespread scheme of tax evasion involving the sale of false receipts and their use by taxpayers to support deduction claims for dependants living outside Canada.

In a press release the department said its examination of 1,400 selected tax returns resulted in assessing $900,000 in additional taxes, including $175,000 in fines.

Another 2,500 returns believed to contain false receipts now are being examined and the department believes an additional $1 million in taxes will be levied.

Charges have been laid in Toronto and Vancouver against three distributors of false receipts and against four taxpayers who used them to claim exemptions. Other charges are pending.

To back up claims for exemptions for non-resident dependants, many taxpayers used receipt copies of bank drafts showing money transfers to overseas dependants. The department investigation showed these drafts were not sent overseas but were cashed in Canada by the purchasers.

Other taxpayers sent money abroad claiming a tax deduction for dependants but used the money for other purposes.

Conviction of tax evasion can lead to fines and jail sentences in addition to civil penalties. The minimum fine is at least 25 per cent and may be as much as twice the tax sought to be avoided.

The department says those who have submitted false receipts with their income tax forms can avoid fines and possible prosecution by voluntarily disclosing this. Those doing so would only pay the taxes owing plus the interest due.

But such disclosures will be considered voluntary only if they are made prior to any contact initiated by the tax department and if the information given is complete.

Killings In Kidnap Plan, Jury Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — The killing of four Fraser Valley teen-agers last summer was part of a $2-million scheme to kidnap a member of one of four prominent Vancouver area families, a murder trial jury was told Monday.

The ransom plan is described in statements allegedly made to police by Walter Murray Madsen, accused of first-degree murder in the rifle slaying of three youths and a girl at a Fraser River recreation spot near Rosedale.

In one statement Crown witnesses said is in Madsen's handwriting, he says he shot the teen-agers to get the fast car or truck he needed for the kidnapping.

The families named in the statement are James Sinclair, former federal cabinet minister and grandfather to the three sons of Prime Minister Trudeau, J. V. Clyne, a retired forest company tycoon, C. W. Woodward of Woodward's department stores, or the Rogers, apparently referring to the founders of B.C. Sugar Refining Co. Ltd.

The statement was introduced as evidence by Cpl. Allan Ellard, Madsen's cousin and one of scores of RCMP officers active in the six-week investigation leading to Madsen's arrest at his home in Chilliwack last Aug. 30, six weeks after the killings.

Ellard said Madsen, 24, wrote the statement after a 30-minute, tape-recorded conversation with his brother, John Madsen, in Chilliwack shortly after midnight Aug. 31.

After the brothers' session, Walter wrote the statement on two sheets of foolscap, Ellard testified.

Madsen has pleaded not guilty to the slaying of Evert Den Hertog, 19, his brother Jan, 16, Bert Menger, 19, and Leola Guliker, 16, last July 18.

In the written statement, Madsen is alleged to have said that he drove to the island in his van and unloaded a 30.06 rifle, ammunition, a tent, sleeping bag, compass, canned food, extra clothes, gloves and "kidnap notes."

Then, the statement says, he concealed the outfit under bushes, drove back to his parents' home in Chilliwack a few miles away and returned on a bicycle, smoked and drank three bottles of beer.

"I loaded my rifle and waited . . . . What I wanted was a fast car or truck. I didn't want to leave any witnesses." I heard what sounded like a vehicle with a powerful engine.

"From my place in the bushes . . . I could hear occasional beer bottles being broken . . . hoots and hollers . . .

B.C. Sales Tax Cut Here to Stay - Wolfe

The sales tax reduction announced Monday for B.C. is here to stay, says Finance Minister Evan Wolfe.

Under a federal-provincial agreement, Ottawa will help offset the revenue losses due to the reduction from seven to five per cent for a six-month period.

"It was part of our economic strategy," Wolfe said, noting that Ottawa will provide between $115 and $120 million to offset the loss of the two percentage points worth $230 million a year.

Wolfe said he expects other provinces will pass legislation so that the program will expire in six months.

But he said there is no time limit on the B.C. program.

"We're just reducing taxes —period."

Wolfe said suggestions that there is a one-year limit on the B.C. reduction are "just a bunch of baloney."

"We had to make a commitment to the federal government to get the amount they wanted to inject in our economy but it is not our intention to lift the program when that commitment expires."

"It will result in increased sales during the summer when sales are usually up, but they will drop out of sight in October when the program expires."

The finance minister called the federal program a gimmick and said it will probably accomplish its purpose for an election, but "it won't help B.C.'s economy nearly to the extent it will help Ontario and Quebec."

"It will be popular, and we are happy to oblige in reducing the taxes here for the benefit of our citizens."

Premier Bill Bennett agreed today that the federal approach is a gimmick and said even if Ottawa hadn't moved in the area of the sales tax, B.C. would have done so on its own.

The premier described the federal approach as a "short-term thing that will simply lead to peaks and valleys in the economic situation."

He said the federal government, through its actions in heavy borrowing and trying to "buy voter's favors" has been left with only short-term, quick-stimulus situations.

Wolfe increased tobacco, cigarette and liquor taxes to offset part of the revenue loss and said the remainder will come from other sources.

He said the main beneficiaries of the Ottawa move will be the economies of Ontario and Quebec "when you consider the degree of imports which enter our economy . . . but it is fine to the extent it helps the people of B.C."

$7,000 PAVING SHARE

Sidney aldermen agreed Monday to include $7,000 in preliminary estimates toward repaving the SANSCHA parking lot, provided the organization itself helps pay.

The request for financing from Sidney and North Saanich Community Hall Association proposed a three-way split between the two municipalities and library board for an estimated $27,900 total cost.

Council replied that SANSCHA should contribute, making it a four-way cost-sharing project.

In other council business, a request through the provincial lands branch for increased moorage at Van Isle Marina was rejected.

Ald. Ross Martin said the proposal was to extend berthing, requiring an alteration in the provincial land-leasing agreement, and it was felt that further encroachment into the channel would create a hazardous situation for small craft.

Council also turned back a request from Sidney Chamber of Commerce for financing summer operation of the tourist bureau, divided three ways between Sidney, North Saanich and Central Saanich municipalities.

Aldermen asked for a reassessment of the split — $3,000, $2,000 and $1,000 in the above order — and to take into consideration senior government participation through such programs as student aid grants.

Realtor Challenges UVic to Call Bids

The chairman of the University of Victoria's board of governors today was challenged by realtor Eric Charman to go to tender for the sale of the Central Building at 620 Yates.

In addition, Charman informed Joseph Cunliffe that he has lodged a sealed envelope with the Royal Trust Company containing a bid considerably larger than the $600,000 which Victoria alderman Ron McKenzie has offered for the building.

UVic is the major owner of the building.

"I am quite sure that, in the circumstances, Ald. Ronald McKenzie would have no objection to the building proceeding to tender," Charman told Cunliffe.

"I confidently predict that in the event that he is the unsuccessful bidder, there will be sufficient difference in the price obtained and the price presently agreed to, to allow for reimbursement of his legal fees in this matter, which probably would approximate $1,500."

Charman reminded Cunliffe that Floyd Fairclough, the university's director of developments, assured him on Feb. 16 the sale would be put to tender and that his company had checked with Fairclough for the past three years on the possible sale of the building.

"I believe the university, which is sustained by the taxpayers, should be extremely careful and most prudent when dispensing of such a unique asset as the Central Building," Charman said.

"I am of the further opinion that, once the minority shareholders had agreed to a sale, that the university had in effect assumed the role of trustee of their interests as well as the interest of we the taxpayers."

Paintings Smeared

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Vandals smeared a colorless paste on two centuries-old paintings in Frankfurt's Staedel Museum and damaged them by causing the oil colors to run, police reported today.

It was the third attack on valuable art works in Europe in nine days.

Art experts are trying to determine whether the paintings, Joyful Company by 17th-century Dutch master Dirckhals, and a 15th-century triptych by an unknown Spanish artist, can be restored. A triptych is a painting with a central panel flanked by two side panels.

It is not know when the vandalism was done, but the paintings were discovered damaged at about 1 p.m., police reported.

SHIP SINKS

CANBERRA (AP) — An engine-room explosion set fire to the 9,500-ton Greek freighter Maira on Monday and the ship sank off the west coast of Australia, the marine operations headquarters reported. But all 20 crew members and passengers were rescued by the Norwegian freighter Team Augwi, which reported they were in good shape.

UN's Top Red in Hiding

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The highest-ranking Russian employee of the United Nations is in hiding after apparently defecting. An application to the United States for asylum is expected.

Arkady Shevchenko, the $76,000-a-year undersecretary-general for political and Security Council affairs, left his job six days ago because of "differences with his government," a UN statement said.

In Washington, the U.S. state department said it was approached by Ernest Gross, Shevchenko's U.S. lawyer, who indicated that the 47-year-old Russian would not return to the Soviet Union.

State department spokesman Tom Reston said Shevchenko did not ask for asylum. But he said Soviet officials requested a meeting with Shevchenko and that Gross, a former assistant state secretary and ex-delegate to the United Nations, arranged the meeting, a formality that often precedes granting of asylum.

Reston did not reveal the place or time of the meeting. Gross was reported in Washington Monday night, and there was speculation that Shevchenko was with him to meet with representatives of the Soviet embassy there.

An authoritative diplomatic source at the United Nations, who asked not to be identified, said Shevchenko was in the process of seeking asylum, the first UN employee ever to do so anywhere.

Meanwhile in Moscow, a woman who said she was the wife Shevchenko accused U.S. authorities today of a "crude provocation" and said her husband would never have wanted to stay in the United States.

The woman, who identified herself as Leongina Shevchenko, spoke by telephone with reporters phoning "Shevchenko" entries in the Moscow telephone directory.

She said she was the wife of the diplomat and had returned to Moscow from New York for fear the U.S. would seize her and other family members as well as her husband.

MPs to Debate Postal Strike Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — A special bill to ban a postal strike during a federal election campaign was introduced in the Commons Monday, prompting the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) to charge the government with provocation.

Debate on the legislation, introduced just days before a June election is widely expected to be announced, was to begin today.

Its introduction coincided with the opening of conciliation hearings into a long and bitter dispute between the Post Office and CUPW.

The Progressive Conservative opposition indicated it would not oppose the bill but New Democratic Party MPs planned to fight it.

Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the 23,000-member CUPW, issued a toughly-worded statement condemning the government for bargaining in bad faith and Prime Minister Trudeau for trying to use postal workers as a diversionary issue to take the heat off the Liberal party during the election.

He said: "This anti-strike legislation is intended as provocation so Mr. Trudeau can look to the electorate like he is tough. It's a trick designed to divert people's attention away from the real problems of unemployment and inflation that this government has brought upon this country."

CHEAPER FARES WANTED

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain will seek to extend cheap charter travel to Canadian routes in intergovernmental talks which begin here Wednesday, a trade department spokesman said today.

The spokesman said Britain also wants to transfer all air routes to Canada from London's main Heathrow Airport to Gatwick.

'Not Upstairs Downstairs'

LONDON (UPI) — The kitchen workers at Claridge's Hotel, the haunt of statesmen and the super-rich, have gone on strike against the posh Mayfair hostelry to protest the firing of an apprentice chef accused of putting too much salt in the ratatouille.

The fired scullery worker suggested Monday the reason he was sacked might lie elsewhere.

Trainee chef Richard Elvidge, 19, said the firing involved not only the salty ratatouille but having a row with the lady who made the hors d'ouvres.

Claridge's management put it simply: "failing to carry out his duties in a proper manner."

Elvidge insists the real reason he was fired was that he tried to unionize the kitchen staff at the five-star hotel.

When Elvidge was sacked last weekend, his union gave official backing to a strike and the trade union recruits, 60 kitchen staff and assorted chambermaids and waiters, walked out. It was the first strike in Claridge's 163-year history.

The hotel carried on as best it could.

Outwardly there were few signs of the crisis.

The liveried doorman exercised a guest's dog outside, oblivious of the pickets with banners proclaiming "This is not 'Upstairs Downstairs.' "

In the lounge, a string quartet played and black-coated senior waiters patrolled the restaurant. There was no shortage of the usual gourmet foods and sauces although some diners said waiters strongly urged them to stick to the dish of the day, lamb from the trolley.

Still it sounded better than life below stairs where the strikers complained the hotel feeds them fish and chips and inedible roast beef along with wages of around $85 a week in the hotel where the price of a room for the night starts at $72.

British Gov't Cuts Income Tax

LONDON (Reuter) — The government announced today a substantial stimulus to the British economy, including big personal income tax cuts, which it called its first contribution toward a common international effort to solve world economic problems.

Denis Healey , chancellor of the exchequer, said in presenting the annual budget — with better news than usual for the heavily-taxed British people — that it will stimulate the economy by £2.5 billion ($5.3 billion). Nearly all this figure was accounted for by cuts in income taxes.

Healey announced lower rates of income tax for lower-paid workers, aimed at enabling them to escape what politicians have called the "poverty trap" — a situation where it is more profitable to go on unemployment welfare than to work.

Healey said about four million people will be affected directly by this measure.

He also raised the ceiling of severe taxation for the better-paid.

Because of fears of renewed inflation, the chancellor left indirect taxes practically untouched, but he did announce an increase on high-tar cigarettes, effectively raising the price of strong cigarettes — about 15 per cent of the market — by about 12 per cent.

Small Business Budget

Budgets usually do little to lighten the gloom in the taxpayer's heart. He is resigned to ever-growing taxes and bemused by the magnitude of government spending. Imagine counting 4,280,000,000 one-dollar bills, the amount of British Columbia's 1978-79 budget.

Because it reverses the usual trend and cuts taxes instead of raising them, it will take a little getting used to. Two percentage points off the sales tax. Wow! That brings us back to where we were in 1975 when Social Credit outsed the New Democratic Party.

One of the first financial acts of the triumphant Premier Bill Bennett then was to hoist the tax from five to seven per cent. The additional revenue was needed, he explained, to pay for the excesses of the NDP during its three-year term.

Two and a half years of Socred administration presumably have stopped the rot, though his opponents will say that it took the premier that long to realize he had made a mistake. But memories are short and by turning back the clock he can pose convincingly as a benefactor, even though most of the cost of the sales tax cut will be picked up by the federal government.

The tax reduction will be popular throughout the province. It will stimulate business, which is what everyone wants. It is a step in the right direction and the results may even encourage the government to remove the sales tax altogether, or at least knock it back to two per cent.

While the tax cut will catch the headlines, there are numerous other items of interest in the budget, all of them aimed at a more buoyant economy. The principal beneficiaries will b the operators of small businesses, many of whom feel they have been betrayed by the party they helped to elect.

Since Social Credit's return to power the lot of the small businessman has been hard slogging through a jungle of red tape and tax forms. The sales tax added to his burden. Along with the sales tax cut, about 13,000 small firms will be relieved entirely of the corporation capital tax, an annual levy on a company of .1 per cent of its paid-up capital, by the raising of the exemption level to $500,000.

Finance MInister Evan Wolfe also promised yesterday that the provincial government will study ways of simplifying reporting procedures and removing some restrictive regulations, a process that has been started by Ottawa too.

The moves may be too late to save some small businesses but those which are still going concerns will applaud them, possibly adding: "About time."

Wolfe predicted that revenues during 1978-79 will balance expenditures, which will include more than $1 billion each on health and education. A surplus of $76 million from last year is earmarked for "job creation" programs in the province's main industries.

He is counting on $44 million in new revenue being raised by new taxes on tobacco products and alcohol. Cigarettes will go up by a whacking 12 cents a pack and liquor prices by about three per cent. Experience has shown, however, that consumption is unlikely to decline much, at least over the long haul. Successive tax increases on "beer and 'baccy" in the United Kingdom have not discouraged their use.

Cutting taxes is a sensible way to spur a sluggish economy, one which politicians have avoided too long. Taken in conjunction with Ottawa's moves last night, it may inspire a cautious optimism for our future. It will also provoke speculation that Pierre Trudeau is not the only politician planning an election before the year is out.

Behind the Scenes

The most recent issue of B.C. Government News tells how the legislature really works. An excerpt:

"To the casual observer, the conduct of the members in the House sometimes seems surprising. They are not all in their seats at all times. They may not seem to be paying attention to the person speaking. They may jeer at statements from the other side of the House, and thump their desks in approval of remarks from their own side.

"In actual fact the members are well aware of what is happening and the importance of their decisions through the hard, detailed work behind the scenes in the committee rooms."

Surprising, we'll say.

Bits and Pieces from Ottawa

OTTAWA — Can you guess which English-speaking province is most concerned about national unity? The answer — it's a surprise — is at the foot of the column.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien's budget has inspired political commentators to predict that a late spring election now is certain.

There's an easier way to guess that an election is at hand. Ann Jamieson, an aide to Marc Lalonde when he was minister of health, and now with the Ontario Royal Commission on Pensions, has just been appointed, by Senator Keith Davey, as manager of the prime minister's cross-country campaign tour. Jamieson, who did the same job in the 1972 and 1974 elections, will be responsible for getting the leader from A to B on time, together with the accompanying press (harder to do), together with everyone's luggage (nigh impossible).

Definite Evidence

Jamieson will leave the pension commission to begin her new, temporary, job on April 24. That's evidence, though not proof positive, that the campaign will begin late this month.

Aside from Pierre Elliot Trudeau, Joe Clark and Ed Broadbent, perhaps no one has a greater personal interest in the timing of the election than does Mimi Stanfield, daughter of former Conservative leader Robert Stanfield.

For weeks, Mimi Stanfield and her finance, Murray Coolican, a former aide to both Stanfield and Clark who now is working with the Canadian Arctic Resources Committee in Ottawa, have been trying to fix the date of their wedding. Their problem is that Mimi, who works at Conservative national headquarters, will be tied up from the instant the election date is set.

Rather than wait for Trudeau to make up his mind, the pair have decided to postpone their wedding until midsummer. They take for granted that Trudeau would not be so ungentlemanly as to delay his election until next fall.

The quick demise of rumors that former deputy minister of finance Simon Reisman might run for the Liberals in Ottawa may have been premature. Reisman has told the Liberals, "no" and "no." He has not, as yet, given the party a third, and final, "no."

One irony here is that a couple of years back Reisman almost declared himself a Conservative, and then drew back after the Parti Quebecois victory made Trudeau seem Confederation's irreplaceable savior. A second irony is that Reisman's closest political confidante — no marks for guessing this — is former Finance Minister John Turner, a close friend of Reisman's but decidedly not of Trudeau's.

Reisman's arm-twisting continues, report insiders. No promises have been made, but Reisman has been told that his public potshots at Trudeau for his "New Society" musings have all been long forgotten.

Reisman himself will say only, "I have no plans whatever to run." He gives two reasons: "My age" (he's 58) and "I'd be no damn good at kissing babies." Certainly, on the latter, Reisman would have to learn to first remove his cigar.

A few days spent in Alberta last week, which included a good number of conversations with political types, left me less persuaded than before about Liberal claims they could win two to five seats.

A better guess seems to be one probable and two or three possible Liberal seats. Everyone agrees that the Liberals' best chance is in Calgary South where millionaire oil lawyer Jim Palmer will be up against Conservative newcomer, millionaire oilman John Thompson. Thereafter, Liberal pickings get slimmer.

The party's next brightest prospects seem to be in Edmonton West where CNR trainman Jack Pickett is running a lively, populist campaign, and in Medicine Hat, where the Liberals have nominated a well-known and well-liked businessman, Jim Wilfley. No Liberal that I met, nor, naturally, any Conservative either, expects Trade Minister Jack Horner to survive in Crowfoot, except as a Senator. Indeed, a couple of months ago Horner was sufficiently pessimistic about his own chances to consider seriously switching to the Bow River riding; pride rather than optimism, corralled Horner in Crowfoot.

Blue Grits

By the way, Horner, along with his cousin, Milt Harradence, a leading criminal lawyer and an ex-Alberta separatist, and the clutch of oil types and ex-Social Crediters who've recently joined the party, are known here as "Blue Grits." That's the right-wing, Liberal, side of the coin to the "Red Tories."

The answer is Saskatchewan.

A survey just completed for the New Democratic Party by Gallup shows Saskatchewan as the only English-speaking province where national unity ranks ahead of the economy as the number one concern.

Your guess as to why this is so is as good as mine. Prosperity may be part of the answer, although next door Alberta is markedly more affluent. The attitude of Premier Allan Blakeney may be another part of the answer: he has spoken with more passion on the subject than has any premier except New Brunswick's Richard Hatfield. Lastly, when you live on the flatlands, maybe you can see further.

FRED CLEVERLEY

Difficulties in Family Law

WINNIPEG — Will the new Manitoba government revoke what has been called the "golddigger's charter" of family law passed by the previous New Democrat administration, and return to a situation which offers no protection for the Irene Murdochs of this province?

Or will it adhere to the principle of equal sharing of marriage assets, a principle stated by Attorney-General Gerry Mercier when he instructed a committee of three lawyers to investigate family law and make recommendation for changes?

The fact that the law is such an emotional issue is being built up by the opposition in the hope that it will provide the first major stumbling block in the path of the new government. Premier Sterling Lyon considered the changes passed by his predecessors so unworkable that he suspended them at the first opportunity.

These changes included two major departures from previous legislation, one which said there could be no fault, regardless of conduct, that could affect maintenance payments and the other which guaranteed the equal division of all assets, both personal and business, at the time of marriage breakup. The organized opposition groups quickly labelled the government's suspension as indicative of a return to the chauvinist, court-ordered decisions which so often appeared unjust.

Still Problems

The same groups were equally prompt in their condemnation of the recommendations produced by the committee of three lawyers that was asked to investigate the law. Here it is possible that the reputation of some members of the investigation committee as opponents of the previous law overshadowed the actual recommendations they made.

In fact, the recommendations, particularly where they concern the division of property, may leave the government with as big a problem as it had before it appointed its investigative committee. The report notes that members "diverge in our views on a number of matters," but suggests that each lawyer has presented what the individual considers as a "balanced legislative package," and recommends that the government not graft portions of one package on to another. The government is left with several alternatives, but is not bound to follow any.

The problem faced by the new Manitoba government in changing family law in Manitoba, if it is divorced from emotion and considered in the light of justice for the greatest number, has no simple and straightforward solution. Some matters can be resolved unanimously, as the committee has suggested, but others occupy a grey area where the government must chart a course between common sense and perceived justice, a course which cannot possibly satisfy everyone.

Among the matters most easily resolved is the principle of no fault maintenance, which was a cornerstone of the NDP legislation. All members of the committee agree that this is not a good or just principle, and one which "flies in the face of what ordinary people perceive as justice, fairness and common sense." The report suggests that while it is undeniable that marriages often break down without specific fault, it is also true that some breakdowns are caused by irresponsibility or serious misconduct by one party, and to say that when this occurs one must ignore this conduct in fixing future support, is ludicrous.

The committee members do not object to temporary support, but insist that when maintenance is sought for an indefinite time, the applicant seeking such maintenance should be required to provide proof of fault on the part of the partner who would be required to pay.

On the subject of financial disclosure, apart from that information already required by government agencies, the committee suggests that the marriage partners are the best judges of what is an acceptable situation, and should be compelled to disclose additional information only when such disclosure can be shown to be in the public interest.

The problems of disposing of assets at the time of breakup produced greater divergence of opinions among members of the committee. Here again, however, there appears a reluctance to move too far too fast.

One committee member, Ken Houston, commented that Manitoba property law has been sufficient for decades to enable a clean division of assets acquired during marriage.

He also commented on the supreme court decision regarding the Alberta farm wife, Irene Murdoch, saying that in his view the case, as argued, was correctly decided, but its apparent result, in which Mrs. Murdoch was denied a share of the farm which she helped develop, "by any unsophisticated overview, is unfair."

Houston quoted a lesser-known case of an elderly man in Ontario who was "reduced to penury" because he had decided to place his only asset, an apartment building, in his wife's name.

Houston pointed out occasions when the equal division of assets could work to the disadvantage of the wife, such as when a husband develops into a drunkard, and where the wife, by her own efforts, keeps the house and family together. The present law, he suggests, would award her the bulk of the assets.

Such cases, Houston said, are admitted as an "acceptable price" by the Coalition on Family Law for the postulations of their notions of equality, but said he finds it unacceptable that such notions be borne on the backs of others who do not subscribe to them and who would be prejudiced by their application.

Increases Shared

All committee members appear to recognize the basic unfairness of "changing the rules in the middle of the game" for those who have been married for years under the old law, and on the basis of this recognition, offer an opting out clause for those so affected. It is interesting to note that the former attorney-general, Howard Pawley, has described this opting out clause as the one item that could dismantle the effect of the entire legislation.

What the government will do with the recommendations is not known. A member of the committee, Myrna Bowman, notes that the attorney-general told the committee that the government was committed to the basic principle of equal division of all assets acquired during marriage.

But it is almost certain that fault as an item to be considered in perpetual maintenance will return to Manitoba, and there will likely be a differentiation between personal and commercial assets liable for division.

What will emerge will certainly not be a repeat "gold diggers' charter. Neither will the law be a simple and uncomplicated piece of legislation which leaves it all to the judge to "do the right thing."

If the action is considered carefully, Manitoba should achieve realistic family law based on common justice without regard to slogans.

letters

Just a UI Story

Once upon a time, time was money. This was before Monopoly, before Snakes and Ladders. Things looked good on paper. As I sit down to write this letter, all the while telling myself that the general public are well aware of the inefficiency and bureaucratic ineptitude of the unemployment insurance people, I keep hoping things will be well again. But for now, things are rotten down on View Street, it is high time I entrusted my case to another file; for oh, that my story is my own, it is not unique. For the record then. So that someone might do something other than follow the bouncing ball while I sing for dinner, the time is now.

I sit in a crumpled heap of manners and morals at the end of the nine-to-five, an unemployed, or should I say underemployed high school English teacher. For the past year I have been a substitute teacher and a freelance writer. I have dutifully played out my hand looking for a job. Or so the story goes. That is, until approximately one month ago, a time when district superintendents began interviewing at the University of Victoria. It was to my advantage to put in as many personal appearances as I was able. This I did, to the tune of many lost possible man-hours and dollars in xeroxing professional resumes and documents.

I opened a UI claim in September which ran out three months ago. Having served ample time and duly presented the official documents of my employment on subsequent earnings, having served another extended two-week waiting period my new claim is "under investigation."

Four cards at two weeks apiece, one week later I revise this to read "was under investigation." I have been told that my new claim had been disallowed because I was supposedly only searching for a teaching position, and had, in the opinion of my reviewing officer, restricted the immediate likelihood of my employment for a period exceeding allowable limits (sic). A secretarial error as it turns out, for I have indeed been seeking other employment and made no bones about the fact that the bag of gold at the end of the university rainbow was not forthcoming. I have been a laborer, a part-time janitor, a weed inspector, among other things and have exercised no pretense in applying for these positions again. Work is work and needs no label, degree, or lack of same affixed, whichever end of the broom one is on. One irate phone call later, I am back on the roster of card-carrying hopefuls, trying to keep body and soul together in the absence of funds.

Any further history of the pitfalls and pratfalls as beset one in my station is clearly academic, redundant. I do, however, have several questions to address to those persons working for UI who chance to read this letter:

- If "I" stands for insurance, pray tell, what is it that I'm being insured against? Surely it is not incompetence.
- Are there no jobs at the UI office to increase peak efficiency? Are their no work houses?
- Is it really necessary to demoralize and browbeat persons who have not the good fortune to be working nine to five?
- Where are the keys to the kingdom, milord?

There are 13,000 stories in the naked city. This has been one of them. — Richard Stevenson, 303-1205 Rudlin Street.

Audiologists

The following letter has been forwarded to Health Minister Bob McClelland:

"I am responding to recent statements in and outside of the House, which appear to be questioning the effectiveness of Canada-trained audiologists and speech language pathologists.

"Currently, the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children employs four such therapists, three of whom received their training in Canadian universities (including the Universities of British Columbia), and the fourth from an American university.

"Each of them is providing an extremely effective level of professional service, with absolutely no detectable difference in either quality or outcome.

"Unless confronted with documented evidence to the contrary, I cannot accept the proposition the Canadian training in this highly specialized field is in any way inferior to that provided in other settings. . . ."

— Deryck Thomson, Administrator, G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children, 3970 Haro Road.

Questions of Life and Death

Must they always try to sustain life?

The passionate debate over the rights of doctors to end the life of hopelessly damaged patients and of incurably ill people to take their own life has been re-awakened in Britain by some sensational incidents.

In the past month more than six young people who were being kept alive on life-support machines were allowed to die by switching off the machine with the consent of parents and relatives.

Then journalist Derek Humphrys made a dramatic confession on television that he had given a lethal dose to his wife, who was suffering from terminal cancer of the spine.

There is no legal definition of death in English law. A person is dead when a doctor says that he is. In an attempt to clarify the potentially confusing situation that follows from this in the case of life-support machines, which can prolong the appearance of life almost indefinitely, the Royal College of Surgeons put forward a set of guidelines as to when the machines can be switched off. The guidelines centre around the level of brain activity and in particular the functioning of the brain stem, which controls breathing.

Last month a coroner's court decided that Carol Wilkinson, who was beaten around the head in a sexual attack, had been killed by person or persons unknown, thereby establishing an important precedent. She had been put on a respirator, but after several days the doctors decided that her brain had died and switched off the machine. The coroner's decision affirmed that the responsibility for her death did not lie with the doctors.

The next shade in this rather grey area is what is sometimes known as passive euthanasia, that is, not taking all possible steps to save a patient who is clearly near to death. Examples of this frequently occur in geriatric wards where elderly people, already ill or severely disabled, are not given any antibiotics should they contract something like pneumonia, often known as the "old people's friend."

By JEROME BURNE
London Observer

Professor Bryan Jennett of Glasgow has been attempting for the past 10 years to put passive euthanasia on a more scientific footing by using a computer. He and his co-workers have now computerized details of more than a thousand British and American cases of patients with severe brain damage.

The principle, which he stressed has not yet been put into active operation, is that when a patient is brought in his injuries would be compared with similar cases. If it were found that they all had had a low rate of survival then no strenuous efforts would be made to save that patient.

"We find that we can accurately predict the outcome of 50 per cent of the cases within 24 hours," claimed Professor Jennett, "and 70 per cent within a week. The value of it is that expensive resources aren't wasted on people who have no chance. "Similar decisions," he points out, "are regulary taken over who does and who does not receive a kidney transplant."

Passive euthanasia is taken to its most extreme in the cases of babies who are severely deformed with spina bifida. It is quite common to diagnose a child as hopeless and recommend withdrawal of treatment. Cases have recently come to light in which feeding the child has been defined as treatment and withheld, which must raise questions as to just how passive the process is.

As the law in Britain stands at the moment, to take any more active step than withdrawal of treatment is to invite a charge of murder. Despite this, several doctors, including Dr. Miriam Stoppard, wife of the playwright Tom Stoppard, have admitted that they have actively hastened the end of incurably ill and suffering patients. The British Medical Association has described such claims as "irresponsible and unsubstantiated."

The confession of Derek Humphrys, who killed his terminally ill wife, has been referred to the Director of Public Prosecutions. Suicide itself is not an offence but it is to help someone else commit it and as such carries a maximum penalty of 14 years imprisonment. Since 1961 there have been 20 prosecutions, none of which resulted in imprisonment. One man who gave weed-killer to his incurably ill mother, for example, was told to go away and forget about it.

The Criminal Law Revision Committee, a legal body which recommends changes in the law, put out a report two years ago suggesting that a new offence of mercy killing with very lenient penalties be created, but so far it has not led to any proposals for legislation.

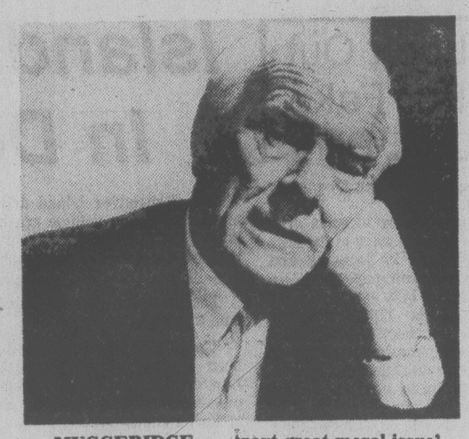
The Voluntary Euthanasia Society sees all this tinkering with the law as hypocritcal and irrelevant. The Society's aim is to give legal status to a docment called the Advance Declaration. This is like a will which people could draw up, stating the circumstances in which they would like to have their life mercifully terminated or at least not prolonged.

As with a will, an executor would be appointed who would consult with the patient, or doctor if that was impossible, when the time came for it to be carried out. Two witnesses, who stood to gain nothing from the person's death, would be required to sign it and other safeguards could be introduced to prevent abuse. It is an idea that the Society claims had 70 per cent support in an opinion poll.

At present the society distributes unofficial forms which have been sugned by thousands of people stating that the person does not want a doctor to "strive officiously" to keep them alive. A copy is given to the person's doctor and, by and large, claims the Society, doctors accept them.

Some of the strongest critics of the idea of euthanasia are those who run hospices, hospitals where people suffering from terminal illnesses can be cared for in comfort.

"As a Roman Catholic I am opposed to the taking of life," says Dr. Margaret McKerrow of St. Joseph's Hospice in the East End of London. "But I also believe that euthanasia isn't necessary."



MUGGERIDGE . . . 'next great moral issue'

"People want to die because of pain and fear and other distressing symptoms. We can relieve pain, no one suffers here, and we can help them with other things. Also people's ideas change. In full health the idea of life in a wheelchair might seem unbearable but when you're in it things look different. Then people often say, 'I want euthanasia, but not today or tomorrow.' "

Euthanasia is the unlikely topic of a successful play currently playing to packed houses in London. Entitled Whose Life is it, Anyway? it concerns a sculptor who has been paralysed from the waist down. Although unlikely to survive many years in hospital, he decides he wants to go home, a move which the doctors claim will mean almost certain death. After lengthy debate he is allowed home.

Another play is planned for next month written by the well-known religious writer and commentator Malcolm Muggeridge. Called Sentenced to Life, it will put forward the case against euthanasia, which Muggeridge has described as the "next great moral issue."

If You Take it Seriously, You're Liable to Go Mad

By ISRAEL SHENKER
New York Times

In the Times of London Literary Supplement, where learned controversies appear weekly, the current furor hangs upon a hyphen. In the Colorado state legislature, a region generally resistant to erudition, last week's dispute descended from an apostrophe. In fact, on both sides of the ocean, punctuation is all the rage.

First, TLS. Reviewing an anthology, Prof. Alastair Fowler, of the University of Edinburgh, quoted an epigram by William Blake (1757-1827) using the expression "smack-smooth."

Across the Atlantic flew a letter from Prof. David V. Erdman of the State University of New York at Stony Brook, castigating the hyphen as an "unhapppy" interloper changing innocent "smack, smooth" into an image suitable for peanut butter ads.

Professor Fowler immediately replied that his hyphen was not unhappy, and in fact had died happily, having served its purpose. Citing the Oxford English Dictionary as well as lesser writ to show that "smack-smooth" was an authentic 18th-century expression, he insisted that he had to draw the line.

At Stony Brook, Professor Erdman is now girding his loins to launch the second-strike missive that will once again demolish his opponent in full view of the scholarly world, while Professor Fowler is gathering arms that will ensure his enemy's rout.

"If you take hyphens seriously, you will surely go mad," John Benbow long ago warned in the Oxford University Press style book (style-book). But G. V. Carey, author of "Mind The Stop," laughed at such warnings and distinguished between English and American usage. The hyphen was often bypassed when English passed into American, he suggested, while "American tends to cold-shoulder — or as they would probably write it, to cold shoulder, if not to coldshoulder — the hyphen."

But some Americans have insisted on all the hyphens possible. When Mark Twain came to German, a language that roused him to unspeakable indignation, he was particularly outraged at finding "six or seven words compacted into one, without joint or seam — that is, without hyphens." When he returned to English, he inveighed against "parenthesis distemper" and compared parenthetical expressions to dentists who grab a tooth and launch into a tedious anecdote before giving the painful jerk ("Parentheses in literature and dentistry are in bad taste," he wrote).

In the "Harper Dictionary of Contemporary Usage," William and Mary Morris (who call themselves co-authors rather than coauthors) report the results of proposing the form nonnative, rather than non-native. "For God's sake, restore the hyphen!" responded Barbara Tuchman, confessing that she had read the word as nonna-tive. Dwight Macdonald said he never did decipher it — "assumed it was a new school of philosophy." "Hooray for the hyphen!" cheered George Plimpton. "Or, rather, Hoo-ray!" But would he apostrophize Colorado's name-giving? Would he approve of the legislature's action last week in overruling objections from William Comer, a junior high school teacher, who pleaded for an apostrophe in the name "Pikes Peak Community College"?

In suppressing the apostrophe, the legislature just as firmly expressed its disdain for the legacy of Gertrude Stein, who argued that the apostrophe could have a "gentle tender insinuation." Miss Stein's harsher strictures concerned the question mark, which she termed "positively revolting" and admitted only "as a brand on cattle or when it could be used in decoration." Harsher still was her rejection of the comma: "If you want to take a breath you ought to know yourself that you want to take a breath."

Pooh, pooh. Pooh-pooh? Pooh pooh? "The use of commas cannot be learned by rule", insisted The Complete Plain Words, by Sir Ernest Gowers, revised by Sir Bruce Fraser, and demonstrated by E. B. White, commoner. In the first edition of "Elements of Style," Mr. White wrote: "If two or more clauses, grammatically complete and not joined by a conjunction, are to form a single sentence, the proper mark of punctuation is a semicolon." In the second edition, reflecting a change in popular style, only the final comma survives.

On The New Yorker, grace notes are high policy. When S. J. Perelman insinuated a dash into a verbal arabesque, the specialist assigned to Perelmania substituted a semicolon. At that critical impasse, the magazine's editor telephoned to ask Mr. Perelman which he preferred. "The dash seems to me swifter," the author replied — and so it was decreed.

In the 19th century the semicolon held its own while the colon fell from grace. With the 20th century the colon was restored to favor, to the relief of Eric Partridge, lexicographer and author of You Have A Point There — "to be mulcted of our money and mutilated of our property is serious enough: to be deprived of our colon would be intolerable."

Fashions in this treacherous domain are forever changing. Three thousand years ago, the Hittites had a mark for paragraphs — and no other form of punctuation. In classic Greek, an elevated period (˙) served as colon and semicolon, and the semicolon (;) indicated interrogation. Authorities of a speculative bent (?) have even suggested that the question mark of today's English usage originated as the Greek semicolon — upside down.

That advance — or reverse — came about a millennium ago. In those days the question mark was placed at beginning as well as end of a query, as it still is in Spanish, where the question mark not only turns up (?) but down (¿) as well.

Partridge suggests that the ? of the ? is from the first letter of Latin quaerere (to ask). He wonders if the ˙ of ! began life as an emphatic pointer or even a dagger. English and other languages similarly inclined added the period under the ˙, and thus made sure no one missed the point.

None of this accounts for the peculiarities of the stateless dieresis or German umlaut, French accents circumflex, acute and grave, the Spanish tilde, and the wild profusion of decorative flourishes besetting Hebrew. Arabic is so difficult to pierce, its signs so uniquely positioned, that one student recently puzzled helplessly over a mark he was unable to identify, though it seemed to resemble all the others. Finally he pinned it down as a comma, the sort used even in English to set off an expletive.

Ben Jonson, who was Shakespeare's contemporary, maintained that punctuation was introduced not to discipline stylistic excesses but to allow for shortness of breath, and thus "it was thought necessarie, as well for the speakers ease, as for the plainer deliverance of the things spoken, to invent this meanes, whereby men, pausing a pretty while, the whole speech might never the worse be understood."

In "The King's English," early in this century, H. W. and F. G. Fowler suggested that modern punctuation was "mainly to guide the mind in seeing through the grammatical construction." A subsequent authority — Harold Herd — suggested that punctuation, after beginning life as "the handmaid of prose," was transformed by pedants into "a harsh-faced chaperone" all whalebone and starch, and finally had emerged into the radiance of day as happy friend and guide.

With the present century's delight in verbal permissiveness, the principal victim is the asterisk, now reduced to signaling footnotes and shorn of its former censorious sway in words plainly unprintable, e.g. d. Expressions of this nature are now not only heard in polite society, but damn well displayed for all the world to see.

Fast Veto on Genstar Surprises Developers

Central Saanich aldermen Monday night unanimously decided against any development on Tod Inlet, at least in the foreseeable future.

The decision by council's subdivision and zoning committee came as a surprise to officials of Genstar Development who presented to the committee two weeks ago a $14 million multiple housing-commercial-marina complex on the 22-acre site next to Butchart Gardens.

"I didn't think we'd reached that sort of impasse so rapidly," Genstar manager Barry Sharpe said today. "Frankly, I'm more than a little disappointed."

The committee rejected the proposal partly because of the opposition of Butchart Garden's owner Ian Ross, and partly because of overwhelming public sentiment against any development on the site voiced at a public meeting March 28.

"The general feeling of council is no development is needed down there at this time," Ald. Dave Hill said today. "We're not ready for it yet. Maybe in 25 to 30 years we'd be ready. I don't know. But right now it's premature."

Genstar officials aren't sure what their next step will be. Although the company owns 1,200 acres in the area, development of the 22-acre parcel, the only section included in the municipal sewer containment area, is the key feature to any plan.

Sharpe indicated there are various options. The company could sell the property to the government for a provincial park, leave the property as it is and wait for the time council will agree to development, or self the property to another developer.

The land is zoned for recreation and commercial uses, which would allow the owner to build a hotel, motel, various sports facilities, art galleries, or gift shops.

Whether the company will go ahead with such plans remains uncertain.

"We're taking a calculated risk they won't," Hill said.

LOST IT?

Lynda Harbidge, Lisa Toye, Lowell Reimer, Paul McCulloch, John Trider and Marfarett Kendall have one thing in common.

They all have belongings at the city police's lost and found department.

Quartermaster Sgt. Doug Wilson says the unit is once again bursting with items.

Includedd are two knapsacks, a couple of stereo players, a first aid box, fishing gear, car parts, fire extinguishers, watches, keys, rings . . . even a bowling trophy.

If you've lost something, Wilson suggests you call him.

Jail Scholars Honored

Six prisoners who completed bachelor of education degrees while behind bars took part in awards ceremonies Sunday at Matsqui and B.C. penitentiaries.

They formed part of a group of 120 inmates working on University of Victoria courses who were honored for their academic achievements.

At the ceremonies, UVic faculty members and representatives of the federal government presented them with book awards and certificates.

The program is sponsored by the federal government and allows inmates to take up to 18 units of regular UVic courses each year.

It was developed by Dr. Douglas Ayers of the UVic faculty of education and is the first program to offer senior level courses leading to a degree while in prison.

Its is also the only program that includes five faculty members who teach full-time at the two prisons. All other programs have faculty coming in on a part-time basis.

Look Out For Fake U.S. Bills

Keep an eye open for phoney U.S. $20 bills.

The Greater Victoria area was hit by a wave of the fake bills back in January and they're turning up again.

All the bills spotted so far are of the 1974 series and have the check letter C and a face plate number of 102 in the bottom right-hand corner. They have various serial numbers all of which start with B and end with the letter F.

Merchants or anyone else unlucky enough to be stuck with one should try and pass along a description of the passer to city police as quickly as possible.

Island Pair Blamed In Death Crash

Two Vancouver Island drivers were to blame for a four-vehicle crash on the Malahat Feb. 19 which killed two young Mainland residents, a coroner's jury ruled Monday.

The jury also recommended that three-lane highways be abolished.

The jury of four women and two men had been inquiring into the deaths of James Lawrence Sauer, 23, of Vancouver and his passenger, Susan Jennifer Hamilton, 24, of North Vancouver.

The couple was to have been married March 25.

After deliberating for 35 minutes the jury found that Harvey Ernest Wuerch of 472 Meredith, Saanich, and Albert Vandermeer of Shawnigan Lake were illegally travelling south in the passing lane.

The centre of three lanes in that section of the highway is normally for northbound use but southbound traffic may use it if there is no approaching traffic.

Wuerch testified he had no recollection of the events. He said the last thing he remembers is going up the Malahat in the right hand (curb lane), rounding a bend and running into fog.

A statement made by Vandermeer to the Colwood RCMP shortly after the mishap was read into the proceedings by Crown counsel Richard Anthony.

Vandermeer had stated he was in the passing lane and could not get back into the curb lane because of cars.

At that point, he told police, the second of two cars heading north pulled out and he heard a bang.

Renovations Approved

The Greater Victoria school board Monday night approved two items on this year's proposed $8 million capital expenditure program.

An expenditure of $245,330 to renovate Victor Street school, the top priority item according to superintendent Alan Stables, was the first amount approved by the board during its regular meeting.

Trustees also approved a recommended expenditure of $119,681 for renovations to Doncaster Elementary.

The board had to table a motion to approve a $158,895 expenditure for renovations to Colquitz Junior Secondary when the meeting's time limit ran out.

The board expects its preliminary capital expenditure budget will be cut drastically by the education ministry.

It should make a list of only top priority items, chairman Susan Brice recommended.

"Included in such a list will be only those projects for which we are prepared to press the provincial government and to which we will commit the local taxpayers," Brice said in a report to the board.

The capital budget was due on Education Minister Pat McGeer's desk March 15.

A restrictive ministry formula has made the board's task difficult, Brice said.

She said the board and administration are not prepared to jeopardize the credibility of long-range planning by completing the capital budget forms provided by the ministry.

"There is general uneasiness regarding the prevailing idea that the government will establish a lump amount and the board can determine the specific projects later.

"As false expectations could be raised with various school communities, there could be unnecessary conflict in the future," Brice said.

Brice recommended sending the ministry a list of essential projects that should be started immediately, accompanied by another list of projects the board may wish to consider in the future when it has established long-term facility requirements.

Trustees are still deliberating on a commitment to cut space in the district by 150,000 square feet in September due to declining enrolment.

AWKWARD WALK

JOHORE BAHRU (AP) — A magistrate fined Ho Eng Lai, 36, $1,200 for trying to smuggle 117 dozen condoms into Malaysia from Singapore. A customs officer noticed Ho walking awkwardly as he came off the causeway across the Johore Strait and found the contraceptives beneath his clothes.

Her husband, Sergio Osmena, was president of the Philippine Commonwealth before it gained independence from the United States in 1946. He died in 1961.

Proposed Cutting Ban Still Has Saanich Up a Tree

Twelve versions already and still more hacking and chopping ahead — that's the status report on Saanich municipality's proposed bylaw designed to control indiscriminate tree cutting.

Back it went to the environment committee Monday night, accompanied by a planner's memo which gave this breezy assurance: "The complaints of many of the objectors have been satisfied (or nearly so) in Draft 12."

But that view wasn't shared by a number of aldermen, citizens, community groups and spokesmen for development companies.

Another flak barrage was sent up against the latest draft, and Ald. Howard Sturrock directed most of the council guns by repeating his earlier complaints that the basic intent of the bylaw is clumsily and confusingly worded.

The proposed bylaw (or proposal for a bylaw, as committee chairman Ald. John Mika prefers to call it) would require a permit for tree felling only if more than five trees a year were to be felled on lots of one acre or larger. In the case of smaller lots, the owner would need a permit if he wanted to cut more than two trees in any year.

Unfortunately, Sturrock insisted, that's not what the bylaw says.

Ald. Ian Cass agreed that the wording is abstruse, but said his main complaint is that the bylaw is an example of overkill, because it penalizes most Saanich residents to curb the irresponsible behavior of a few.

The committee finally agreed to refer the matter to a newly-appointed environmental advisory group composed of citizens and community representatives.

Saanich, Farmers Close to Lake Pact

Saanich municipality and several farmers in the Blenkinsop Valley area are close to reaching agreement on the question of who has jurisdiction over Blenkinsop Lake, aldermen were told Monday night.

Municipal administrator William Tremayne informed the environment committee that meetings with the farmers have thrashed out most contentious points.

The consensus emerging is that while Saanich will have over-all management responsibility for flood control purposes, the farmers who own water rights licences will be assured of an adequate summer supply for irrigating their crops.

Meanwhile, the committee agreed to support an application by farmer John Pendray to the provincial water rights branch for permission to irrigate about 30 acres on the east side of Blenkinsop Road near the Par 3 golf course.

Pendray's bid was strongly opposed by Irene Block, president of the Saanich Greenbelt Association, who complained that the lake is already so heavily drained in the summer months that it poses a threat to ducks and other forms of wildlife for whom it provides a natural habitat.

"The lake is over-licensed and that's a fact," she stated.

But Mayor Mel Couvelier said if Saanich is serious about encouraging farming it should support Pendray's application.

b.c. briefs

Phone Service Improved

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new microwave system will be in service this month on the Queen Charlotte Islands to improve telephone service quality for 700 residents of Sandspit and Queen Charlotte City.

British Columbia Telephone Co. said in a news release Monday that the decision to spend $325,000 on the system was made a year ago and will replace equipment that has served the Charlottes for more than 20 years.

Mon Bains, a B.C. Tel engineer, said that as the water of Skidegate Inlet rises and falls with the tides, it interferes with the radio signal being transmitted over the present system.

Shooting Charged

PENTICTON (CP) — Two men were remanded to April 24 when they appeared in provincial court Monday to face charges laid after a shooting incident early Saturday.

RCMP Const. Lorne Cusheor was responding to a complaint about a noisy party when a bullet splintered the door at which he was about to knock.

John Domotor, 22, is charged with use of a .22-calibre rifle in a manner dangerous to the officer. Domotor and Dwayne Eden, 17, are charged with possession of a prohibited weapon, a sawed-off .12-gauge shotgun.

Protest Ends

BURNABY (CP) — An 18-hour, sit-down strike by 22 women at the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre was settled Monday, a prison spokesman said.

Their demands included better visiting conditions, better medical attention and more yard time.

Fall Kills Walker

CLEARWATER (CP) — RCMP Monday identified a man killed Sunday in a 300-foot fall in Wells Grey provincial park as Ed Bourget of Kamloops, a former resident of Regina.

Police said Bourget was walking with Dennis Watson, 22, also of Kamloops, in an unprotected canyon area near Helmcken Falls when he lost his footing and fell into the canyon.

Fire Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — A three-alarm fire that raged through the Three Vets department store Sunday appears to have been deliberately set in cardboard cartons outside the building's receiving door, police said Monday.

A spokesman for the fire department said the fire quickly burned through to a shipment of white gas which had just been received.

★ Spur Closing Opposed

If the 1.4-mile branch line known as the Saanich Spur is abandoned by Canadian National Railways it will hurt existing and planned industry in Saanich, and jeopardize future options for possible light transit use.

The complaints are included in a brief which Saanich will submit to an April 18 public hearing of the Canadian Transport Commission.

Drafted by Ald. Ian Cass, chairman of council's public transportation committee, the brief was endorsed Monday night by members of the committee.

The spur runs northeastward from the main line at the Douglas—Trans-Canada intersection to the area east of Quadra, near Reynolds senior secondary school.

In its presentation to the CTC, Saanich points out that the loss of the line will affect Bordens Mercantile, the Quadra feed merchants, as well as the occupants of the winery building across the street.

Car loadings to serve Bordens were up 60 per cent in 1977 over the previous year, and so far this year show an increase of almost 100 per cent over 1977.

A less apparent loss, the brief says, is that rail service will not be available to the Tennyson-Whittier area, which is designated for a major industrial-commercial redevelopment program.

PHILLIPONI ON UIC 48 WEEKS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joe Philliponi, owner of the Penthouse Cabaret, said Monday he collected unemployment insurance intermittently for 48 weeks after police had closed down his cabaret.

"Sure I did. I was entitled," said Philliponi. "I paid premiums all those years just like everybody else and I collected just like everybody else when I was out of work."

Philliponi's cabaret was closed Dec. 31, 1975, and Philliponi and three associates were charged with conspiring to live off the avails of prostitution.

They were cleared last December by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

Who Should Play God?

In the mid-1890s the superintendent of the Kansas State Home for the feebleminded castrated 44 boys. Castration, however, proved less than popular with the general public, so that when the first eugenic vasectomy was performed in 1899 it was heralded as a more efficient tool. The vasectomy was performed at Indiana Reformatory by Dr. Harry Sharp as a eugenic solution for a 19-year-old boy who had become "addicted" to excessive masturbation.

Within three weeks of the operation, according to Sharp, the lad was excelling in his classwork once again. Sharp was so encouraged by the results that he took it upon himself to operate on 76 more youngsters by the end of the year.

The same state, Indiana, passed the first sterilization law in 1907. The bill called for mandatory sterilization of confirmed criminals, idiots, imbeciles and others in state institutions when approved by a board of experts. It was later fondly referred to by eugenicists as "the Indiana Idea."

Eugenicists also began to use family trees as a major propaganda weapon in their battle to equate heredity with inferior biological types. By concocting elaborate family histories the eugenicists purported to show that inferior traits were passed down from generation to generation and that the social costs of allowing such reproduction to continue was not worthwhile.

The second element that eugenicists introduced to push their claims was the Binet Intelligence test, administered among the institutionalized to prove that they were mentally and biologically incompetent and a drain on society who should not be allowed to reproduce. Together the family trees and the Binet tests fuelled the propaganda fires even further and hastened the passage of more state laws on sterilization.

With the chorus of demands for sterilization reaching a crescendo pitch, 15 states enacted sterilization laws between 1907 and the First World War. A bill introduced in the Missouri legislature even called for sterilization of those "convicted of murder, rape, highway robbery, chicken stealing, bombing or theft of automobiles." By 1931 30 states had passed sterilization laws and thousands of American citizens had been surgically fixed.

Until the U.S. dropped the first atomic bomb on Hiroshima at the end of the Second World War, the eugenics movement lay virtually dormant. Then, in 1945, scientists and officials at the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) realized that the atomic age would bring with it a dramatic increase in radiation that would, in turn, have serious and harmful effects on human gene mutation. That concern over atomic radiation and gene mutation sparked a renewed interest in genetics research.

The AEC began to pour funds into genetics research. One of their grants came to a young geneticist at the University of Indiana named James Watson who won a Nobel Prize for his discovery of the DNA molecule.

Watson's and other biologists' pioneering work triggered a renewed interest in eugenics as well. Many prominent scientists began to claim that increased radiation was causing massive mutations in the human gene pool that were spreading with each new generation of babies. New breakthroughs in medical treatment of genetically defective individuals, it was argued, were keeping more biologically unfit people alive who, in turn, were passing on gene defects to their offspring.

As a result of these concerns a whole new generation of modern-day eugenicists have emerged from within the scientific community. They are advocating a range of new eugenic procedures and programs to both arrest the "deteriorating trend" in the human gene pool and upgrade the genetic worth of the human species.

Bernard Davis, professor of bacterial physiology at Harvard, speaks for many of his scientific colleagues when he says that we need a eugenics program "aimed primarily at reducing the production of individuals whose genetic endowment would limit their ability to cope with a technologically complex environment."

Now once again scientists in universities all over the U.S. are beginning to issue reports and studies that purportedly demonstrate that crime, poverty and intelligence are more the direct result of people's genetic make-up than of the environment in which they live. And nowhere is this trend toward biological determinism more evident than in the new research studies into criminal behavior.

One such research study was conducted over a six-year period at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington by Dr. Sam Yochelson and Dr. Stanton Samenow. Yochelson and Samenow interviewed hundreds of convicts who had been placed at St. Elizabeth's because the courts had decided they were "disturbed people."

Criminals are not made by society, the study concluded: they are born that way. "In a sense," says Samenow, "you would say he (the criminal) is programmed for killing, not by someone else, but he has a mind that reacts to adversity, not with surmounting adversity, but eliminating it." Samenow's conclusion is that the solution "isn't just changing his (the criminal's) environment. We found," he says, "that the task of change involves changing a man's thinking."

Drs. Samenow and Yochelson are not alone in their views on the genetic basis for criminality. Several years ago the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) gave a grant of $109,000 to Boston City Hospital, the UCLA Medical School and Massachusetts General Hospital to "develop a technique by which violence-prone" individuals could be identified." The assumption upon which the grant was awarded is that criminal behavior is, in fact, a biologically identifiable trait. The researchers' thesis was that criminal behavior is genetic, not environmentally based.

The beginnings of a new eugenics movement is well under way in the U.S. Forty-six states already have some type of genetic screening program. Typical is a recent screening law drawn up by the Chicago Bar Association that would require genetic screening of all marriage licence applicants in an effort "to reduce the number of non-productive members of our society," one of its supporters proclaimed.

William Vukowich, associate professor of law at Georgetown University, believes a tax deduction scheme could be adapted to "a eugenics program by limiting deductions for couples with inferior genotypes and increasing the number of deductions for couples with superior genotypes."

The new eugenics movement in the U.S., like its predecessor 60 years ago, has the enthusiastic support of some of the most distinguished scientists alive, for it is no trivial matter when scientists of the stature of DNA Nobel laureate Sir Francis Crick remark:

"... no new-born infant should be declared human until it has passed certain tests regarding its genetic endowment and that if it fails these tests it forfeits the right to live."

what sounded like a good drunk.

"I knew what I had to do. If I was going to do it, now was the time. I decided to do it.

"I went to the road . . . and saw four people sitting on the bank of the river. I was surprised to see four people. I thought there were only two, at the most, three.

"I said 'hold it.'

"They turned around . . . in the few terrible seconds afterwards, I killed all four . . . stabbed them through the heart to make sure they were dead (and) threw the bodies into the river."

The court was told earlier that the shooting victims and a fifth teen-ager, who escaped by running along the river bank, had driven to Ferry Island in Evert Den Hertog's pickup truck.

"I was feeling terrible about what I had done," the statement continues. "I could not go ahead with what I had planned to do . . . it would turn into another bloodbath."

Jurors also heard what the prosecution alleges was a tape recording of dialogue between Ellard and Madsen after the accused spent an hour drafting the statement. They were told it was Madsen on the tape saying:

"I still think it (the kidnap plan) would have worked. But I could not go through with it. What . . . would I do with . . . $2 million ransom? Where would I spent it? Just go bury it in the basement somewhere."

John Madsen, 33, an insurance underwriter, testified his brother acted out a "cool dude" role, smoking a cigarette in an affected way when they first talked in the RCMP office.

At the end of their 30-minute talk alone in the police office, "I saw the real Walter," John said.

"Walter has always been a good boy. Always when mom said 'cut the grass,' he would cut the grass."

Caouette Resigns

OTTAWA (CP) - Gilles Caouette resigned as interim leader of the Social Credit party today following unsuccessful efforts to convince the party's national executive to postpone a national leadership convention.

Caouette issued a brief statement saying Social Credit MPs would not accept his resignation last week but agreed to accept it today at a caucus meeting.

"I remain a Creditiste MP from Temiscamingue and Creditiste candidate in the next election," Caouette said.

In the statement Caouette said a decision to hold the national leadership convention May 6 and 7 in Winnipeg contravened the Social Credit constitution. This and the subsequent decision by the national executive were his reasons for resigning.

$10 Million Boost for City Seen from Cut in Sales Tax

and MARK HUME
Times Staff

By cutting the sales tax to five per cent the provincial government has put an estimated $10 million in the pockets of families living in Greater Victoria.

If you wanted to buy a 1978 Ford Granada selling at $6,107.20 Monday, the tax on the car was $427.50. Today it is down to $305.36 — a saving of $122.14.

Woodward's manager Doug Smith said the sales tax reduction will save consumers about $2 for every $100 spent.

He said a $500 television set that Monday cost an extra $35 in provincial tax will now only have $25 tacked on.

For a $100 item, such as clothing, the tax will now be $5 instead of $7.

But smokers are getting hit hard as the tax on a pack of 25 cigarettes went up 12 cents at midnight Monday night.

And if liquor or wine figures in your budget you will pay more come June when the government is expected to increase prices by about three per cent.

The estimate that the sales tax reduction puts $10 million into the pockets of Greater Victorian consumers was made by Ald. Murray Glazier, Victoria council's finance committee chairman.

"I worked it out on the basis of families saving $100 a year and it came out to about $10 million staying in the region for people to spend as they like. That's extremely important for a heavy retail area like Victoria."

Glazier said the tax reduction will undoubtedly stimulate the city's economy.

Some retailers, in fact, felt the impact of the new provincial budget almost immediately — but not because of the sales tax reduction.

The price hike in cigarettes triggered spending binges at a number of stores.

Dozens of stores in the region experienced line-ups Monday night as people stocked up on cartons of their favorite brand of cigarettes.

At one Shoppers Drug Mart one heavy smoker bought $81 worth in one shot and said she was moving on to buy more at another store.

Other Shoppers stores reported heavy runs on cigarettes which were still being sold at the old prices this morning.

Wolfe announced that the 12-cent price hike for a pack of 25 would be assessed at the wholesale level.

"But there is nothing preventing the retailer from tacking on the increase now," he told a press conference.

And that freedom of choice had some store managers in a bit of a tizzy this morning, not knowing whether to hike their prices immediately or to hold off until new stock came in.

Woodward Stores (Mayfair) Ltd., which had an extremely heavy run on its cigarette counter Monday, was uncertain this morning whether to raise its prices.

Store manager Doug Smith, however, said later in the day the old prices will remain until the new, more expensive, stock is on the shelf.

Vending machine companies, in the meantime, were going to work immediately to switch over their machines. It may take some companies a week to change-over all their machines, however.

A spokesman for one vending company said the price of a 20-cigarette pack, which almost all machines carry exclusively, will be raised a dime.

At the Shoppers Drug Mart head office in Vancouver one office worker said "everyone here's running around in circles trying to figure out what to do (about the 12 cent hike)."

Shoppers' vice-president of administrative services, Jim Charles, confirmed that there is some confusion saying that "we're trying to determine from our suppliers exactly what our increased cost will be so we know what to pass on — once we get that information we're going to call all our stores and make the increase. But right now we're just not sure."

He said it looked like cartons of cigarettes will go up about $1.

Generally speaking, retailers are pleased with the B.C. government's moves.

Dennis Evans, Victoria Chamber of Commerce taxation chairman, said the drop in the sales tax will give people more confidence in the government.

He said B.C. residents saved more money last year than at any other time in the history of the country.

"This will help them spend some of that."

He was also pleased with the government's moves to encourage small businesses saying the tax reductions and promise to remove some of the bookkeeping will have a significant impact.

However, he said he was disturbed by the government's spending program.

He said if the government wanted to show restraint it should have kept spending to last year's level.

As an example of uncontrolled spending, he said the economic development ministry budget is increased 400 per cent in the current budget, from $7 million to $29 million.

Jack Noble, operating manager for Eaton's, said the sales tax cut will encourage people to buy the larger items they have been reluctant to purchase.

He said the seven-per-cent sales tax was "an annoying tax" which bothered people more than the five per cent.

"For people with large families it will make a difference . . . it is something meaningful."

CITY, REGION TO JOIN FORCES

New Drive Started for Civic Centre

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Victoria and the Capital Regional District (CRD) have joined forces to push for construction of a multi-purpose civic centre adjacent to the old Crystal Gardens.

The building would cost $5 million-plus and accommodate major conventions, the performing arts and cultural events.

CRD grants committee chairman Shirley Dowell and Ald. Ron McKenzie, head of city council's cultural development committee, said in a joint interview Monday construction of the centre could start within one or two years.

"One year if we rush it," said McKenzie.

He said financing has already been arranged and the only real hurdle left is the provincial government, which has not yet given a green light on providing a site from its land holdings adjacent to the Crystal.

McKenzie added, however, the government has expressed full support for efforts to establish a centre in Victoria, and the B.C. Development Corporation (BCDC) has agreed to assist.

Financing, said McKenzie, would come from "a unique mix of private and public money."

He said the West Coast Credit Union has offered to fund the project — for $5 million or more — at low interest rates as a contribution to the people of the region.

The loan would be amortized over 30 years.

Dowell said the CRD has also agreed to provide $2 million that could be used to underwrite the West Coast loan.

The centre would be under the direction of the CRD, and be self-supporting.

Dowell said she envisions a multi-purpose facility that would operate 12 months of the year.

"If it's scheduled properly I feel it can be in use year-round. I would envision this could be just as important here as Stratford is in Ontario — it would be on a par with that, if not better."

She said the Victoria centre would provide a new home for the symphony, be used to stage professional and amateur productions, art and craft shows, and other cultural events.

Dowell said the exact cost, size and physical make-up of the centre will not be decided until after a full feasibility study has been undertaken, but a substantial theatre would have to be provided.

"I feel we have to build something now to the year 2000, and it must take into account the growing interest of society in the arts."

McKenzie added that the centre would also take into consideration the changing tastes of the community.

"People are growing older, the demands are changing and we (the centre) would have to be responsive to that."

He said the centre would tie in with a proposal now being put together by Allan Purdy, chairman of the McPherson Playhouse Foundation, for a major Victoria festival of the arts.

"There's nothing but a tremendous future for the arts."

McKenzie and Dowell began separately working on proposals for a civic centre last January and only recently have been collaborating.

McKenzie, Dowell and other civic officials will meet April 25 with George Haynes, executive director of the Saskatchewan Centre of the Arts, and Bruce McIntyre, project director of the BCDC.

'Horrendous' Union Moves

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier expressed disappointment today at the provincial government's decision not to set up its own monitoring agency on wage and price controls.

The federal Anti-Inflation Board's controls are to be phased out later this year.

Couvelier said his own observations are that voluntary restraint policies have not worked anywhere else in the world and he can't see how they can in Canada.

"From my discussions in the community my guess is we could see some horrendous union requests."

In Victoria, Ald. Murray Glazier said the province's promise to pay full property taxes to the city will mean an additional income of more than $1.5 million.

Glazier said the difference will come on whether the government agrees to pay taxes on land, such as parking lots, that is without any buildings.

Glazier also said he was pleased with the government's decision to increase the elderly homeowner grant by $50, from $430 to $480.

He said the move affects 1,400 individuals in the city.

TOWN TALK

The cultural involvement of some big corporations is not all that wonderful in the opinion of Victoria Symphony honorary treasurer D.C. (Michael) Field.

In fact, he says, with particular reference to du Maurier's widely-vaunted "pop concerts", they get what amounts to a free ride in quantity of advertising and enhancement of their corporate image in return for a peanut-sized grant.

This season Victoria Symphony opted to present three du Maurier concerts, with three guests — the Vancouver-based Savoyards for whom the fee was $4,000; Peter Nero, who cost a whopping $9,500, and the cancelled Kostelanetz at $5,000.

The total du Maurier donation was its standard $4,000, a sum which not only barely made a dent on guest artist expenses and orchestra musicians' fees but was inadequate even for the advertising budget.

Maybe you had to be there but the show stopper at the Grace McCarthy tourist committee meeting at the legislature last week came with the "bing, bang, bong" of the signal bells.

The travel minister sighed: "Those bells mean we have to leave you and attend our caucus meeting."

"Bing, bang, bong."

Muncipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis (joking): "Is that what that means? I've always wondered." (laughter)

"Bing, bang, bong."

Visitors Information Centre past president Ken King: "It sounds like the Gong Show!" (much laughter, all exit).

Who says kids and cops can't relate or communicate?

Out at Central Junior High Monday some 30 Grade 10 students received graduation certificates from Victoria police detective division head Insp. Angus Stewart after completing a law course called Canada's System of Justice.

The police-sponsored course, which is organized and handled by Const. John Smith, the force's youth liaison officer, involves a two-way dialogue on the law and what it means to young people.

Word is that there's a great rapport between the young folk, Smith and the other police officials involved in the course.

Saanich police chief Bob Peterson can't find enough praise for two of his men after their heroic but vain attempt to save a 70-year-old woman from a smoke-filled house.

He says he'll recommend to the police board special commendations for Cpl. Dennis Lush and Acting-Cpl. John Archer.

Lush and Archer were first on the scene of a fire at a house at 786 Middleton. They broke down the front door and crawled on their hands and knees searching for Marguerite Neave Brindley.

Lush, close to collapsing, staggered out of the house and fell unconscious. Archer managed to find the unconscious woman and drag her outside where he too collapsed. Their efforts were in vain.

Police believe the woman died some time before the fire was spotted.

First, Get Them Into the Bedrooms

Tourists don't spend much money when they drive around in their cars sight-seeing. They have to get into the hotels and restaurants before the money begins to flow.

That, apparently, was the message Visitors Information Centre manager Don Nixon wanted to convey to Travel Minister Grace McCarthy at last week's tourist committee meeting.

Only it didn't quite come out that way.

"The sooner we get them out of the cars and into the bedrooms, the sooner they will get going and start doing the things we want them to do," said Nixon.

Committee members nodded in agreement.

When it comes to langos, it appears the Times is as uninitiated as anybody.

On Page 7 of Monday's paper we explained — "for the uninitiated" — that langos are Hungarian sausages.

Miklos Kovats, president of the Hungarian Society of Victoria, says there is no meat in langos. They are made of bread dough, which is deep fried and seasoned with salt and garlic.

By the way, the 130-member Hungarian Society donated $250 to the Lions Club charities from the sale of langos, sausages, coffee and soft drinks on Sunday.

A couple of illustrated books edited by two members of the Institute of Ocean Sciences here could become ecological best-sellers if the public finds out about them.

The two titles, Oil Spill Countermeasures and Birds and Marine Mammals, are the first two in a series of six entitled The Beaufort Sea and the Search for Oil, the condensed result of a two-year study by the Beaufort Sea Project.

The work was based at the institute under direction of Allen Milne assisted by Brian Smiley and was funded jointly by the oil industry and Canadian government. It took a detailed look at fisheries, marine life, wildlife, physical and chemical oceanography and possible effects of oil spill on ice-covered waters.

Three thousand copies of each title were printed and 2,000 of each were left in storage after libraries and scientific interests were supplied.

They are readable, timely and well stocked with black and white and color plates. Price, $2.50 each, available by mail from Beaufort Sea Project, Institute of Ocean Sciences, Box 6000 Sidney.

First Rabbit Rolls Off U.S. Plant Line

NEW STANTON, Pa. (AP) — Volkswagen board chairman Toni Schmuecker grinned broadly Monday as the last part — a plastic grille — was snapped on the West German company's first U.S.-assembled auto.

"This is a proud day for Volkswagen," Schmuecker told more than 1,000 invited guests gathered before a stage at Volkswagen's new plant 56 kilomatres southeast of Pittsburgh.

Moments later, a plant official drove a white subcompact Rabbit model onto the gold-carpeted stage.

The first U.S.-produced Rabbit is expected to be sent to a Volkswagen museum in Wolfsburg, West Germany. But 50,000 more Rabbits made at the plant this year will be shipped to U.S. showrooms. After that, Volkswagen plans to produce 200,000 cars annually at New Stanton.

Assembly of the first Rabbit came less than a year after crews began paving the 39-acre ground floor of the plant's shell. The structure was built by Chrysler Corp. in 1968 but left unfinished when the auto market declined in 1970.

About 4,500 persons are expected to work at the plant when it reaches full production. The annual payroll is estimated at $97 million.

Volkswagen's prime concern is that the plant's production will help return the company to a dominant position in the U.S. marketplace.

Volkswagen's Beetle, first introduced to North America in 1955, made the company the leading importer of cars in the U.S. for many years.

Recently, however, the U.S. dollar has weakened relative to the West German mark, cutting Volkswagen's former price edge amid increased competition, chiefly from Japan and the U.S.

Japan's Exports Increase 19%

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's certified exports in March rose 19.1 per cent from a year ago to a record high $9.159 billion (U.S.), the Ministry of International Trade and Industry said today.

Exports were up 23.9 per cent from February when the annual rate of increase was 18.9 per cent.

The previous record was set in December, 1977, at $8.101 billion, when certified exports advanced at a 22.5-per-cent annual rate.

Exports to the United States rose 28.1 per cent from a year ago to $2.338 billion, while those to all North America gained 25.7 per cent to $2.515 billion.

Other export figures were: Western Europe, down 5.1 per cent from a year ago to $1.258 billion; Southeast Asia, up 32.9 per cent to 2.052 billion; the Middle East and Western Asia, up 29.2 per cent to $1.070 billion; Communist nations, up 11.7 per cent to $509.609 billion.

By category, motor vehicle exports soared 47.4 per cent to $1.621 billion; machinery exports rose 28.4 per cent to $5.967 billion; chemical products gained 9.3 per cent to $483.194 million; steel exports dipped 0.1 per cent to $1.060 billion; ship exports fell 11.1 per cent to $659.977 million.

Three Elected To Hall

TORONTO (CP) — Three men, each involved with teams or organizations entwined in the history of hockey, have been elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame in the builder category.

They are the late J. P. Bickell, founding president of Maple Leaf Gardens; Sam Pollock, vice-president and general manager of Montreal Canadiens; and W. Thayer Tutt, president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States.

The announcement was made Monday night by Clarence Campbell, chairman of the Hockey Hall of Fame governing committee and honorary chairman of the National Hockey League. This brings to 59 the total of builders elected to the Hall and to 219 the total membership, which also includes players and referees.

Player candidates will be reviewed by the selection committee and announced following its annual June meeting in Montreal. Builder and player electees will be formally inducted at the annual Hall of Fame dinner, scheduled for mid-September in Toronto.

Bickell was the man who helped Conn Smythe organize Toronto Maple Leafs.

Pat Advance Stirs a Storm

It's a searching day for Western Canada Hockey League coaches.

Brandon Wheat Kings' coach Dunc McCallum was looking for a place to hide, Ernie McLean of New Westminster Bruins was hunting for goaltenders.

For McCallum, the shock was the same one felt by Portland Winter Hawks' Ken Hodge and Howie Yanosik of Lethbridge Broncos when their teams were eliminated from the WCHL playoffs. With Brandon's bow-out Monday night, it means all three divisional champions are on the outside looking in.

Regina Pats, who threatened a surprise, eliminated Brandon although the Wheat Kings did not play. Needing to win by six goals, the Pats managed just that before 4,650 fans in Regina by defeating Flin Flon Bombers 10-4.

That completes the final divisional playoff picture. The best-of-seven series start tonight with the troubled Bruins meeting the Victoria Cougars in Memorial Arena, Regina visiting Flin Flon and Medicine Hat Tigers opening at Billings.

The Pats victory left the Bombers, Regina and Brandon all with four wins and four losses in the round-robin series. Regina and Flin Flon advanced to the best-of-seven division final because of better goals for-and-against records during the playoff series.

Dirk Graham scored four goals to spark the Pats, who out-shot Flin Flon 50-28.

Bombers lack-lustre performance in losing to Regina prompted some violent criticism.

Two of eight Brandon owners, Bob Cornell and Clare Murray, attended the game and had to be seperated from Bombers coach Mickey Keating by commissionaires outside the Flin Flon dressing room after the game.

"There were 4,500 people who saw what happened out there," said Cornell. "It's the biggest damn joke ever in the WCHL. This whole playoff format is crazy. We played 72 games for nothing."

"I predicted this would happen," Cornell added. "They (Flin Flon) just stood around tonight. When was the last time you saw a Flin Flon club not hit in the first period of any game? When the game ended Sunday in Brandon, the Bombers did a victory dance at centre ice and waved goodbye to 5,000 fans."

But Keating denied the charge.

Keating said the Bombers seldom play well in Regina.

"Maybe what happened tonight was a lack of conditioning and fatigue setting in. That's heavy ice out there—we don't play well on heavy ice."

Both the Bruins and the Cougars have injury problems heading into tonight's opener but serious edge may belong to New Westminster.

The Bruins desperately need a goaltender.

Goaltenders Carey Walker and Richard Martens of the Bruins are on the sidelines after suffering injuries in the round-robin. Walker will be out three weeks with two broken fingers on his catching hand and Martens is suffering from muscle spasms in his back. Martens might be able to play by the end of the week.

General manager Bill Shinske of the Bruins said the club was looking at a number of alternatives, including a loophole which allows a team to pick up a netminder from another league team under emergency conditions.

The emergency ruling, however, would require permission from Victoria, and Cougar manager-coach Jack Shupe, and he isn't about to give it.

New Westminster also has two farm teams which have been eliminated from the British Columbia Junior League playoffs—Abbotsford Flyers and Revelstoke Bruins.

Cougars injury list includes Bob Jansch (back), George Fritz (arm), Scott Lang (back), Leroy Heck (ankle) and Bill Jobson (shoulder).

All except Jobson are expected to start, however. If Jobson is unable to play, rookie Mickey Willgress will fill the wing spot on a line with Geordie Robertson and Jansch.

Shupe also is undecided about his starting netminder. Veteran Steve Amiss turned in a standout effort Sunday in New Westminster when the Cougars defeated the Bruins 7-3. Rookie Kevin Eastman, however, also has been a sparkling performer in the playoffs and leads all netminders with a fine 2.71 goals-against average. The injured Walker is next with a 3.62 mark while Billings' Tim Thomlison is third with a 3.77 average.

Second game of the series will be played in New Westminster on Wednesday, the third back in Memorial Arena on Friday. Game No. 4 is scheduled for Vancouver's PNE Coliseum Saturday and the fifth, if necessary, back in Victoria on Sunday.

North Island Posts Win

North Island blanked Glen Meadows 8-0 and Beacon Hill tripped Racquet Club 5-3 in men's "A" division games in the South Island Tennis League at the weekend.

In the lone women's "A" match, Oak Bay edged Glen Meadows, 4-3.

ALI, SPINKS SIGN FOR TITLE MATCH

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Muhammad Ali, predicting he will be the first man ever to win the heavyweight boxing championship three times, arrived in New Orleans on Monday to sign for a rematch against Leon Spinks.

Spinks flew in about six hours later, saying he's just as confident he'll keep the title for a while.

"He's the greatest; I'm just the latest," Spinks said.

The champion was expected in some seven hours earlier, but he bypassed his flight. Officials of Top Rank Inc., which holds the rights to the Ali-Spinks rematch, said he was visiting some old Marine Corps buddies in North Carolina.

Spinks said he has nothing but respect for Ali.

"I love the man — but not enough to let him beat me," he said. "He's still a legend."

Reds, Dodgers Battering Astros

By Associated Press

Both Cincinnati Reds and Los Angeles Dodgers know the value of a hot start in a pennant race and are making the most of their early games in the 1978 baseball season.

They're also making a shambles of Houston Astros.

The Reds started off the season in high style by beating Houston four games in a row. Then on Monday night, the Dodgers also pumped up their record to 4-0 by whipping the beleagured Astros 5-2.

However, Astros manager Bill Virdon says the repeated beatings have left no psychological marks on the team, but they have left the National League's West Division whipping boys with a sorry 0-5 record, the worst in baseball.

"The last time I was with a team that had a start like this was my last year at Pittsburgh when we started with a 4-22 record," Virdon said. "But we finished third in a 10-team league. I'm not that worried — yet."

The Dodgers, meanwhile, are just as concerned with winning as the Astros might be about losing.

"We know the Reds are getting off to a good start and that's why we're giving it all we've got," said Dodger first baseman Steve Garvey. "The key right now for us is to get off to a quick start and stay with the Reds."

In other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals walloped Pittsburgh Pirates 11-2, Atlanta Braves edged San Diego Padres 8-7 and New York Mets blanked Chicago Cubs, 6-0.

Meanwhile, in the American League, Cleveland Indians edged Boston Red Sox 4-3, Kansas City Royals extended the Baltimore Orioles' winless streak to four games with a 4-2 victory, Texas Rangers downed New York Yankees 5-2, Oakland A's nipped Seattle Mariners 1-0 and California Angels blanked Minnesota Twins, 3-0.

Ron Cey tagged a solo home run and run-scoring single to highlight the Dodger victory. Cey led off the second inning with his first homer of the season to stake Rau to an early 1-0 lead and later belted a run-scoring single in the seventh to put the Dodgers in control at 3-1.

Winner Doug Rau, who now has won seven of his last nine games against Houston, needed help from reliever Terry Forster in the seventh inning.

Mike Tyson drove in four runs, three with a home run that capped a six-run burst in the first inning, to help St. Louis whip Pittsburgh in a rain-delayed Cardinals' home opener. Keith Hernandez stroked four hits for the Cardinals and drove in two runs. His RBI output was matched by Gerry Morales and Ted Simmons in a 14-hit St. Louis attack.

Darrel Chaney's two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning gave Atlanta a comeback victory over San Diego.

Craig Swan pitched a five-hitter and Steve and Ken Henderson each drove in three runs to lead New York over Chicago.

Secret Talks Over LA Bid

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Los Angeles city officials and Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, met secretly Monday to try to settle a growing dispute over the organization of the 1984 Summer Olympics.

However, IOC officials and other sources were pessimistic — at least for the time being — that the differences will be settled. Los Angeles is the only bidder to play host to the Games, and the IOC must decide to accept or reject the offer at its next meeting May 17-18 in Athens, Greece.

The location of the meeting here was not disclosed.

Anton Calleis is heading the four-man city commission as the personal representative of Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley.

"We came here ready to negotiate every issue we differ . . . but we want to negotiate under conditions of equity and equality," said Rene Henry, a spokesman for the group. He said the IOC's conditions for accepting the Los Angeles bid "were neither just nor balanced."

Lord Killanin's aides refused comment.

However, knowledgeable sources said Mexico City, Munich and Montreal were willing to step in with bids if the Los Angeles deal falls through. The three cities have ready-made facilities and wide experience in holding international sports meets.

IOC members were reported incensed by the replies Los Angeles officials made to a questionnaire required to accompany the bid.

The California city was demanding virtual complete control of the organization of the Games, they said privately.

Calgary Suspended

EDMONTON (CP) — President Doug McKenzie of the Alberta Amateur Hockey Association said Calgary Canucks of the Alberta Junior Hockey League are suspended indefinitely for playing Merritt Centennials in an unsanctioned junior game Sunday night.

But the best-of-seven series, billed as a Western Canada Centennial Cup semi-final, is going ahead.

Canucks edged Centennials 5-4 Monday night after losing the opener 6-4 Sunday.

The AJHL was ruled ineligible for the playoff because referees and linesmen have refused all season to wear helmets as ruled by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Merritt was instructed to wait for the winner of the Saskatchewan-Manitoba playoff between Prince Albert and West Kildonan but elected to play Calgary. Officials of the Prince Albert team, defending tier-two national junior champions, initially said they would play the winner despite McKenzie's ruling but coach Terry Simpson of the Raiders indicated Monday he may be softening his stand.

"We feel Alberta should be in the playoffs," said Simpson, who said he was not sure whether the club would play if Merritt and Calgary both wound up with suspensions.

"I don't think we'd jeopardize our standing with the CAHA," said Simpson. "I'm not saying we aren't going to play; just that we have to review our stand."

Simpson said he expects the CAHA to step in "because they don't want to lose the lucrative gate."

The CAHA is scheduled to receive 55 per cent of gate receipts from Western semi-finals. The funds are held in trust for a CAHA ruling.

Hammers Capture Title

KAMLOOPS — Namdor Hammers of Victoria captured the men's title but Victoria "Y" Capitals lost out in an extremely-close women's final at the British Columbia junior volleyball championships here at the weekend.

Hammers, who also earned a berth in the Canadian championships in Montreal, May 6-7, overwhelmed B.C. Olympics 15-2, 15-6, 15-5 in the best-of-five final.

After compiling a 3-0 record in preliminary round-robin play, Hammers advanced to the final with a win over Mission while Olympics ousted University of Victoria Vikings 15-12, 15-4 in the other semi-final.

Vikings went on to take third place with a 15-8, 15-9 decision over Mission.

The women's final was one of the best in years.

Chimo of Vancouver had to go the whole way before downing Capitals 12-15, 15-6, 15-11, 13-15, 16-14 in the final. The match took over two and a half hours to complete.

Chimo, which also gained a spot in the national tournament, advanced to the final by downing Haruna of Vancouver and Thyme of Victoria while Capitals collected the berth with victories over Kanatas of Smithers and Bellevue Belles of Mission.

Mission defeated Thyme 13-15, 15-5, 15-3 to take third place.

Rockies Become Talk of Denver

By Canadian Press

The National Hockey League's franchise in Denver may have received the big boost it needed to build a solid foundation for the future.

No one really expected Colorado Rockies to make the Stanley Cup playoffs and now that they are there, no one expects them to get by Philadelphia Flyers in their best-of-three preliminary series which gets under way tonight.

The other preliminary openers have Buffalo Sabres at home to New York Rangers, Los Angeles Kings visiting Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings at Atlanta Flames.

The Rockies, in their fourth year of existence and their second in Denver after coming over from Kansas City, have got the Denver population talking hockey almost in the same manner in which they raved about Denver Broncos when they were battling for the National Football League championship.

A capacity crowd of 16,399 was on hand last Saturday night when the Rockies beat St. Louis Blues and then the Rockies' players and coaching staff waiting anxiously while the Kings finished off Vancouver Canucks with two late third-period goals in a 5-3 triumph.

No one will be shocked if the Rockies are down 1-0 when they returrn home for the second game of the series against Philadelphia on Thursday night. They have not won a game in Philadelphia in 10 tries and were 0-3 at the Spectrum.

But the Rockies did win both of their home games against the Flyers, including one costly victory Jan. 28 which saw them lose sophomore centre Paul Gardner for the rest of the season.

Gardner had 30 goals at the time and was among the top 10 scoring leaders. There is no doubt that his absence was a reason Colorado was just 2-26-12 away from Denver this season while compiling a home mark of 17-14-9.

The Rangers-Sabres series is one that Buffalo should capture if they handle New York in the same manner they have done during the past few seasons. The Rangers have not won in Buffalo since Nov. 28, 1974 and this year they lost both games in the western New York centre while getting a tie and a victory at home.

The Rangers go into tonight's contest with one victory to show in their last six starts while the Sabres captured their last two regular-season clashes afteer losing five in a row.

The Leafs, who lost 10 of their last 12 games, had two victories and three losses against the Kings this season. Toronto won the last meeting beetween the two on March 27 with Mike Palmateer getting his second 3-0 shutout of the season against Los Angeles.

Palmateer, who choked in the Leafs' quarter-final series against Philadelphia last year, will be up against Kings' netminder Rogatien Vachon, considered one of the NHL's best.

The Flames-Red Wings set promises one of the toughest of any series. Atlanta, who finished the homestretch with 10 victories and two ties in 14 games, has several large-sized players who are not likely to back down from thee Red Wings, the second most-penalized team in the NHL.

And while the eight preliminary-round participants go at each other, Montreal Canadiens, Boston Bruins, New York Islanders and Chicago Black Hawks, all divisional winners, will enjoy their bye and will wait until next Monday before they get involved in the quarter-final series.

To Boycott Is Fine, To Promote Is Nicer

After the withdrawal of two of their number just before the entry deadline, it's obvious that some professionals have launched a boycott against the Vancouver Island Open.

Only seven professionals — Cec Ferguson, who returned from the Far East at the weekend; retired Colwood pro Bill Court; Len MacDonald of Salt Spring Island; Gorge Vale assistant John Fraser; Golflands' driving range pros Terry Maxwell and Jason Ferguson, and John Morgan, unattached but playing out of Uplands — were in the field when the qualifying draw was made Monday night. Not one club pro.

They're looking for more pro money, and I can sympathize with them. Money-wise, the Island Open is not the Masters, nor even the Prince George Open.

No need to embarrass the present sponsor because there was some discontent back when the Times supplied the prizes. The prize money always has been modest and the professionals were usually understanding while they supported the tournament during the past two decades.

The original intention, especially from a sponsor's standpoint, was promotion of the game. From March through to May, the Island Open gave golf extra prominence.

As well, entrance fees from the Island Open provided the District Committee with a respectable financial boost. Over the years, the Island Open always has been the District Committee's most profitable tournament. Without it, the committee would not be able to conduct its business for the whole year.

Many pros have benefitted by gaining tournament experience and publicity.

And there have been several cases of non-golfers, acquiring interest and early knowledge while attending the Island Open as spectators, turning to take up the game in earnest. That meant new members for the clubs, new clients for the pro shops, and new customers for the teachers of the game.

That, to me, is promotion.

Nobody should realize the value of promotion more than the club professional, who now is competing with discount houses and department stores for the golfing dollar.

It is an unfortunate situation, especially since the boycott seems organized.

District Committee executives were hurt, surprised and disappointed when the situation was reported at Monday's meeting. The disappointment stems from the fact that the Island professionals did not present their "problem," officially, to the District Committee.

It is most unfortunate.

Victoria Golf Club members are rather proud of the wildlife that plays the course.

Over the past eight or nine years, some mallard ducks have made themselves right at home around the clubhouse. They were beer-drinkers that bravely waddled into the 19th hole and wouldn't leave until treated to some of their favorite beverage.

Spring has been moving along and there's some concern around the Oak Bay club. The imbibing mallards haven't returned.

However, a new hero showed up last week. Members noticed a small bush rabbit sunning himself on cement steps leading to the seventh tee. Br'er rabbit ignored all golfers strolling by but he didn't take too kindly to a dog.

Members swear it's true. The rabbit chased the dog. An embarassed owner finally coralled his dog, and both headed for another part of the course in order to resume their stroll.

The rabbit went back to sunning himself.

Gretzky Unhappy With Sault Club

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Wayne Gretzky, one of the most talked about young players in Canadian junior hockey ranks since the emergence of Bobby Orr, is thinking about terminating his contract with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

The 17-year-old Ontario Major Junior Hockey League rookie, second in the league scoring race the past season, admitted today he was concerned for his grades at school and with Greyhounds management for not living up to some of its verbal promises.

The London Free Press reported that Gretzky would be asking for his release or to be traded to another club and that he was considering going to court to challenge the contract that he signed as a 16-year old.

Gretzky, a scoring sensation in minor hockey, was the Greyhounds' No. 1 pick in last year's midget draft and, after leading the league in scoring through much of the year, finished second with a rookie record 182 points, including 70 goals—another record for first year players.

Commenting on the London report that he was unhappy with his Grade 11 marks and the amount of school time missed this year, Gretzky confirmed he was finding it a problem combining education with a hockey career in the Soo.

"It's hard, I don't care what anybody says. When you're always getting home at three in the morning it's hard to get up for early-morning classes. If you get to as many classes as possible and get more than 60 per cent you're doing good."

His father, Walter, said in a telephone interview from his Brantford home that Wayne was upset, particularly, after Greyhounds general manager Angelo Bumbacco did not provided a tutor at the club's expense as he had promised.

Bumbacco claimed the team had acquired a tutor for Gretzky, but when asked if the club was paying for the tutor replied: "I'll have to check that out."

"Wayne is upset about his ice time," Bumbacco concluded. When Paul Theriault took over as coach from Muzz MacPherson on Feb. 21, Gretzky saw his ice time reduced by as much as 10 minutes a game.

Greyhounds president Jim McAuley said today it was the first time he was aware of Gretzky's disenchantment. He said Theriault planned to talk today with returning players about their schooling, which includes tutoring.

Gretzky, however, said he would prefer a trade to one of the other Ontario clubs. Although he wouldn't identify the team, it is believed he would prefer one of four clubs—London Knights, Niagara Falls Flyers, Kitchener Rangers or Toronto Marlboros—which are close to the Gretzky home in Brantford.

Coach of the Year

DALLAS (AP) — Billy MacMillan, who in his rookie season as a head coach guided Fort Worth Texans to the championship, has been named coach-of-the-year in the Central Hockey League.

STEVE CAUTHEN

Cauthen Draws a Crowd

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jockey Steve Cauthen attracted a record opening-night crowd of 11,890 punters Monday to Exhibition Park and the teen-age riding sensation didn't disappoint his followers.

Cauthen, 17, was given five mounts and each time his horse was the favorite. He didn't ride a winner until the final race of the card, however, guiding Vita Gal home by five lengths in the 10th race.

The Kentucky native, who finished the Santa Anita, Calif., spring meet Sunday as the second-leading rider, was an even-money favorite or better in all his races. He rode two seconds, a third and a fourth over the five-eighths mile track.

The crowd broke the opening-night record of 11,707 set last year and the mutuel handle was $918,587 on a cold, blustery evening.

A light rain which fell for about two hours ended just before the first race and the track was rated fast.

Cauthen, who rode 488 winners in 1977 and won more than $6 million in purses, had his first mount in the fourth race. Noble Purchase finished third behind Coaltown Ghost and Hesa Thief as they combined for a payoff of $102.20 in the exactor pool.

The young jockey had second-place horses in the next two races as Lippy Larry finished 1½ length behind Beachmaster in the fourth, while Very Knowledgeable nipped Undercover Hero by a half-length in the sixth.

Cauthen also was aboard the favorite, Keep It Coming, in the featured ninth race, a $5,300 allowance over six furlongs. The best Cauthen could do was bring the even-money favorite up to fourth behind Saucy Verdict, Lucky Times and Skyride.

Jockey Ken Skinner, the leading rider here in 1977 with 116 wins in 108 racing days, rode Saucy Verdict to the win, his second winner of the night. Saucy Verdict paid $7.80 to win.

Cauthen rated Vita Gal well in the final race and she pulled away from the pack coming around the final turn for home in the $2,600 claiming race, also over six furlongs.

Vita Gal paid $3.80 to win, $3.60 to place and $2.90 to show.

Dennis Tierney was aboard Twilight Madness in the opening race and the win was his first in two years. The popular veteran sat out the 1977 season because of a back injury which required two operations to correct.

Braves Look for New Town

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — While Buffalo Braves' officials say they won't make a final decision for at least a month, an informed source believes chances of the National Basketball Association franchise remaining here are "very slight."

Attendance fell far below the expectations of owner John Y. Brown and president Norm Sonju. Only 2,300 season tickets were sold after a pre-season goal of 7,000. Attendance averaged 6,156 a game this season, after officials had hoped for a 9,000 average.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said: "The odds are squarely against the team being left in Buffalo. If they can find a workable new location, they're going."

However an NBA owner who also requested anonymity, said:

"I'm not sure they have a better market to go to. Buffalo has drawbacks, but so do any of the new cities they might move the team to.

"Frankly, I don't think pro basketball would work in the Miami area. Dallas is a football town. Louisville is a small market with strong competition from college basketball."

The two sources say the most likely alternative would be Toronto, with Birmingham, Ala., also receiving strong consideration.

The owner, who said Brown would have little trouble getting NBA approval for a move, said the club could be moved to Toronto where it would split its schedule between Toronto and Buffalo.

But Sonju isn't excited about that possibility.

"I'm not sure what the response would be to American ownership of a team there. Secondly, it's very much a hockey town, even more so than Buffalo. And third, you have to deal with the person who owns the building. It's much better when the city owns the building.

"And I'm not convinced how people would react in Buffalo to splitting the season. I don't know if they'd feel rejected."

Brown said he hasn't begun weighing the alternatives.

Some published reports have said Brown will sell out businessman Harry Mangurian, who earlier this year bought 50 per cent of Brown's stock. Mangurian, a former Rochester resident now living in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., would keep the team in Buffalo and schedule some games in Rochester, the report said.

Montrealers Now Enjoying Olympic Facilities

MONTREAL (CP) — There may have been some public outcry about the cost of building the sports facilities for the 1976 Summer Olympics—a $1-billion, two-week extravaganza for the world's elite athletes—but much of the rancor has disappeared as thousands of Montrealers put the facilities to good use.

From May 1, 1977, to Jan. 1, 1978, 646,585 persons visited the Claude Robillard Centre, 1,000 cyclists a week are using the Velodrome, and the swimming pool averages 6,700 visitors weekly.

These facilities along with the Ile Notre Dame basin and Etienne Desmarteau Centre have become athletic and social rallying points for citizens ranging in age from six to 76.

Leo Deragon, retired cabinetmaker, described the Robillard facility as "a wonderful place."

"There are so many things to do," Deragon enthused while taking a breather after his fitness class had completed a three-minute stint of jogging.

There is a variety of activities for everyone, such as fencing, weightlifting, swimming, tennis, squash, badminton, archery and jogging for adults.

For younger users there are those activities plus gymnastics, basketball and other competitions geared to children.

Most activities at the Robillard Centre and at the other Olympic installations are open to the public and not restricted to the elite or sports-club members.

At the spectacularly designed Velodrome, anybody can ride the Olympic track during the public hours—8 p.m. to midnight—at least four nights each week for only $1 for a 1½-hour session. And that dollar includes rental of a Velodrome track bike (no brakes) and helmet.

"It's quite a deal," said Rene Cyr, the former six-day professional rider and now the Velodrome's sports director. "We have kids as young as eight, and on Wednesday nights we have a group of men aged between 65 and 70."

No more than 25 novice riders are allowed on the track at the same time, for obvious reasons. But the building is open from 7 a.m. to midnight each day, and more than 1,000 cyclists a week are using it.

Next door, the Olympic swimming pool is also doing big business. There are 750 persons enrolled for classes in the spring session, a 25-per-cent increase from the previous season.

"And I think we'll have another increase of 25 per cent for the summer classes," said pool manager Guy Lapointe.

Enrolment is split about evenly between adults and children. Most pool time is used by organized classes, clubs and groups, but there is open swimming for adults three evenings each week with a $1 fee and for children three afternoons each week at 50 cents.

Courses are available in ordinary swimming at all levels, scuba diving, synchronized swimming, diving and lifesaving. There are also specialized swimming courses for the elderly, handicapped and, soon to come, a class for expectant mothers.

The swim hall, which contains a 50-metre competition pool, diving pool, training pool, wading pool and a 66-foot-deep scuba pool, also has space for badminton courts, and team handball and floor hockey practice areas where temporary seating was installed during the Games.

At the Etienne Desmarteau Centre, 166,895 people have taken advantage of its two ice rinks, double gymnasium and weightlifting rooms. The centre was the venue for basketball during the Olympics.

On Notre Dame Island, the Olympic basin is expecting about 10,000 city youngsters to sign up for courses in rowing, canoeing, kayaking and sailing this summer, double the number that participated last year.

Timing Of Tax Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective dates of tax and economic changes announced in Monday night's federal budget:

Timing of provincial retail sales tax reductions rests with the provinces. In most cases, the reductions likely will be almost immediate.

Retroactive to Jan. 1—Additional write-offs for companies involved in research and development.

Retroactive to Jan. 1—Tax incentive rules modified for Canadian films.

Retroactive to Jan. 1—Federal tax reduction in Northwest Territories to facilitate introduction of territorial income tax.

April 10—Machinery, equipment and facility costs for getting more oil out of existing wells eligible for depletion allowances of $1 for each $2 spent.

April 10—Depletion deduction limit for certain costs on non-conventional oil projects increased to 50 per cent of total profit.

April 10—Tax-free ownership transfers apply to incorporated family farms.

April 10—Plants for upgrading heavy oil deemed to be manufacturing and processing facilities.

April 10—Additional capital cost allowance provided for railways.

July 1—Renewal of tariff reductions on wide range of consumer goods.

Taxes on Oil Industry Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has cut taxes for the oil industry to promote more production from western oil reserves.

The targets are existing wells and heavy oil and oil sands deposits of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

No dollar amount is given for the package but Finance Minister Jean Chretien in announcing the tax cuts Monday in his budget said he is confident they will mean more domestic oil.

The budget says that effective immediately special equipment needed to pump more oil from existing wells will be eligible to earn depletion at the rate of $1 for every $2 spent. The current rate is $1 for every $3 spent.

Such depletion allowances are deducted from profits before a company begins calculating its income taxes.

At present, only 25 per cent to 30 per cent of the oil in a well can be recovered. The government says the new equipment eligible for the tax cut must be used for "tertiary recovery," such as pumping steam into the well to force more oil out.

The budget also says effective immediately the ceiling for deductions of such depletion allowances is being increased to 50 per cent of all profits. It now is 25 per cent and applies only to resource profits.

Eligible investments include the tertiary recovery equipment and some of the facilities needed to mine the Alberta oil sands deposits.

Chretien said he also wants to make it plain that plants to refine heavy oil, such as the $750 million project now planned in Saskatchewan, will be treated for tax purposes as a manufacturing plant. This makes them eligible for faster write-offs of investments and a reduced tax rate.

Chretien said the government continues to place high priority on the need to boost domestic oil production, reducing reliance on expensive imported oil.

Many tax incentives already exist for the oil industry, he said, but increasing attention is being paid to the heavy oil and oil sands deposits "which can be tapped only by advanced technology and multi-billion investments."

The tax changes outlined in the budget are intended "to get them moving now," the minister said.

The budget also includes new tax benefits of $50 million a year to encourage companies to increase spending on research and development, which the minister says will make the country's treatment of such spending "one of the most generous in the world."

"The after-tax cost to companies of $1 worth of additional expenditure will be reduced to as little as 20 cents," Chretien said.

JOKING WITH REPORTERS, Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister Chretien enter the House of Commons Monday night for presentation of the budget, expected to be followed this week by an election announcement.

RRSPs to Be More Flexible

OTTAWA (CP) — Owners of registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs) are to be given more freedom in choosing how to invest the money they have accumulated for retirement, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said Monday.

Chretien told the Commons in his budget speech RRSP holders will no longer have to purchase life annuities from insurance companies by age 71 but will be given two new options:

—Investment of RRSP savings into a new fixed-term annuity designed to provide benefits to age 90.

—Investment of RRSP savings into a new, self-administered Registered Retirement Income Fund (RRIF) which would allow for a payout increasing each year to age 90, thus more or less keeping pace with inflation.

Any institution now providing RRSPs would be permitted to provide the new investment vehicles and transfer must occur between age 60 and 71. Finance department officials predict better rates of return because of increased competition for the savings dollar. At present, only life insurance companies are permitted to sell life annuities.

In the event of death before age 90, the money remaining in the RRIF or in the fixed-term annuity would be taxed as a lump sum. The balance would then be paid into the estate.

There would also be an option for the spouse of the deceased annuity holder to continue to receive payments for the balance of the term of the annuity.

The changes are likely to be warmly welcomed by consumer groups and pensioners as well as trust companies and credit unions, groups which have been putting pressure on the federal government to break the insurance company monopoly in the field.

RRSPs are one of the most rapidly-growing forms of retirement investment for middle and upper income taxpayers and about $3 billion was contributed last year. About two million Canadians hold RRSPs.

They offer a significant incentive to save for retirement because contributions, up to certain limits, are tax deductible.

A member of a registered pension plan may contribute up to 20 per cent of income to a maximum of $3,500 a year. Those who are self-employed or who are not members of a pension plan may contribute 20 per cent of income up to $5,500 a year.

But by age 71 under current rules, the RRSPs accumulated must be deregistered and tax paid on the lump sum or a life annuity purchased from an insurance company. Anyone who has accumulated significant savings finds it better to purchase an annuity than to pay a large tax on the lump sum.

In the event of death of the annuity holder, the money is kept by the insurance company unless a guaranteed-term annuity has been chosen. In that case, it is paid to the estate for the balance of the term remaining.

Regardless of which of the two new investment options is chosen, the payout period must stretch to age 90, finance department officials say.

If RRSPs are deregistered at age 65, the payout period would be 25 years. If deregistered at age 70, the payout would be over 20 years. There would also be an option to choose the age of the youngest spouse for calculating the payout period to provide income protection in the event of the death of elder spouse.

If the fixed-term annuity were chosen, the amount would be paid in equal instalments to age 90.

But if the RRIF were chosen, the money would remain invested and the holder would withdraw a specific fraction of benefits each year — capital plus accumulated investment earnings — to age 90. The benefits would increase each year at a rate reflecting interest earned on the investment.

At age 70, the holder would withdraw one-twentieth of the fund, the next year one-nineteenth, the next year one-eighteenth and so on until the remainder would be withdrawn in the twentieth year.

If $1,000 were invested at age 70 at eight per cent interest, $50 would be paid in the first year. This would increase to $54 in the second year, to $58.32 in the third and to about $63 in the fourth. By the 20th year, the payment would be $215.79, which would exhaust the fund.

★ INCOME FUND CALCULATED

OTTAWA (CP) — Following is a table designed to illustrate a new option for holders of registered retirement savings plans at age 70.

The first column represents a taxpayer's age on Jan. 1 and the second the percentage of plan assets to be paid. Assuming eight-per-cent interest, the third and fourth columns represent the balance at the start of the year and the payments during the year.

| Age | Per Cent | Balance | Paym'ts |
|---|---|---|---|
| 70 | 5 | $1,000.00 | $ 50.00 |
| 71 | 5.26 | 1,026.00 | 54.00 |

It is assumed that the required withdrawals from the fund are made at the beginning of the year that simple interest is credited at year-end and that no change occurs in the market value of the investments.

No-Frills Budget Down to Business

a budget just before a general election expected in June.

At a news conference later, he said "I did not want to buy my way into an election."

But opposition MPs dismissed the budget as an election ploy that will have little long-term effect in curing high inflation or unemployment.

Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance critic, claimed the more than one million unemployed are being "sacrificed on the altar of political expediency."

He also claimed the government was forced into a budget because it may soon be forced to borrow more money abroad to prop up the Canadian dollar's value. Foreign bankers demanded an accounting of the country's financial position, Stevens claimed.

Leaders of organized labor described the budget as an "innocuous response" to the problems of the unemployed.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, called it a "half-way, half-year measure" — a reference to the fact that the sales tax cut will last for six months in most regions.

Reaction in B.C. to the budget ranged from enthusiasm to confusion to condemnation, with at least one industry sector disappointed that nothing was offered to it and at least one observer saying it tries to make a show of generosity while giving little away.

Don Selman, president of the Vancouver Board of Trade, said staggering deficits have left Finance Minister Jean Chretien little room to manoeuvre.

"The minister is correct in his policy of trying to restrain inflation and restrict government spending, but it is unfortunate that the government does not have enough flexibility in dealing with the economy and could not provide broader incentives for an increase in capital spending by the private sector."

Tax lawyer Jacques Barbeau said the budget "will be politically popular but he (Chretien) has gone as far as he could to provide the proper climate for an election at the least cost to the government."

Barbeau said the country's cash deficit, at a record $11.5 billion, is so high Chretien couldn't afford other forms of tax cuts.

Inflation will wipe out the effect of the temporary reduction in sales tax in most provinces and "the nominal short-term benefits will be more than offset by the long-term readjustments of the dollar," said Barbeau.

Chuck McVeigh, president of the Construction Labor Relations Association which bargains for major contractors in the province, said the federal budget offered little to his industry.

"I'm not convinced it will do much for employment," said McVeigh. "In our industry, that would take instilling confidence in the purchasers of construction and that doesn't show up here."

Spokesmen for B.C.'s mining industry also were disappointed that the federal budget didn't bring some immediate action to co-ordinate mining taxation between Ottawa and the provinces. The B.C. mining industry, which now pays a combined federal-provincial tax of 56.75 per cent, has been seeking relief for years.

Commons debate on the budget opens Wednesday. Prime Minister Trudeau has already said that if the opposition is making politics out of the budget he will dissolve Parliament and call a general election.

In his budget speech, Chretien said the main requirement is "hard work, imagination, determination and discipline" to restore economic health.

At the same time, Chretien said the government's overall cash deficit will rise to $11.5 billion in the financial year that started April 1 on total outlays of $52.15 billion and income of $40.65 billion.

This is a 35-per-cent rise in the deficit to be covered by borrowing, excluding transactions in support of the Canadian dollar, up from the $8.5 billion deficit for the tax year ended March 31.

The finance minister said he has "shaded down" his forecast of five-per-cent real economic growth this year, although he hopes for an increase near that rate.

Chretien estimated a seven per cent rise in the consumer price index this year compared with his earlier forecasts of six per cent. Acceptable wage rises are held to six per cent for most workers this year by the government's anti-inflation guides.

The budget says there should be some modest decline in national unemployment, which now has more than one million workers on the jobless lines, if growth and price rise targets are met.

Chretien warned that Canadians are going to have to accept higher prices for some goods, particularly imported products, without expecting any increase in their incomes. This was because wage and price controls are gradually coming off this year starting Friday.

Quebec has not yet agreed to go along with the main feature of Chretien's budget, the proposal to cut retail sales taxes temporarily in return for federal compensation. But officials said Quebec has been asked to reply to Ottawa's proposal "within a few days."

The proposal calls for the federal government to pay the four Atlantic provinces the full cost of a three-point cut in retail sales taxes for six months. That would reduce Newfoundland's retail tax to eight per cent and that of Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick to five per cent. All have agreed to the federal proposal.

The other provinces — except Alberta, which has no retail sales tax — have been offered federal compensation equal to the revenue loss from a cut of two per cent in sales tax. As a condition, they must cut one per cent from the tax rates at their own expense but they may vary the period over six or nine months.

Ontario and Manitoba propose to reduce their retail sales tax by three points for six months to four per cent and two per cent respectively.

B.C. and Saskatchewan are applying the federal compensation to a two-point reduction for the first six months. They will reduce their sales-tax rate by only two points — to five per cent and three per cent respectively — but extend the reduction for a nine-month period.

For the final three months, they will absorb the cost of the reduction by themselves.

Top finance officials told reporters at a background briefing that the government felt a retail sales tax cut was the best way to encourage consumers to spend, particularly if the cuts were large and for only a brief time.

One-third of the total estimated cost of $1.15 billion, assuming Quebec participates, is to be covered by participating non-Atlantic provinces. Half the rest will add to the federal debt and the remainder is to be met by unspecified reductions in federal spending plans.

Officials have known since mid-March that a budget was necessary to stimulate lagging economic growth. Chretien has been stalling opposition demands for a budget for weeks by saying it is too early to know whether earlier measures in last October's mini-budget were effective.

"By March, we had to advise the minister his hopes for five-per-cent real growth last fall were not likely to be met without further measures," a senior finance official said.

With the budget's proposed measures, national unemployment should be held down by between two-tenths and four-tenths of one per cent, finance officials said. But they refused to estimate the level they expect jobless rates to reach.

The budget represents an attempt to walk a fine line between applying stimulus to the economy and maintaining confidence in the weakened Canadian dollar, now worth about 87½ cents U.S.

FAIRER FARM TAX

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective immediately, incorporated family farms can be transferred to a son or daughter without payment of capital gains tax, it was announced in the federal budget Monday night.

Tax-free transfers have been allowed for unincorporated family farming operations but incorporated farms had been excluded. Many farmers have complained that this is unfair.

A finance department spokesman said that there are roughly 15,000 incorporated farms in Canada, many of them family operations. Many farmers preferred to incorporate to gain tax advantages given to small businesses.

Without the special rule, a son or daughter taking over the family farm from his or her parents would have to pay the gains tax. The rule does not free them totally from this tax; they must pay it if they ever sell it to someone else.

SECRECY SLIPPED

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien indicated Monday that he is willing to sacrifice the ancient custom of budget secrecy in order to make advance tax deals with provinces.

Traditionally, federal budgets are prepared in secret to prevent any group or individual from cashing in on advance knowledge of new tax and spending plans.

But Chretien, who announced provincial sales tax reductions as part of his budget Monday, said such prohibitions may be unrealistic.

"Can I have a deal with the provinces without talking to them?"

In Britain, budget leaks traditionally lead to resignations by finance ministers and their deputies.

But Chretien said if anyone should resign because of leaked information from his budget, it should be a provincial minister.

Budget Won't Help Dollar

NEW YORK (CP) — A leading U.S. financial analyst says Finance Minister Jean Chretien's budget is unlikely to make the Canadian dollar any firmer on foreign markets.

David Palmer of the Bank of America, New York, said in an interview that Chretien's budget is "at best, neutral."

The budget, which provided a federal-provincial arrangement for short-term reductions in retail sales taxes and some tax breaks for businesses, does little to bolster the Canadian dollar on foreign exchange markets, Palmer said.

"I don't think there is anything Chretien said that would lead me to believe the Canadian dollar will be any steadier. I don't think there is anything in the speech that's going to drive it up."

Palmer noted that the budget does not contain a cut in personal income taxes. Such a reduction, he said, would have been viewed as inflationary on the foreign exchange markets and would place even more pressure on the beleaguered Canadian currency.

On the other hand, he added, there is no indication that the federal government plans any strong intervention to bolster the dollar.

"I think the foreign exchange market would have liked to have seen more interventionist measures."

He said it is important to differentiate between a budget that is good domestically and another that is good internationally.

"Internationally, this (the budget) is not good enough to do much for the Canadian dollar," Palmer maintained.

He noted that in trading shortly before the budget was made public Monday, the Canadian dollar fell sharply on the New York market to about 87.40 U.S. cents and then climbed slightly to close at 87.54.

U.K. Goods Going Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The government announced a one-year extension of tariff reductions on a wide range of imports Monday as an anti-inflation measure. But an end to preferential treatment for some other British and Irish products will likely mean some higher prices to consumers.

Temporary tariff cuts — applied in 1973 — were due to end June 30, 1978, but will be extended to June 30, 1979, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said in his budget speech.

The extension applies to such goods as raw suger, motor vehicle parts, cameras and films, vacuum cleaners, pharmaceuticals, chinaware, bottles and hand tools. Imports of those goods were valued at $1.5 billion in 1977.

But the government will keep authority to withdraw any reduced rates that adversely affect employment or production in Canada.

Chretien also said the British Preferential Tariff was being withdrawn from a number of imports from Britain and Ireland as a means of aiding Canadian manufacturers.

The list includes confectionery, knitted garments, cranes for mounting on trucks, certain diesel engines and equipment used in community antenna television transmission lines.

Tax Break Eyed for Women

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government indicated Monday that it intends to swing the weight of the Income Tax Act behind provincial laws giving women more property rights in marriage.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien in his budget speech announced that technical changes will be made in the act to protect wives from undue capital gains taxes as new provincial property-sharing laws come into effect.

Officials described the move as a first step and a significant change in direction, perhaps to be followed by others as provincial laws on property rights in marriage are changed.

Virtually all provinces are changing such laws.

Some have complained that the Income Tax Act provisions, which Chretien intends to change, offset any advantages to wives when a marriage breaks down.

Officials used as an example of how the technical changes will work a $10,000 cottage originally bought by the husband in Ontario and worth $25,000 at the time of divorce or legal separation.

Under provincial law, husband and wife would each have a half-interest in the $25,000.

The husband would have a capital gain of $7,500 because he would be deemed to have paid his half, $5,000, for the cottage. He would have to pay capital-gains taxes on half the $7,500, or $3,750.

The wife, however, because she hadn't paid anything for the cottage, would be liable to capital gains taxes on half her $12,500, or $6,250.

The federal tax change will mean that the husband will be deemed, when he buys the cottage, to have transferred half his interest to his wife for $5,000.

That $5,000 would be deducted from the $12,500 she receives if the cottage is sold on breakdown of the marriage.

In Ontario and most other provinces, the new property laws will apply only to property divided at marriage breakdown. In Saskatchewan, they will apply to property owned by all married couples.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 20-year-old man charged with second-degree murder has waived his preliminary hearing on a lesser-included charge of manslaughter.

David Arthur Cathers of Terrace appeared before Judge William Ostler in Victoria provincial court Monday, and defence lawyer Leo McGrady of Vancouver waived Cathers' right to the hearing.

Cathers was originally charged with second-degree murder in the Feb. 15 death of 20-year-old Gerhardt Malcolm Kirmhse of 587 Birch. Cathers was a guest at 11091 West Saanich Road in North Saanich where Kirmhse was discovered bludgeoned. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Resthaven Hospital in Sidney.

A couple believed to be from California were charged with the rare offence of "personation" for gain and remanded in custody until today for a bail hearing and election of trial method.

Peter Glen Powell, 20, and Jeanne Marie Powell, 19, of 1460 Taunton, were charged with personation for gain, the gain being establishment as Canadian citizens by use of a false birth certificate.

Judge Fred Green, Crown counsel Don Laughton and legal-aid lawyer Scott Marshall all agreed the case should be set over one day.

Greggory John Andley, 23, no fixed address, had the courtroom laughing after a charge of possession of MDA for the purpose of trafficking was dropped by Crown counsel Malcolm Macaulay.

Andley first appeared last Friday before Judge Blake Allan and, at Macaulay's request, was held in custody until Monday so that an analysis of the substance could be made in Vancouver.

Macaulay entered a stay of proceedings Monday, informing Green the substance turned out not to be MDA.

"What was it?" Andley asked as he was leaving the courtroom.

As the laughter was dying down, Macaulay turned to the judge and said he was hoping Andley would be able to tell him. Macaulay then indicated it might have been flour or starch.

"How about bus fare back to Sooke?" Andley asked as he was led back to the cell area for release.

A 39-year-old man originally charged with possession of stolen property had two more charges added and had bail denied by Ostler.

William Bruce Torrance, 1088 Atlas Place, was also charged with smuggling and possession of illegally imported goods under the Customs Act.

The charges are in connection with a substantial amount of goods taken in a California jewelry heist.

Bail had been set at $1,000 on a previous occasion but the new charges resulted in a new bail hearing and Ostler denied it. A preliminary hearing date of July 10 had been set previously.

Defence lawyer Dorothy Fetterley waived the preliminary hearing for 17-year-old Patricia Joan Crowe, 4044 Raymond, charged with possession of marijuana, hashish and MDA for the purposes of trafficking and simple possession of cocaine and LSD.

An election of trial by judge without jury was made previously.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Allan Walter Bishop, 26, of 722 Pembroke, $400; Darrell Kenneth Planes, 22, of 1950 Kaltasin, $350; and Gordon Curtis Planes, 17, of 1954 Caldwell, $175.

Darrell Kenneth Planes was fined an additional $50 for driving without a valid driver's licence.

Flynt Emotional Wreck

people

CHICAGO — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt, shot during an obscenity trial, is a helpless cripple and an emotional wreck, Chicago Tribune columnist Bob Greene wrote Monday.

In the intensive care unit of Emory Hospital in Atlanta, Ga., Greene conducted the first interview with Flynt since the publisher was gunned down outside a Lawrenceville, Ga., courthouse March 6.

"They had prepared me for it to be bad. But it was worse than I had imagined," Greene wrote.

"He was strapped into a sitting position. Tubes ran in and out of his body, feeding him medicines and removing wastes. Morphine and barbiturates had turned his eyes into cue balls. I thought he could not see me.

"But he did, even though his eyes would not focus. He began to weep, and then to sob."

" 'Bob,' he said, the tears flowing down his face, 'I want to go home.'"

Greene said Flynt's wife Althea, the nominal publisher of the magazine, had told him that Flynt thought he had been in a serious car accident.

But Greene said Flynt whispered through tears: "They shot me."

The columnist asked: "Who?"

"It doesn't matter who did it. It only matters what did it. What? What?" Greene said Flynt told him.

Greene said the publisher told him as his wife wiped his tears that his religious conversion was serious.

" 'I know I've done some wrong things' he said. 'Oh . . . God . . .'"

PULL THE PLUG: PARENTS

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. — The parents of 15-year-old Andra Rubinelli, convinced their comatose daughter is legally dead, are seeking permission to disconnect her respirator.

"We believe her dead," said Peter Rubinelli, father of the second-year high school student who was stricken by a rare blood disease.

The Rubinellis' petition to have their daughter declared legally dead is being heard in Superior Court today.

Attorney John Anderton, acting on behalf of the Rubinellis, said Monday Indiana's law refers to death as cessation of bodily functions.

"It was passed long before they had respirators or any such devices that raised the questions of brain death," he said.

Doctors say Andra, an honor student who was active in her high school French club, suffers from thrombocytopenic purpura, in which a deficiency of platelets in the blood causes bleeding in the head. She lapsed into a coma March 26 at Walters Hospital here and was placed in intensive care.

Playwright Slay Suspect

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. — An aspiring actress who auditioned for the lead role in a play called Hammer was bludgeoned to death by the playwright with a sledge hammer, a detective said.

Three men and a woman were arrested Monday, but their names were not released pending issuance of warrants that are expected to charge them in connection with the slaying of Patricia Cowan, Detective Peter Keliher said.

Police said warrants would be sought today for the playwright, his girl-friend — who allegedly watched the attack — and two other men.

Ms. Keliher's four-year-old son, Dequan, also was struck with the hammer, Keliher said. The child remained in hospital with serious injures today.

Ms. Cowan, 20, was paid $100 for reading the part at the home of the playwright Sunday morning, said Brenda Murray Starr, a friend of the slain woman.

The actress was playing a scene in which a married couple are arguing, Keliher said. At the height of the argument, the playwright grabbed a five-pound sledge hammer and struck Ms. Cowan several times in the head from behind, Keliher said.

Drugs Bothering Betty Ford

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Betty Ford, long in fragile health, has checked herself into a hospital for treatment of what the former first lady describes as an "insidious" problem of "overmedicating myself."

The acting superintendent of the U.S. Naval Hospital where Mrs. Ford was admitted at Monday — two days after her 60th birthday — denied that she was in any way addicted to drugs.

"It's an insidious thing and I mean to rid myself of its damaging effects," said Mrs. Ford. "There have been too many other things I've overcome to be forever burdened with this."

Her husband, former president Gerald Ford, said later in the day that he will continue his schedule of appearances in Alabama and will not return to California before Friday.

Talks in Interior With CUPE Break

REVELSTOKE (CP) — Contract talks between the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the association representing 10 Interior muncipalities broke off Monday after the union made a counter offer on the issue of contracting out and job security.

Union spokesman Jim Kelly said CUPE was willing to allow this municipality to contract out as long as no employees lost their jobs. The union had earlier been seeking a no-contracting-out provision.

Kelly said he thought CUPE and the Okanagan Mainline Municipal Labor Relations Association agreed on the job-security issue but the association has demanded that settlements must be reached in all member municipalities before any agreement is ratified.

CUPE has been trying to negotiate each municipal agreement individually and Kelly said the ratification matter is unacceptable to the union.

The 27 union members here have been on strike since March 2 and the association served lockout notice last week on CUPE locals in the other municipalities. About 1,100 civic workers are affected.

If the recent round of talks failed, the association had threatened to implement the lockout and the union said it would take the OMMLRA before the Labor Relations Board on a charge of bargaining in bad faith.

A complete lockout would be the province's most widespread municipal labor dispute, affecting Kamloops, Kelowna, Keremeos, Oliver, Osoyoos, Princeton, Penticton, Summerland and Salmon Arm.

Municipal contracts expired Dec. 31, 1977. Details on wages and other contract items were not available.

Meanwhile, Prince George outside workers have voted 95 per cent in favor of strike action to back up contract demands.

The 250 civic employees, members of Local 799 of CUPE, gave no indication when a strike might be called. The union has called for the appointment of a mediation officer.

Local president Reno Fornari said no action would be taken until the mediator makes his report.

The union is seeking parity with civic workers in the Lower Mainland and an 18-month contract.

Indian Fights Tax on Hydro

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court was told Monday that B.C. Hydro's electricity becomes the personal property of the customer the moment it enters the household.

David Mossop, lawyer for Lillian Brown, a Haida Indian, told Justice J. A. MacDonald that Indians still living on reserves should be exempt from provincial sales tax on a B.C. Hydro bill.

Mossop told the court that the Indians' case rests on the federal Indian Act, which exempts Indians living on reserves from being taxed on any of their personal property.

Mrs. Brown lives in Skidegate on the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Legal Flurry In Trial

Four men went on trial Monday in county court amid a flurry of legal moves by defence counsel.

Russell Allan King, 22, Roderick Maher, 44, Lloyd Alvin Moffat, 22, and Robert Lawrence Paul, 35, are charged with escaping from William Head Institution Sept. 5 and being unlawfully at large from that jail on the same date.

They are also charged with escaping lawful custody in the city Sept. 6 and being unlawfully at large from the jail in the city on that date.

King, Moffat and Paul are also accused of theft of a motor vehicle.

With the indictment read and pleas taken, defence counsel then sought certain "particulars" or details from the prosecution, and Judge Richard Low directed that a summary of the sentences the men were serving be produced.

When the trial resumed in the afternoon, the defence sought a trial within a trial regarding certain documents intended to be introduced by the prosecution. But Judge Low said this was not necessary and the court would deal with each document.

Crown counsel Richard Law called his first witness, Dawn Jauschnigg, sentencing administrator at William Head last September, who produced certain transfer documents related to Russell Allan King. They were entered as exhibits for identification purposes only.

During one of the legal arguments, the lawyer for Maher, Moffat and Paul, M.J. Rhodes of New Westminster, said the prosecution cannot show compliance with the recently-proclaimed federal Human Rights Act which contains a section saying every individual must be consulted and must consent before use can be made of personal information.

Rhodes argued that the wording of the new law prevented the prosecution from seeking to prove the four men were in lawful custody in the form chosen by the prosecution, although the documents could be introduced in a variety of other ways.

He said the prosecution can't show consent and therefore the documents can't be used for an administrative purpose. When Judge Low asked if there was nothing in the act which exempts criminal proceedings, Rhodes said there wasn't and the law was binding on the Crown.

This aspect of the defence objection will be dealt with later in the trial, which is set to last until Friday.

Oak Bay Rejects Beach Tea Trailer

Two people who want to set up a mobile trailer concession at Willows Beach in Oak Bay got a quick rebuff from Oak Bay council Monday night.

R.C. Comerford and W.P. Comerford, 1330 Rudlin, said their preferred location would be along the Esplanade or the most available beach access.

"We attempt to create an English atmosphere by specializing in tea (hot or iced) and crumpets. We also offer cold natural fruit juices," they said in a letter.

Council declined the request with Mayor Brian Smith saying he found the idea of trailers vending drinks and hot dogs really revolting.

"Even if they make the best iced tea, I'd be opposed," he said.

Ald. Peter Bunn said if the request was allowed Willows Beach would be like the Causeway at the Inner Harbor.

In other business, council received and filed several letters of complaint about a chain-link fence being constructed by the municipality marking off the boundary between the private property of Dr. E.H. Elkington from the municipal Anderson Hill Park in south Oak Bay.

Smith said the issue is an old one and the only thing which is new is the fence. He said part of an agreement between Oak Bay and Elkington, under which Oak Bay got four of Elkington's lots and in return closed part of a right-of-way, for a net advantage to the municipality of half an acre, was that Oak Bay would put up a fence.

He said council made the agreement with Elkington several years ago so it could buy other property on the hill with one-third financial assistance from the provincial government.

Asked by a resident why the fence needs to be six feet high, Smith said he would be happy to look into the height of the fence, but the fence itself is being erected in accordance with the agreement of the time.

Press Coverage Hit

An Oak Bay alderman and long-time former chairman of Greater Victoria School Board criticized Monday night the lack of daily newspaper coverage of school board affairs.

Ald. Peter Bunn said meetings of the school board are "ill reported" because the newspapers do not have sufficient staff.

He said there are not enough reporters and this shows up when several evening council meetings coincide with an evening school board meeting.

Bunn made his comment after Ald. Isabel Craig said the board's Facilities '77 study, indicating possible school closures because of falling student population, had come as a shock to residents.

Several council members voiced support for the school board's attempts to deal with the declining number of students and said recent public meetings had drawn a minority of people opposed to school reductions and not others who support controlling costs.

Bunn said the board faced a difficult task in facing up to the decline in student population and added that he had an easier time when he was board chairman because that was a time of increasing student population.

Crew Dumped

NANAIMO (CP) — A B.C. Ferries crew was dumped 40 feet into Departure Bay Monday when one end of a lifeboat became disconnected while it was being lifted out of the water.

A company spokesman said the incident occurred while a crew from the Queen of Tsawwassen was participating in a Department of Transport test.

They had been lowered from the stationary ferry, he said, and had rowed across the harbor and back. As the lifeboat was being lifted from the water, the bow lift separated, swinging the lifeboat from its stern and throwing the crew members into the bay, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said all crew members were rescued and none was injured.

Burning Permits Required

Anyone planning outdoor fire in areas outside cities and municipalities after midnight Saturday will need a burning permit from the forests ministry.

"All fires except campfires, will need permits," says Don Owen, head of the Forest Protection Division.

Burning permits can be obtained free of charge from any of the province's 100 forest ranger stations. They will cover all industrial fires and the outdoor burning of rubbish and other debris.

Permits will be issued on a project-by-project basis and will outline the responsibilities of the permit holders, as well as the precautions to be taken.

Sensible, Decent and 14, Why Not Go Over to Sue's?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl, and my dad and I disagree on something I hope you will be able to help us settle. He says he will abide by your decision.

My friend Sue's mother works all day and she thinks it's okay for Sue to have friends (both boys and girls) over to the house from 3:30 to 5. At Sue's, we play pool, cards and just talk. My dad has forbidden me to go to Sue's after school any more. He says he trusts me, but doesn't think that girls my age should be in a house with boys unsupervised. I've tried to tell him that nothing goes on there (it doesn't). He thinks a boy might try to get something off me and I'm not mature enough to say no.

How do you feel about this?

FOURTEEN AND DECENT

DEAR FOURTEEN: If you have proven yourself to be a decent, honest, obedient and sensible girl, I see no reason why you shouldn't be allowed to go to Sue's after school — a few days a week. (Not every day, however. Playing pool and cards and "just talking" is fun, but it doesn't get your homework done.) I think teen-agers should be allowed a reasonable amount of freedom to socialize, providing they are always where they say they will be, and always come home when they say they will.

DEAR ABBY: NOT MEDDLING was upset with her daughter-in-law for failing to acknowledge her wedding gifts three months past the wedding. This brings up an important issue: Why wasn't the mother-in-law equally upset with her son? Half the gifts were probably from his friends and relatives, Why didn't he write?

My husband and I both wrote our thank-you notes — he to those he knew, and I to those I knew.

As long as women accept the full burden for these time-consuming tasks, they will be made to feel guilty if the tasks aren't performed.

LUCKY AND KNOWS IT

DEAR LUCKY: You're on target. A surprising number of readers wrote to express the same sensible view.

Second Opinions

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I've had severe pains in my abdomen. I've been to two doctors. One said I had gall bladder disease. The other said I had "biliary colic." Now I'm completely befuddled. Shall I see a third doctor? — Mrs. J. B.

Dear Mrs B.:

I'm a strong advocate of a second opinion under special circumstances. When a complex medical or surgical problem arises there is always value in a confirmatory opinion.

Doctors and surgeons today do not feel that their patients are their own prized possessions. They welcome additional opinions because difficult problems can better be clarified by such combined medical thinking.

In your case, you are unfortunately trapped not by a difference of opinion, but rather by the fact that you have been given two different terms which actually describe almost the same condition. Biliary colic and gall bladder disease are essentially the same. The variations are slight and can be pinpointed by the special studies that are now available.

"Biliary colic" is the term used to describe sudden attacks of excrusiating pains that start in the right upper part of the abdomen and penetratingly shoot to the right shoulder and to the back. Usually, the cause is some obstruction, by a tiny tone, of the gall bladder or the bile ducts. The free flow of bile from the gall bladder to the intestines (a part of the digestion process) can thus be interfered with. A "ball value stone" may obstruct the duct and then be released back into the gall bladder. This accounts for the sudden intense pain.

Chronic infection of the gall bladder, with or without stone formation, can reproduce all the symptoms of so-called "biliary colic."

X-rays of the gall bladder and the biliary ducts can clearly define the origin of your problem.

Homemade Bread Cut Above the Rest

MOTHER EARTH NEWS ...it tells you how

A MOTHER MINI-PROJECT

If you love the taste of homemade bread, but have trouble cutting nice, even slices, head on down to the workshop and try making what Mother Earth reader John Shell did.

I love the taste of my wife's homemade bread, but for the life of me, I've never been able to cut it into straight and even slices.

Never, that is, until I hit upon the idea for the combination bread slicer-cutting board-serving tray. Now I can zip off perfect slices every time — even paper-thin ones.

My invention works on the same principle as a carpenter's mitre box (as a matter of fact, I got the idea while watching a carpenter cut some mitre joints). The only difference is that my device was made to handle loaves of homemade bread.

Just slide a loaf into place, position the blade of a long, sharp knife in the slots, and you can't help but cut straight and true.

And, although this gizmo was designed for bread, it's also ideal for eggplant, squash, cheese or almost any other sliceable food that'll fit into it.

The whole slicer can be made from one piece of wood measuring ¾ by 6 by 54 inches. The plank is cut into three 18-inch long pieces, two of which are shaped as shown (for sides) before being attached to the third (which forms the slicer's bottom).

Feel free to change the shape of the sides shown here if you like another pattern better. Whatever design you decide to use, though, you'll probably find it easier to put the two pieces of wood together and cut out and slot both sides at the same time. (And those slots, of course, should be cut down far enough so that, on assembly, they'll come out just even with the bases top surface).

My slicer is big enough to handle loaves made in most of the bread pans I've seen. If your loaves are bigger (either taller or wider), just scale your unit to fit.

I assembled my slicer with eight 2-inch long wood screws (four to a side). If you want to, though, you can run a bead of good wood glue down the faces of each joint before you screw the sides of your slicer to its base.

It goes without saying that you'll sand all surfaces of the three pieces of wood clean before final assembly. And the completed bread slicer can be left unfinished, rubbed with vegetable oil or stained and coated with a hard, oil-resistant finish.

As a little extra touch, my wife had me drill a hole in one end of our slicer's base so we can hang it on the wall when its not in use. Which means that the newest tool in our kitchen is not only a great bread slicer, it's a wonderful conversation piece, too.

GRANDPARENTS CONCERNED TOO

TORONTO (CP) — A University of Toronto study says that grandparents should be included in any counselling when a family is breaking up.

The recently-concluded study by 17 university students working on their master's degrees in social work says that grandparents can play a strong role in providing stability and continuity to grandchildren.

The study, which investigated the roles, problems and satisfactions of 138 Toronto grandparents, concludes that family counsellors who are working with dissolving families should be sensitive to the effects of marital conflict on the grandparents as well as on the children.

Prof. Ben Schlesinger, a supervisor of the study, said that there is a trend in the United States towards counsellors working with three generations of a family.

"A social worker or any other counsellor can learn a lot about family dynamics from interviewing the grandparents that they'll never learn from talking to the parents themselves," said Schlesinger.

As well as picking up on clues to family conflicts that may be three generations deep, counsellors can often help grandparents to deal with the pain they feel when the marriages of their children dissolve, he said.

The study found that it is common in divorces for the custodial parent to sever ties with the relatives of the former spouse — a move that often freezes grandparents right out of the lives of their grandchildren.

"Two of the grandparents who took part in the study have been unable to visit with their grandchildren," one of the student researchers said. "They were in tears because of it."

The study also found that grandparents take more pleasure in being stand-in parents, preparing food, taking grandchildren shopping and caring for sick grandchildren than many of the researchers had expected.

The students found that grandparents complained they did not have enough chance to do these chores and did not see their grandchildren often enough.

Endurance Test

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A 75-year-old woman who flunked a written driver's test 103 times in a row now can legally drive an auto she bought six years ago.

"Some people might have given up, but somehow or other I just wanted to learn how to drive," Fannie Turner said after gaining her learner's permit.

The veteran pedestrian started taking the tests after she bought a used car in 1972.

"I should have learned how to drive and then bought the car, that's what I should have done," she said.

When she failed the test, troopers at the state testing office gave her a driver's handbook and told her to study up and try again.

Two years ago, Mrs. Turner began a weekly routine of strolling 10 blocks to the testing office. Troopers came to expect the Wednesday visits by "Miss Fannie."

Sgt. Jerry Reinhold of the Arkansas State Police said that two years ago "she'd miss all 35 questions."

A machine decides which test an applicant takes, and the device seldom dishes out the same 35 multiple-choice questions, he said.

Test scorers started noticing a definite improvement in Mrs. Turner's scores a few months ago. "Miss Fannie" was only missing 10 or 12 questions each time, Reinhold said.

Finally, she answered 28 questions correctly. The score was high enough to merit a learner's permit, which means she can legally drive as long as she is accompanied by a licensed driver.

Mrs. Turner, who has just turned 75, says she considers the learner's permit a birthday gift to herself.

She said she dog-eared four driver's handbooks studying for the tests. But through all 103 failures, Mrs. Turner said she never felt like giving up.

PRIMARY GRADE READERS OKAY

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Primary school students are reading better today than they did four years ago — and that was better than reading levels of 30 years ago — a reading conference was told Saturday.

James Sawyer, director of membership and council relations for the International Reading Association, told teachers at the conference primary school students learning the basic reading skills are not the ones having problems.

"Basic reading skills have improved but the more-complex skills required in higher grades have not," he said. "So why the back-to-the basics movement when beginners are reading better right now?

"It's once they have learned that their proficiency declines."

A possible reason for the decline was learned in a study in Denmark which showed a direct relationship between the decline of reading ability and the number of new courses introduced to students as they progressed through school.

Reading must be promoted as a rewarding experience, said Sawyer, who advocated providing ample time for reading within the school day.

Care Of Your Color Prints is an illustrated eight-page leaflet which suggests that color prints are best stored in a photo album. It advises that if your album does not have clear sleeves to hold your prints in place, to use photo corners or a rubber cement specially made for mounting photographs.

It also advises you not to mount your prints facing each other on adjoining pages as in high humidity, the prints could stick together. Do not use rubber cement or a paste that contains water as these could stain your prints. A clear spray will protect glossy prints from surfaces scratches or abrasions.

If you wish to frame your prints, make sure there is a slight separation between the picture and the glass. This will prevent the emulsion of the print from sticking to the glass when it is humid.

Furthermore, the leaflet suggests that when mailing color prints you place some stiff cardboard behind them to prevent bending or creasing, and that you address the envelope before slipping the prints inside, otherwise the impression of your writing could damage the surface of the prints.

Send your request for "Care Of Your Color Printsss" to: Department 6, Kodak Canada Ltd., 3500 Eglinton Ave., West, Toronto, Ont. M6M 1V3.

LOUD NOISE AFFECTS FETUSES

KOBE, Japan (AP) — Pregnant women living near noisy airports have smaller babies than women in quieter areas, researchers say. Some 340 women exposed to airport noise had lower levels of an important hormone, placental lactogen, during certain periods of pregnancy and their babies weighed less than those of 112 expectant mothers exposed to little noise.

Take a trip to Inner Space

If you think the new Malibu isn't spacious and comfortable, you owe yourself a trip to your Chevrolet dealer. We made it trimmer and lighter than last year's models to help save space and energy. But at the same time, we actually increased some of the more important interior dimensions. Both front and rear seat leg room have been improved and there's more head room. As a matter of fact, rear seat hip room in the 4-door Malibu sedan is as wide as in the full-size Chevrolet sedan.

The trunk is another surprise — 16.6 cubic feet, which is larger than last year. But while you're discovering the age of inner space, take in some of Malibu's other revelations.

The ride. Instead of concentrating on the length of Malibu, we've concentrated on the suspension. Full coil springs smooth out the roughest bumps. Cushioned mounts separate body from frame for more insulation from road bumps. And special sound absorption material is used throughout to add even more quiet to Malibu's roomy interior. In all, the new Malibu gives you the ride qualities you may have associated with bigger cars.

The dash. It's divided into functional sections that can be removed for easy servicing. A two-level ventilation system (on 4-door and wagon) selects cool air for face level, warm air at foot level. It combines with opening rear vent windows to draw fresh air through the car.

Standard engine on Malibu is a compact V-6 which, with less weight to pull, can mean better fuel economy. A compact V-6 engine with available automatic transmission that delivers 38 km/gal. city, 54 km/gal. highway, 44 km/gal. combined based on approved Transport Canada test methods. (Remember these fuel economy figures are estimates which may be subject to revision. The actual fuel economy you get will vary depending on the driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition, and available equipment.) In engineering, styling, roominess and efficiency, Malibu can offer the resale value people traditionally look for in GM cars.

See your Chevrolet dealer for a test drive in the new Malibu. It could be the start of the most beautiful trip you've ever taken. Buying or leasing? See your Chevrolet Dealer soon.

Dief Presses for Answers

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker launched a heated debate in the Commons Monday when he accused the government of hiding embarrassing facts about itself by failing to answer about 1,480 written questions from MPs.

He raised the issue moments after Gerald Baldwin (PC-Peace River) got approval from MPs for a motion ensuring the long-running work by Parliament to get a freedom-of-information law does not go down the drain if an election is called soon, as expected.

The motion requires a joint Commons and Senate committee continue to study responses to the government's green paper on public access to government documents in the new Parliament following an election.

Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) then attacked the government for answering Monday only 47 of the 1,532 outstanding written questions MPs have asked the government.

"There's only one reason why these questions haven't been answered: that is, it would be embarrassing to the government," the 82-year-old veteran of Parliament declared.

Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen said Diefenbaker's arguments were spurious, that he was creating straw men and that no evil purpose or sinister motives lurked behind the government's failure to answer all questions. About 60 per cent of the questions had been answered during this session of Parliament.

He also said many of the questions from opposition MPs were ridiculous.

Public Service Reforms Urgently Needed: Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Fundamental reform of federal public service management is urgently needed, the Public Service Commission (PSC) said in its annual report tabled in Parliament Monday.

The report doesn't spell out specific reforms needed, but calls on the government to devise a "framework of legislation and policies appropriate to the kind of public service Canadians are entitled to in the years ahead."

The commissioners also warned that "continuing indiscriminate, ill-informed and at times malicious attacks on public servants" may erode the quality of the public service.

The report asks Parliament for clearer guides on political activity of public servants.

This concern was prompted by several recent court cases involving this issue, and a growing feeling that public servants should enjoy the same civil rights as other Canadian citizens.

Public servants are forbidden to work in political campaigns, but may run for office if they obtain a leave of absence.

The report notes that the tradition of impartiality of the public service has been built up over 70 years. "Major departures from existing practices would have important implications for the future health of the public service," it warns.

The report also calls for a re-examination of the merit principle. The PSC is supposed to ensure that all hiring and promotion in the public service is done on the basis of merit.

However, PSC chairman Edgar Gallant said at a news conference that the commission has been taking into consideration other criteria, which should be recognized in legislation.

These are: efficiency and effectiveness; sensitivity and responsiveness to the communities served; equality of access to public service employment, and equitable treatment of public servants.

Gallant also said there should be recognition that the criteria for selecting a good manager are fundamentally different than those for clerks.

RCMP IN LEGIONS SPOIL SPORTS - MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Allowing RCMP officers into the Royal Canadian Legion might inhibit some of the organization's merry-making and story-telling, Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said Monday.

"Veterans are great at BSing and police around would investigate all their stories," Peters said in an interview after he refused to give consent to the Commons to speed through legislation allowing RCMP officers to become Legion members.

"They (RCMP) would be young and energetic and pretty soon they'd be running it," said Peters, a Second World War veteran and Legion member.

Peters said he wants to discuss the subject with some Legion officials and if they agree with the membership extension he will support the legislation.

Pipeline in Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's northern pipeline legislation took one more step toward becoming law Monday night.

The legislation was reported to the Senate without amendment by its own special committee and all that remained was third and final reading and royal assent.

Senator Ray Perrault, government leader in the Senate, said that could come as early as tonight.

The bill, allowing for start of construction of the $10 billion line from Alaska to the United States in 1981, was passed by the Commons last week.

The committee recommended studies to assess the social and economic impact of construction on the people living along the right-of-way.

The 5,000-mile pipeline will carry Alaskan natural gas across Canada to U.S. markets.

Senators said they are particularly concerned that there has been no assessment of the pipeline's effects on native people living in northern British Columbia.

UIC Ads Geared To Vote?

TORONTO (CP) — A former employee of the Canadian Employment and Immigration Commission says the commission began a $1-million advertising campaign against unemployment-insurance cheaters despite objections by its own employees.

Victor Schwartzman, who quit his job as an information officer last January, said the "common assumption of the people I worked with was that it (the advertising) was geared more to a spring election campaign than to informing the public."

He said in an interview that the drive to warn people about cheating was directed at the three per cent of about 900,000 claimants who defraud the commission. It served only to reinforce the mistaken belief that many people cheat in applying for unemployment benefits.

A recent survey conducted for the commission showed that 81 per cent of the public and 80 per cent of those receiving benefits believe many people take unfair advantage of unemmployment insurance.

The ads were produced by Vickers and Benson Ltd., the same firm used by the Liberal Party of Canada.

Schwartzman said that instead of paying $1 million for the three-month campaign which ended last month, the commission should have spent between $2,000 and $3,000 to print flyers, getting the information directly to cheaters.

Quebec Power Failure Blamed on Explosion

MONTREAL (CP) — Hydro-Quebec officials say an explosion last month at a suburban Montreal substation was probably at the root of a massive power blackout which hit most of the province Monday morning.

Power was restored to all areas of Quebec by mid-day Monday, but the fifth major blackout in less than three years — and the second this year — left 1.5 million Hydro-Quebec customers without electricity for periods of from 15 minutes to 4½ hours.

Hydro officials said preliminary investigations showed that the "unavailability of two synchronized condensers" at a substation in Duvernay probably caused the blackout.

The condensers, which maintain system voltage during variations caused by increases or decreases in electricity demand, were put out of service by a March 22 explosion which destroyed the building housing them.

"Their being out of service has made the Hydro-Quebec system more vulnerable, a fact which Monday's power failure would seem to confirm," said a spokesman for the Crown-owned utility.

A number of Montrealers made the best of the situation, holding indoor picnics at their favorite restaurants during the noon hour Monday.

Science Lobby Planned

OTTAWA (CP) - Organizations representing nearly 300,000 members of the scientific community plan to lobby candidates in the next federal election for more Canadian research and development.

John Kucharczyk of the Canadian Association of University Teachers said Monday that 13 scientific research groups want to press election candidates, running in the 49 electoral districts with universities and colleges, for support for domestic research and development.

The groups are already supported by the 2.3-million-member Canadian Labor Congress, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Canadian Federation of Independent Businessmen and the Electrical and Electronic Association, he said.

The announcement follows a Medical Research Council decision to drop 20 per cent of medical research projects supported by the council. The MRC last week announced a $60 million budget for 1978-79, an increase of only 3.8 per cent. Researchers received a 13 per cent budget increase last year and scientists say inflation increases the cost of medical research at more than 15 per cent annually.

"We have to develop our own industrial research and development," Kucharczyk said. "We import everything now and it's costing us a fortune, especially when we already have the manpower here and the universities and laboratories where the research can be done."

The ministry of state for science and technology earlier announced a $5.5 million program designed to create jobs for people in science and technology and further develop research.

Hostages Cost 20 Years

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — A convicted murderer who, along with two other convicts, held seven jail guards hostage here for two weeks last month, was sentenced to 20 years in prison Monday after pleading guilty to five charges in connection with the hostage-taking.

Edgar Roussel, 31, was sentenced by Judge Roger Lagarde at a tightly-guarded hearing in the same prison-courtroom complex where he, Roland Simard and Lucien Jacques held the guards from March 8 to March 22.

Roussel, already serving two life terms for a double slaying in a Montreal bar, was handed a five-year term for unlawful confinement of the guards, and another five years, to be served consecutively, for using a firearm during the hostage-taking.

He was given an additional 10 years, to be served consecutively, for threatening the lives of the hostages during telephone conversations with reporters and negotiators.

Roussel also received a concurrent 10-year term for causing $10,000 in damage to provincial government property inside the prison during the two weeks of the hostage-taking. He received a concurrent five-year sentence for assaulting an uninvolved prisoner being held in the jail at the time.

Jacques, 31, and Simard, 26, are scheduled to appear in court in St. Jerome, 45 kilometres northwest of Montreal, later this week to face similar charges. Simard is already serving life for murder and Jacques is serving 17 years for armed robbery and other offences.

All three men are currently incarcerated at a "special handling unit" north of Montreal.

More Produce Tariffs?

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Monday the government has accepted recommendations for greater tariff protection for fresh and processed fruits and vegetables as a basis for international trade talks.

He said in an interview that negotiators to the Multilateral Trade Negotiations in Geneva were told last week to bargain on the basis of the recommendations, contained in two reports released last year.

Whelan said earlier in the Commons the cabinet had accepted the reports which recommended tariff increases for a variety of fruit and vegetable imports and reductions in others. The processed products would get higher protection while fresh produce would have greater in-season protection.

Feds Aim At Tax Discounts

TORONTO (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Warren Allmand Monday said legislation to "eliminate any loopholes" in controlling tax discounters will be introduced in the Commons in the next few days.

"Watch out; we aren't going to put up with it any more," warned Allmand.

Allmand told the Toronto chapter of the Better Busines Bureau tax discounters — who offer immediate cash for personal tax to a tax refund — operate in most parts of the country.

"They specialize in preying on seasonal and low-income workers who are in a hurry to get their tax refunds."

Some provinces have taken steps to control the discounters and Allmand said federal action was necessary to back up those measures.

One survey found the average rate of interest charged by the discounter was over 800 per cent, Allmand said.

"It was found that only 21 of 1,400 cases involved a loss to the discounter."

A copy of the text was made available in Ottawa.

Manitoba Taxes Cut

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba taxpayers were told Monday night they will save $83 million this year as a result of a variety of tax cuts introduced by Finance Minister Donald Craik as he tabled what he called a transitional budget in the legislature.

Three-quarters of the reductions—or about $61.5 million—come from a decision to cut provincial sales taxes to two per cent from five per cent for almost six months.

That measure, the result of a federal-provincial agreement completed late last week, will be financed two-thirds by the federal government and one-third by the provincial government.

But in his hour-long speech, Craik dropped a veiled warning to public-sector employees to keep their wage demands down despite the ending of wage-and- price controls next Friday.

"We are asking that all those involved in public sector negotiations recognize that provincial revenues—and thus our ability to pay for increased costs, including wage settlements—will only grow by about four per cent this year."

The minister added that the same general principles also apply to the private sector labor market.

Other major changes include a measure to provide senior citizens with reductions of up to $100 for school taxes and a youth employment program aimed at subsidizing jobs for unemployed persons between the ages of 16 and 24.

The government has projected the cost of each of these programs at $2 million.

A cut in personal income taxes to 54 per cent of the basic federal tax from 56 per cent and a decrease in corporate income tax to 11 per cent from 13 per cent were announced during last fall's special session of the legislature. They account for another $17 million of the reduction.

The only increase was in the tobacco tax, which rises to one cent a cigarette from four-fifths of a cent and will add about $4.8 million to government revenues.

Generally, when one overbids, he arrives at a poor contract which, in order to be fulfilled, frequently necessitates taking a gamble. Such was the case in today's deal, which was played in a duplicate game. Our South declarer, however, evidently did not see the necessity for taking one specific gamble — and it cost him his constract, for the gamble would have turned out successfully.

South deals.

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2 NT | Pass | 3 NT | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

Opening lead: Six of ♠.

South's two-notrump opening bid was a drastic overbid, since he needed 22 points for this call. On West's opening spade lead, declarer played low from dummy. In so doing, he guaranteed that he would win a spade trick whether East (in theory) played either the queen, the ace or a low spade. Upon winning with the queen, East returned a spade to West's ace. A third spade lead was made by West, a club being discarded from dummy as South won with his jack.

Being unable to reach dummy to take a diamond finesse, South cashed the ace of diamonds and followed by leading another diamond to East's king. When play had ended, South was down a trick, for all he could make were two club tricks, three diamonds, two hearts and one spade.

South failed to recognize that he had to try for four diamond tricks to fulfill his contract; and that to accomplish this, he had to get to dummy to take the diamond finesse. At trick one he should have put up the board's kind of spades, hoping that West was leading away from the ace (admittedly, East could have had the spade ace, in which case declarer might lose the first five spade tricks).

With the king winning, the nine of diamonds would be led next, and the finesse taken against East's hoped-for king. Then would follow the diamond queen, and another successful finesse. A third finesse would then bring in four diamond tricks — and the contract.

VIRGO (AUG. 23-Sept. 22): Negotiations can be completed. You get what you need — potential to earn more is enhanced. Cancer, Aquarius persons are in picture. In matters of speculation, stick to 11, 6 and 4. One in charge states views in pleasant manner, giving you benefit of any doubt.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Diversify, demonstrate adaptability. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius could play key roles. Stick with number 3. Long-range prospects sparkle; submit ideas, manuscripts. You get good news. At first you feel tinge of disappointment. Then impact hits home and you're in mood to celebrate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You're involved. If playing games, realize stakes are high and for keeps. Check costs, commitments. Member of opposite sex is in picture. Aquarius, Taurus individuals figure in scenario. Leases, investments, money affecting partner or mate command attention.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lie low where final decisions are concerned. Avoid direct confrontations. Active, talkative, charming individual enters your life. Be analytical, but not overly critical. Gemini figures prominently — so does the number 5.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Domestic adjustment is featured. Dependents do something for you. Priorities are examined. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio figure in scenario. Those who share your aspirations do something to get the ball rolling. Yes, apathy will take a back seat.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar aspect coincides with creativity, personality, magnetism, love, quick change of scenery. Romantic aura permeates. You know what should be done, but someone has flattered you into the opposite direction.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stick to facts. Learn lesson by studying Aquarius message. Obstacle is stepping stone, problem is healthy challenge. Member of opposite sex is wild about you and you'll know it. Home, security, solidity of structure figure prominently — and dominantly.

IF APRIL 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of humor, a weight problem and artistic talent. March and December are your outstanding months of 1978, a year featuring creativity, travel, writing and an intensified relationship. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. If single, you could marry. If married, there might be an addition to the family.

GARDENING jack beastall

Gluts and Shortages

The greatest value from the home vegetable garden is obtained when the gardener is able to adjust the amount of produce available at any period to the needs of the family.

The problem of gluts and shortages is discussed at length in most gardening books, but it is impossible to make infallible rules since family requirements vary over a wide range.

When there is too much available of one vegetable as much as 50 per cent of the crop can go to waste. Most gardeners are indifferent to these losses, saying the family had all it could possibly consume and enjoyed it, and therefore the surplus matters little.

If these gardeners could prepare a profit-and-loss statement at the end of the year they might discover that a business run on similar lines would soon be bankrupt.

The loss is not only the surplus produce, it includes the time spent in preparing the soil, cultivating, weeding and watering, the cost of seed, fertilizer, humus and water, and the loss of soil fertility in the production of unwanted plants.

If we put a value on every square yard of soil as the businessman does on every square yard of shelf and floor display space, we might find that the area occupied by the surplus plants would have produced some other crop that would have shown a good profit.

Occasionally we hear from gardeners who have given overproduction problems serious thought and come up with a profitable solution.

One reader experienced a surplus of tree fruits. When pruning, fertilizing, spraying, picking, give-aways, storage, and storage losses were estimated it was found the amount actually consumed by the family could have been purchased for a small percentage of the cost.

The solution was the removal of the fruit trees and the planting of berry fruits, some of which are never seen in the market, while others are always high in price because of shipping losses, and none have the flavor of sun-ripened berries straight from the plants.

An added profit was less shade which allowed other more desirable plants to be grown, and less drain on soil fertility due to the lack of tree roots.

Another reader had difficulty in balancing the bean crop to family requirements, being constantly faced with a glut or a shortage.

The problem was solved when two small handsful of dried kidney beans were purloined from the food cupboard and planted.

The plants flourished and provided stringless green beans as needed and the surplus was allowed to mature on the plants. When dried these gave six pounds of beans for use over winter with no added costs for freezing or canning.

Cabbage was a problem for another gardener, and was solved by planting six purchased plants of Golden Acre.

The heads were used while young and after cutting each stump was slashed crossways with a knife. The stumps provided four small heads and the family had a supply suited to its needs from early summer until late in the fall.

We are told there is a solution to every problem. The home gardener who tackles the problem of overproduction in a practical way usually finds a solution which adds dollars to the profit side of the ledger and cuts losses to a minimum.

Farm Earnings Dropping

OTTAWA (CP) — Farm incomes have dropped 54 per cent since 1975 and return to farmers for labor, management and investment now is less than 20 cents of every dollar earned, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture (CFA) said today.

In a brief to MPs, the CFA said net cash income to farmers in 1975, an exceptionally good year, was $3.395 billion. Expected returns this year, translated into 1975 dollars, would be $1.929 billion. Net cash income is income after deductions for operating expenses and deprication.

The briefs are being presented by the CFA to caucuses of the four federal political parties during meetings in the next couple of days. The CFA is the major farm lobby group.

Grain and beef producers have been hardest hit by the income drop, the CFA says. "The consequences cannot help but be inimical to good farm planning and to orderly agricultural development in the national interest."

Most farm groups are not agreeable to increased production planning regulation but realize that "the consequences of instability are increasingly intolerable."

"For consumers, the consequences of instability will be over-all higher, rather than lower, prices — because there is a price that must be paid for risk and uncertainty."

The brief also asks for limits to imported beef to add stability to the domestic industry and for more tariff protection for vegetables and fruits.

The government has already announced a slight increase in beef imports for this year and that it has no plans to bring in a beef import law unless the current controls don't work. It has also said that two reports recommending higher protection for horticulture crops will form the basis of the Canadian position in international trade talks.

Middle East Talks Resume in May?

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Israel and Egypt have "in the works" a declaration of principles and peace talks between the two countries might resume by early May, ABC reported Monday.

A report prepared for the ABC News program Monday night from correspondent Doreen Kays in Cairo said Egypt's President Anwar Sadat might meet Jordan's King Hussein this week to discuss the proposed declaration of principles.

The report also said Israel and Egypt have worked out an agreement on the Sinai.

Quoting highly-placed sources in the Egyptian capital, Kays said that the proposed declaration of principles covers:

—the right of each country to its sovereignty and independence;

—a tripartite Israeli, Jordanian and Palestinian commission to oversee the West Bank and the Gaza strip for five years; and —after five years, there would be some form of self-determination, not only for Palestinians on the West Bank and the Gaza strip but for Israelis, Jordanians and Egyptian living there.

The report said that under the agreement on Sinai, the Israelis would withdraw from the area in 18 months, with a pullback from El Arish to Ras Muhammad coming in the first three months.

Israeli settlements in Sinai would come under Egyptian sovereignty and security and there would be Egypptian settlements alongside, the report added.

It also said that under the agreement Israel would have access to two strategic airfields—Etzion and Osira—until the end of 1982.

No Hitches in Pullback

BEIRUT (AP) — The first stage in Israel's pullback in southern Lebanon was reported proceeding smoothly today as Syrian troops opened fire in Beirut in an attempt to end a new outbreak of Moslem-Christian fighting in the Lebanese capital.

Both a UN spokesman in Beirut and an Israeli army spokesman in northern Israel reported no hitches as Israeli troops moved back two to five kilometres at eight points from the Khardali Bridge eastward along the Litani River to the Arkoub region in the foothills of Mount Hermon.

"Norwegian peacekeepers replaced Israeli forces in all vacated areas and by mid-morning we had no report of any violence," the UN spokesman said.

A second pullback Friday will remove the Israelis from one-fourth of the 1,300 kilometres of Lebanese territory they occupied during their invasion last month to drive the Palestinian guerrillas north of the Litani.

Total Israeli withdrawal from southern Lebanon is expected to depend on effective deployment of the UN force and on measures to prevent return of the guerrillas to the area.

Rhodesia Cool To Talks

SALISBURY (AP) — Rhodesia's Executive Council said Monday it is "not in favor" of an Anglo-U.S. plan for peace talks that would include black guerrilla chiefs but does not rule out such a meeting.

Prime Minister Ian Smith and his three black associates on the Executive Council said their "most urgent task" is to continue working under the internal agreement they signed March 3. Government spokesmen said the statement stopped short of rejecting an all-party conference.

The council is to guide Rhodesia through elections and the transition to black majority rule. Smith remains prime minister but each member of the council has veto power over decisions.

London and Washington have called for new talks aimed at a settlement in which militant Patriotic Front black guerrilla leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo would participate.

The council statement was issued after government representatives met for four hours with John Graham of the British foreign office and Stephen Low, the U.S. ambassador to Zambia.

Economic Talks Set

WASHINGTON (CP) — The leaders of Canada, the United States, Japan and four European countries will meet in Bonn in July for an economic summit conference, it was announced Monday.

Besides Prime Minister Trudeau, U.S. President Jimmy Carter and Japanese Prime Minister Fukuda, the leaders of Britain, France, Italy and West Germany will attend the meeting July 16 and 17.

A Canadian general election is widely expected in June, but Trudeau said he will attend the Bonn meeting arranged by West German Chancellor Schmidt.

Carter will conduct a state visit to West Germany at the time of the summit, said Henry Owen, a White House aide.

Owen, a member of Carter's national security council staff, said key issues at the conference will include multilateral trade negotiations, international monetary affairs, energy, the dialogue between developing and industrialized countries and global economics.

The last such economic summit was in London last May and July's meeting will be the fourth held in recent years. The same countries also took part in economic summits in France and Puerto Rico.

Owen said the countries involved are obviously concerned about the state of the U.S. dollar and that "the way to address the problem is to deal with the underlying problems."

These, he said, include the fact that the United States imports approximately 50 per cent of its oil, the high U.S. growth rate compared with slower rates elsewhere and growing inflation.

White House press secretary Jody Powell told reporters no stops other than Bonn are on Carter's agenda for the July trip but he refused to rule out the possibility that the schedule may be changed.

Owen said the conferences produce "better economic policies" when the heads of state get together once a year.

In addition to the heads of state, leaders of the European Common Market and the European Commission will take part.

Ex-FBI Chief, Aides Face Break-In Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. justice department, concluding that responsibility for FBI excesses in the anti-radical campaign of the early 1970s rests at the top, has obtained the indictment of former FBI director Patrick Gray and two of his highest former aides.

In the culmination of an internal investigation, the department also dropped its prosecution of John Kearney, a former FBI supervisor in New York, who was indicted a year ago in connection with FBI break-ins, mail openings and wiretappings between 1970 and the summer of 1972.

"I am thoroughly delighted, pleased and vindicated," Kearney said in Montreal, where he was visiting. Kearney was the first agent in FBI history to be charged with a felony involving his official duties. He resigned in 1972 to enter private business.

In a case guided by Attorney-General Griffin Bell, a federal grand jury Monday indicted Gray, Mark Felt, former associate FBI director, and Edward Miller, former assistant director, on a charge of conspiring to violate the rights of citizens through unlawful break-ins.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

Gray issued a statement through his lawyer saying he had "never participated in or knowingly authorized any illegal conduct during my tenure as acting director of the FBI."

Felt, who called the indictments a "tragic mistake," said that he, Gray and Miller rejected a justice department offer last week to plead guilty to a misdemeanor charge.

Said Felt, formerly the No. 2 official in the FBI high command:

"Irrespective of my personal case, these indictments will have a chilling effect on all law enforcement and the intelligence community. These agencies have already been impaired in recent years, and this is just another push downhill."

Bell, who announced the indictments at a news conference Monday, also said he was taking unspecified disciplinary action against Wallace LaPrade, an assistant FBI director and head of the bureau's New York office, "for his conduct in these matters."

Bell said 70 other persons —68 in the FBI and two in the justice department — will be subjected to disciplinary action ranging from censure to dismissal.

Secret Deals Refused

ROME (Reuter) — The kidnappers of former premier Aldo Moro have rejected secret deals with the Italian government for his release, while their hostage again appealed to the authorities to secure his freedom.

In a message left for reporters in four cities following calls to their newspapers, the Red Brigades guerrillas Monday night ruled out secret negotiations.

"Nothing must be hidden from the people," they said in their fifth communique since abducting Moro almost four weeks ago and subjecting him to a "people's trial."

But "this is not the message you have been waiting for," a man told the Rome daily Il Messaggero in one of the calls announcing the communique, which was accompanied by a handwritten statement from Moro.

The caller was referring to a letter Moro was reported to have sent to his wife on Saturday containing a Brigades' ultimatum.

As in previous messages, the brigades made no specific demands for the release of Moro, held since March 16 when his car was ambushed and his five bodyguards shot dead.

In particular, no mention was made of exchanging the former premier for any of the 15 Red Brigades leaders on trial in Turin on subversion charges.

But the communique repeated previous threats that the Brigades' "armed initiative against the political, economic and military centres of the imperialist state of the multinationals" must be continued.

In an eight-page statement with the communique, Moro suggested U.S. and West German influence might be behind the government's tough line in refusing to consider bargaining for his release.

He also denounced a fellow-Christian Democrat, Paolo Emilio Taviani, for denying that Moro had urged him to take a soft line in an earlier kidnapping.

One Twin Aborted

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — Doctors have successfully aborted one diseased fetus of twin girls, allowing the other to be born prematurely but healthy 10 weeks later.

They claim the operation is the first of its kind.

Dr. Felix Mitelman, a geneticist at Lund University Hospital, said the aborted fetus was suffering from an hereditary metabolic disease.

The operation was carried out at the hospital last December by Dr. Anders Aarberg.

Dr. Mitelman said the mother and remaining baby girl are progressing well.

"We thought at first that we had either to abort both or neither. Finally we decided to try a new technique of selective abortion, leaving the healthy fetus to come to birth. And in this we succeeded. We think it is for the first time anywhere," Mitelman said.

The abortion was performed in the 24th week of pregnancy and the birth took place in the 34th week, he added.

101,000 More Jobless

OTTAWA - The number of unemployed in Canada has swelled by 101,000 since last March, Statistics Canada reported today.

In March alone, another 38,000 were added to the jobless rolls for an actual total of 1,045,000, sending the unemployment rate, adjusted for seasonal changes, to 8.6 per cent of the work force. The figure for February was 8.3 per cent.

In B.C. unemployment climbed to 8.5 per cent of the work force in March, up from 8.4 per cent in February. There were 108,000 unemployed in a work force of 1,191,000 compared with 106,000 out of work a year ago in a work force of 1,133,000.

The actual Canadian unemployment rate last month was 9.7 per cent, an increase from 9.5 per cent in February.

There were 10,726,000 in the work force in March and 9,680,000 had jobs. In February, the work force was 10,584,000 and 9,577,000 were employed.

Seasonally-adjusted unemployment rates were up in seven provinces. The rate declined from February levels in only two provinces and was unchanged in March for Manitoba.

With one of the largest provincial work forces, Quebec's unemployment rate was up to 11.5 per cent in March from 10.9 per cent in February. This left an actual total of 351,000 out of work, up from 342,000 in February and the highest for any province.

In Newfoundland, the jobless rate jumped to 16.5 per cent last month from 15.8 per cent in February, still the highest rate.

Prince Edward Island's unemployment rate was up to 10.5 per cent in March from 8.2 per cent a month earlier, and the rate rose for Nova Scotia to 11.2 per cent from 10.3 per cent.

Only New Brunswick among the Atlantic provinces had a lower jobless rate last month than in February, falling slightly to 13.3 per cent from 13.4 per cent.

Ontario's unemployment rate jumped to 7.4 per cent in March from seven per cent in February. Thre were 345,000 unemployed in Ontario, second only to Quebec.

Among the Western provinces, Manitoba's unemployment rate held steady at 6.5 per cent, the same as in February.

Alberta had a decline in its unemployment rate last month, to 4.5 per cent from 4.7 per cent in February.

But the rate rose in Saskatchewan to 5.7 per cent in March from 5.1 per cent in the previous month.

Winter Lands Late Blow

LONDON (AP) — Winter weather surprised Britain and France today three weeks after the official arrival of spring.

British authorities reported at least three weather-related deaths, including two men killed when an army helicopter crashed in Northern Ireland.

In Scotland, blizzards grounded a Royal Air Force helicopter assigned to fly Robert Anderson, 46, from Aberdeen to Glasgow for emergency heart surgery. Three times the craft tried to make the trip and during the delay Anderson suffered a heart attack and died.

Snow fell over Scotland and 30 counties in England and Wales. In France, more than a foot of snow fell in parts of Normandy.

A Dull Budget With No Frills

Highlights

Retail sales taxes to be reduced shortly in most regions for six or nine months by arrangement with the provinces.

About $50 million a year in tax concessions offered to industry to encourage research and development.

Tax benefits for oil industry increased to encourage development of the Alberta oil sands and recovery of heavy oil deposits in the west.

Railways offered tax allowances to speed modernization.

Rules governing disposition of retirement savings plans reformed to make investment more flexible.

Tariff reductions on some consumer-item imports extended for a year beyond scheduled June 30 expiry, but levies increased on some chemicals, tires and goods from Britain and Ireland.

Projected federal deficit increased by 35 per cent to $11.5 billion on total outlays of $52.1 billion and income of $40.6 billion, excluding transactions in support of the dollar.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A business-like budget with no frills and little excitement was brought down by Finance Minister Jean Chretien Monday.

Retail sales taxes will be reduced in most provinces under a deal with provincial governments, but there were no cuts in personal income taxes as many had expected in what is considered to be a federal pre-election budget.

While there were some pockets of discontent, most sections of the Canadian business community were quick to applaud Chretien's budget.

"We happily endorse the fiscal co-operation of the provincial and federal governments which has made possible the sales tax cuts," the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said in a statement.

Sam Hughes, executive director of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said Chretien did "fundamentally the right things."

He said the arrangement with the provinces to cut retail sales taxes will help reduce regional disparity and encourage demand at the consumer level, "where it has to happen."

Hughes said Chretien acted responsibly in not reducing personal income tax because it would have thrown the government's cash flow into disarray.

"He showed reasonable restraint in not doing that in what could be an election year."

The finance minister also proposed more tax benefits for oil companies, railways and corporations that undertake more research and development in Canada.

Several provinces announced short-term reductions of two or three percentage points in over-the-counter sales taxes will take effect immediately. B.C. said its two-point cut would continue indefinitely.

Chretien told the Commons that he refused to make "irresponsible promises" in

Record $11B Deficit Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal spending deficit will total a record $11.5 billion this year, up more than 35 per cent from $8.5 billion last year and nearly double the $5.4 billion shortfall in 1976-77.

To cover the cash shortage, which is the different between total projected outlays and income, the government will be forced to turn again to private money markets and to sell more Canada Savings Bonds.

The announcement of the deficit comes after the recent release of government figures showing the total national debt now standing at more than $67 billion.

Interest alone on the debt this year will cost taxpayers $6.5 billion, about 13 cents of every tax dollar.

DOLLAR SAGS

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar continued to flounder at its lowest level in 45 years on New York money markets today as foreign exchange dealers expressed dismay that Finance Minister Jean Chretien's budget contained little in the way of support for the sagging currency.

In opening trading on money markets, the dollar sank as low as 87.30 U.S. cents—down from Monday's close of 87.54 U.S. cents. By 11:30 a.m. EST, profit-taking and some commercial demand for Canadian dollars pushed the currency up to the 87.50 U.S. cents level.

Fox Plans To Stay

MONTREAL (CP) — Former federal solicitor-general Francis Fox said Monday he has decided to stay in politics and will seek the Liberal nomination in the new riding of Blainville-Deux Montagnes.

Fox told local Liberal organizers and reporters at a news conference in nearby Ste. Therese that he would welcome an offer to rejoin the cabinet if one is made.

He said his decision to seek the April 19 nomination was made following more than a month of meetings with party organizers. The new riding includes the more populous part of Fox's old riding of Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes.

"After the years in public life that the people in this riding have invested in me, I feel I have a valuable role to play in the debate over the future of this country," said Fox.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the reason I'm running again is so I can play a meaningful role in the national unity debate. And as far as I am concerned, that is the most important thing there is to face.

Fox said if he is not re-appointed to the cabinet he would be "satisfied" to serve as a backbencher.

Hard To Rap B.C. Budget

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Opposition criticism of Monday's provincial budget was tempered by the fact most believe it's an election budget containing so many goodies it's hard to attack.

All lauded the drop in sales tax from seven to the five per cent level of two years ago, but said that people should remember it was the Social Credit government which boosted the tax 40 per cent shortly after taking office.

NDP finance critic Dave Stupich of Nanaimo and Liberal leader Gordon Gibson decried the continuing emphasis of the Socred administration on placing so much of the burden for school taxes on municipal taxpayers. The easing announced in the budget was not enough.

Stupich said the Socreds are doing this in spite of the recommendations in the McMath report on property assessments and the party's own campaign promises.

Tory leader Vic Stepehens, noting that it was his first budget, told reporters at a press conference that if the budget isn't an election budget, then the government is certainly keeping its options open.

Stupich said the $76 million surplus from 1976-77 which the government plans to use for job creation programs didn't come from good fiscal practices as Wolfe claims in his speech.

The former finance minister said it came from selling the three B.C. ferries for $38 million and from cashing in special funds established during the NDP administration.

Gibson also said the surplus anticipated for this year didn't come from good fiscal policies — it came because the Americans are buying B.C. lumber for their housing boom and because the rising world-wide price of oil has led to more exploration in this province.

Gibson isn't so positive it is an election budget because he feels the strong economic trend will continue next year.

The two keys to the "generosity" this year are a surprise gift of almost 10 per cent more revenues from more federal funds for the province and because of increased sales in resource industry.

Gibson said the budget increase this year over last year is more than the 9.8 per cent mentioned in the budget speech if apples are compared to apples.

The increase is actually 11.7 per cent if this year's budget estimates are compared with last year's budget estimates — the only comparison that's fair, Gibson said.

Wolfe was using a revised 1977-78 budget to make the comparison, Gibson said.

Tax Dodging Scheme Bared

OTTAWA (CP) — The income tax department said Monday it has uncovered a widespread scheme of tax evasion involving the sale of false receipts and their use by taxpayers to support deduction claims for dependants living outside Canada.

In a press release the department said its examination of 1,400 selected tax returns resulted in assessing $900,000 in additional taxes, including $175,000 in fines.

Another 2,500 returns believed to contain false receipts now are being examined and the department believes an additional $1 million in taxes will be levied.

Charges have been laid in Toronto and Vancouver against three distributors of false receipts and against four taxpayers who used them to claim exemptions. Other charges are pending.

To back up claims for exemptions for non-resident dependants, many taxpayers used receipt copies of bank drafts showing money transfers to overseas dependants. The department investigation showed these drafts were not sent overseas but were cashed in Canada by the purchasers.

Other taxpayers sent money abroad claiming a tax deduction for dependants but used the money for other purposes.

Conviction of tax evasion can lead to fines and jail sentences in addition to civil penalties. The minimum fine is at least 25 per cent and may be as much as twice the tax sought to be avoided.

The department says those who have submitted false receipts with their income tax forms can avoid fines and possible prosecution by voluntarily disclosing this. Those doing so would only pay the taxes owing plus the interest due.

But such disclosures will be considered voluntary only if they are made prior to any contact initiated by the tax department and if the information given is complete.

Tanker's Drift Ends

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Oil Corp. said today its supertanker Texaco Copenhagen is out of trouble after being adrift without power for nearly five hours about 65 kilometres off the South African coast.

Spokesman Gordon Hamilton said the 253,000-ton fully-laden vessel will resume shortly on its journey to Rotterdam, Netherlands, from Ras Tanura, Saudi Arabia.

Hamilton said the cause of the engine blackout in the British-registered vessel is being investigated.

"As a precaution, a tug was dispatched to stand by, although the tanker was not considered to be in any danger," he added.

Who Should Play God?

Eugenics Reborn

By Ted Howard and Jeremy Rifkin
Pacific News Service
(Third of nine parts)

"Some day we will realize that the prime duty, the inescapable duty of the good citizens of the right type is to leave his or her blood behind him in the world; and that we have no business to permit the perpetuation of citizens of the wrong type. I wish very much that the wrong people could be prevented entirely from breeding; and when the evil nature of these people is sufficiently flagrant, this should be done. Criminals should be sterilized and feebleminded persons forbidden to leave offspring behind them . . . the emphasis should be laid on getting desirable people to breed."

These remarkable words were issued by one of the great political leaders of American history, the 26th president of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt. They represented the "enlightened" view of millions of Americans caught up in an ideological movement that has virtually disappeared from the history books. The movement was called eugenics, and in a 30-year span (1900-1929) it captured the attention of leading U.S. reformers, academics, professionals and political leaders.

Believing that criminals were born and not made, the famed criminal anthropologist Cesare Lombroso claimed it was possible to draw a composite profile of those people liable to commit particular types of crime.

"Thieves," he declared, "were characterized by small restless eyes, thick eyebrows, a crooked nose, thin beard and a narrow receding forehead.

"Sex criminals had bright eyes, a cracked voice, blond hair and a delicate face.

"Murderers had cold, glassy eyes, long ears, dark hair and canine teeth."

The major tool in the eugenicists' campaign to weed out these biologically inferior stock was sterilization. As a result of a systematic and co-ordinated drive, tens of thousands of American citizens were involuntarily sterilized under various laws enacted by the individual states after the turn of the century.

Sterilization was seen as a cure for everything from crime to feeblemindedness.

Killings In Kidnap Plan, Jury Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — The killing of four Fraser Valley teen-agers last summer was part of a $2-million scheme to kidnap a member of one of four prominent Vancouver area families, a murder trial jury was told Monday.

The ransom plan is described in statements allegedly made to police by Walter Murray Madsen, accused of first-degree murder in the rifle slaying of three youths and a girl at a Fraser River recreation spot near Rosedale.

In one statement Crown witnesses said is in Madsen's handwriting, he says he shot the teen-agers to get the fast car or truck he needed for the kidnapping.

The families named in the statement are James Sinclair, former federal cabinet minister and grandfather to the three sons of Prime Minister Trudeau, J. V. Clyne, a retired forest company tycoon, C. W. Woodward of Woodward's department stores, or the Rogers, apparently referring to the founders of B.C. Sugar Refining Co. Ltd.

The statement was introduced as evidence by Cpl. Allan Ellard, Madsen's cousin and one of scores of RCMP officers active in the six-week investigation leading to Madsen's arrest at his home in Chilliwack last Aug. 30, six weeks after the killings.

Ellard said Madsen, 24, wrote the statement after a 30-minute, tape-recorded conversation with his brother, John Madsen, in Chilliwack shortly after midnight Aug. 31.

After the brothers' session, Walter wrote the statement on two sheets of foolscap, Ellard testified.

Madsen has pleaded not guilty to the slaying of Evert Den Hertog, 19, his brother Jan, 16, Bert Menger, 19, and Leola Guliker, 16, last July 18.

In the written statement, Madsen is alleged to have said that he drove to the island in his van and unloaded a 30.06 rifle, ammunition, a tent, sleeping bag, compass, canned food, extra clothes, gloves and "kidnap notes."

Then, the statement says, he concealed the outfit under bushes, drove back to his parents' home in Chilliwack a few miles away and returned on a bicycle, smoked and drank three bottles of beer.

"I loaded my rifle and waited . . . . What I wanted was a fast car or truck. I didn't want to leave any witnesses." I heard what sounded like a vehicle with a powerful engine.

"From my place in the bushes . . . I could hear occasional beer bottles being broken . . . hoots and hollers . . .

Fast Veto on Genstar Surprises Developers

Central Saanich aldermen Monday night unanimously decided against any development on Tod Inlet, at least in the foreseeable future.

The decision by council's subdivision and zoning committee came as a surprise to officials of Genstar Development who presented to the committee two weeks ago a $14 million multiple housing-commercial-marina complex on the 22-acre site next to Butchart Gardens.

"I didn't think we'd reached that sort of impasse so rapidly," Genstar manager Barry Sharpe said today. "Frankly, I'm more than a little disappointed."

The committee rejected the proposal partly because of the opposition of Butchart Garden's owner Ian Ross, and partly because of overwhelming public sentiment against any development on the site voiced at a public meeting March 28.

"The general feeling of council is no development is needed down there at this time," Ald. Dave Hill said today. "We're not ready for it yet. Maybe in 25 to 30 years we'd be ready. I don't know. But right now it's premature."

Genstar officials aren't sure what their next step will be. Although the company owns 1,200 acres in the area, development of the 22-acre parcel, the only section included in the municipal sewer containment area, is the key feature to any plan.

Sharpe indicated there are various options. The company could sell the property to the government for a provincial park, leave the property as it is and wait for the time council will agree to development, or sell the property to another developer.

The land is zoned for recreation and commercial uses, which would allow the owner to build a hotel, motel, various sports facilities, art galleries, or gift shops.

Whether the company will go ahead with such plans remains uncertain.

"We're taking a calculated risk they won't," Hill said.

LOST IT?

Lynda Harbidge, Lisa Toye, Lowell Reimer, Paul McCulloch, John Trider and Marfarett Kendall have one thing in common.

They all have belongings at the city police's lost and found department.

Quartermaster Sgt. Doug Wilson says the unit is once again bursting with items.

Includedd are two knapsacks, a couple of stereo players, a first aid box, fishing gear, car parts, fire extinguishers, watches, keys, rings . . . even a bowling trophy.

If you've lost something, Wilson suggests you call him.

Jail Scholars Honored

Six prisoners who completed bachelor of education degrees while behind bars took part in awards ceremonies Sunday at Matsqui and B.C. penitentiaries.

They formed part of a group of 120 inmates working on University of Victoria courses who were honored for their academic achievements.

At the ceremonies, UVic faculty members and representatives of the federal government presented them with book awards and certificates.

The program is sponsored by the federal government and allows inmates to take up to 18 units of regular UVic courses each year.

It was developed by Dr. Douglas Ayers of the UVic faculty of education and is the first program to offer senior level courses leading to a degree while in prison.

Its is also the only program that includes five faculty members who teach full-time at the two prisons. All other programs have faculty coming in on a part-time basis.

Look Out For Fake U.S. Bills

Keep an eye open for phoney U.S. $20 bills.

The Greater Victoria area was hit by a wave of the fake bills back in January and they're turning up again.

All the bills spotted so far are of the 1974 series and have the check letter C and a face plate number of 102 in the bottom right-hand corner. They have various serial numbers all of which start with B and end with the letter F.

Merchants or anyone else unlucky enough to be stuck with one should try and pass along a description of the passer to city police as quickly as possible.

Island Pair Blamed In Death Crash

Two Vancouver Island drivers were to blame for a four-vehicle crash on the Malahat Feb. 19 which killed two young Mainland residents, a coroner's jury ruled Monday.

The jury also recommended that three-lane highways be abolished.

The jury of four women and two men had been inquiring into the deaths of James Lawrence Sauer, 23, of Vancouver and his passenger, Susan Jennifer Hamilton, 24, of North Vancouver.

The couple was to have been married March 25.

After deliberating for 35 minutes the jury found that Harvey Ernest Wuerch of 472 Meredith, Saanich, and Albert Vandermeer of Shawnigan Lake were illegally travelling south in the passing lane.

The centre of three lanes in that section of the highway is normally for northbound use but southbound traffic may use it if there is no approaching traffic.

Wuerch testified he had no recollection of the events. He said the last thing he remembers is going up the Malahat in the right hand (curb lane), rounding a bend and running into fog.

A statement made by Vandermeer to the Colwood RCMP shortly after the mishap was read into the proceedings by Crown counsel Richard Anthony.

Vandermeer had stated he was in the passing lane and could not get back into the curb lane because of cars.

At that point, he told police, the second of two cars heading north pulled out and he heard a bang.

Renovations Approved

The Greater Victoria school board Monday night approved two items on this year's proposed $8 million capital expenditure program.

An expenditure of $245,330 to renovate Victor Street school, the top priority item according to superintendent Alan Stables, was the first amount approved by the board during its regular meeting.

Trustees also approved a recommended expenditure of $119,681 for renovations to Doncaster Elementary.

The board had to table a motion to approve a $158,895 expenditure for renovations to Colquitz Junior Secondary when the meeting's time limit ran out.

The board expects its preliminary capital expentiture budget will be cut drastically by the education ministry.

It should make a list of only top priority items, chairman Susan Brice recommended.

"Included in such a list will be only those projects for which we are prepared to press the provincial government and to which we will commit the local taxpayers," Brice said in a report to the board.

The capital budget was due on Education Minister Pat McGeer's desk March 15.

A restrictive ministry formula has made the board's task difficult, Brice said.

She said the board and administration are not prepared to jeopardize the credibility of long-range planning by completing the capital budget forms provided by the ministry.

"There is general uneasiness regarding the prevailing idea that the government will establish a lump amount and the board can determine the specific projects later.

"As false expectations could be raised with various school communities, there could be unnecessary conflict in the future," Brice said.

Brice recommended sending the ministry a list of essential projects that should be started immediately, accompanied by another list of projects the board may wish to consider in the future when it has established long-term facility requirements.

Trustees are still deliberating on a commitment to cut space in the district by 150,000 square feet in September due to declining enrolment.

Permits Required

Anyone planning to start a fire outdoors after midnight April 15 will require a burning permit, a forests ministry spokesman said Friday.

"Fire in areas outside city or municipal boundaries, with the exception of campfires, will need permits," Don Owen, head of the forest protection division, said in a news release.

Burning permits can be obtained free of charge from any forest ranger station, he said. They cover all industrial fires and outdoor burning of rubbish and other debris.

$10 Million Boost for City Seen from Cut in Sales Tax

and MARK HUME
Times Staff

By cutting the sales tax to five per cent the provincial government has put an estimated $10 million in the pockets of families living in Greater Victoria.

If you wanted to buy a 1978 Ford Granada selling at $6,107.20 Monday, the tax on the car was $427.50. Today it is down to $305.36 — a saving of $122.14.

Woodward's manager Doug Smith said the sales tax reduction will save consumers about $2 for every $100 spent.

He said a $500 television set that Monday cost an extra $35 in provincial tax will now only have $25 tacked on.

For a $100 item, such as clothing, the tax will now be $5 instead of $7.

But smokers are getting hit hard as the tax on a pack of 25 cigarettes went up 12 cents at midnight Monday night.

And if liquor or wine figures in your budget you will pay more come June when the government is expected to increase prices by about three per cent.

The estimate that the sales tax reduction puts $10 million into the pockets of Greater Victorian consumers was made by Ald. Murray Glazier, Victoria council's finance committee chairman.

"I worked it out on the basis of families saving $100 a year and it came out to about $10 million staying in the region for people to spend as they like. That's extremely important for a heavy retail area like Victoria."

Glazier said the tax reduction will undoubtedly stimulate the city's economy.

Some retailers, in fact, felt the impact of the new provincial budget almost immediately — but not because of the sales tax reduction.

The price hike in cigarettes triggered spending binges at a number of stores.

Dozens of stores in the region experienced line-ups Monday night as people stocked up on cartons of their favorite brand of cigarettes.

At one Shoppers Drug Mart one heavy smoker bought $84 worth in one shot and said she was moving on to buy more at another store.

Other Shoppers stores reported heavy runs on cigarettes which were still being sold at the old prices this morning.

Wolfe announced that the 12-cent price hike for a pack of 25 would be assessed at the wholesale level.

"But there is nothing preventing the retailer from tacking on the increase now," he told a press conference.

And that freedom of choice had some store managers in a bit of a tizzy this morning, not knowing whether to hike their prices immediately or to hold off until new stock came in.

Woodward Stores (Mayfair) Ltd., which had an extremely heavy run on its cigarette counter Monday, was uncertain this morning whether to raise its prices.

Store manager Doug Smith, however, said later in the day the old prices will remain until the new, more expensive, stock is on the shelf.

Vending machine companies, in the meantime, were going to work immediately to switch over their machines. It may take some companies a week to change-over all their machines, however.

A spokesman for one vending company said the price of a 20-cigarette pack, which almost all machines carry exclusively, will be raised a dime.

At the Shoppers Drug Mart head office in Vancouver one office worker said "everyone here's running around in circles trying to figure out what to do (about the 12 cent hike)."

Shoppers' vice-president of administrative services, Jim Charles, confirmed that there is some confusion saying that "we're trying to determine from our suppliers exactly what our increased cost will be so we know what to pass on — once we get that information we're going to call all our stores and make the increase. But right now we're just not sure."

He said it looked like cartons of cigarettes will go up about $1.

Generally speaking, retailers are pleased with the B.C. government's moves.

Dennis Evans, Victoria Chamber of Commerce taxation chairman, said the drop in the sales tax will give people more confidence in the government.

He said B.C. residents saved more money last year than at any other time in the history of the country.

"This will help them spend some of that."

He was also pleased with the government's moves to encourage small businesses saying the tax reductions and promise to remove some of the bookkeeping will have a significant impact.

However, he said he was disturbed by the government's spending program.

He said if the government wanted to show restraint it should have kept spending to last year's level.

As an example of uncontrolled spending, he said the economic development ministry budget is increased 400 per cent in the current budget, from $7 million to $29 million.

Jack Noble, operating manager for Eaton's, said the sales tax cut will encourage people to buy the larger items they have been reluctant to purchase.

He said the seven-per-cent sales tax was "an annoying tax" which bothered people more than the five per cent.

"For people with large families it will make a difference . . . it is something meaningful."

CITY, REGION TO JOIN FORCES

New Drive Started for Civic Centre

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Victoria and the Capital Regional District (CRD) have joined forces to push for construction of a multi-purpose civic centre adjacent to the old Crystal Gardens.

The building would cost $5 million-plus and accommodate major conventions, the performing arts and cultural events.

CRD grants committee chairman Shirley Dowell and Ald. Ron McKenzie, head of city council's cultural development committee, said in a joint interview Monday construction of the centre could start within one or two years.

"One year if we rush it," said McKenzie.

He said financing has already been arranged and the only real hurdle left is the provincial government, which has not yet given a green light on providing a site from its land holdings adjacent to the Crystal.

McKenzie added, however, the government has expressed full support for efforts to establish a centre in Victoria, and the B.C. Development Corporation (BCDC) has agreed to assist.

Financing, said McKenzie, would come from "a unique mix of private and public money."

He said the West Coast Credit Union has offered to fund the project — for $5 million or more — at low interest rates as a contribution to the people of the region.

The loan would be amortized over 30 years.

Dowell said the CRD has also agreed to provide $2 million that could be used to underwrite the West Coast loan.

The centre would be under the direction of the CRD, and be self-supporting.

Dowell said she envisions a multi-purpose facility that would operate 12 months of the year.

"If it's scheduled properly I feel it can be in use year-round. I would envision this could be just as important here as Stratford is in Ontario — it would be on a par with that, if not better."

She said the Victoria centre would provide a new home for the symphony, be used to stage professional and amateur productions, art and craft shows, and other cultural events.

Dowell said the exact cost, size and physical make-up of the centre will not be decided until after a full feasibility study has been undertaken, but a substantial theatre would have to be provided.

"I feel we have to build something now to the year 2000, and it must take into account the growing interest of society in the arts."

McKenzie added that the centre would also take into consideration the changing tastes of the community.

"People are growing older, the demands are changing and we (the centre) would have to be responsive to that."

He said the centre would tie in with a proposal now being put together by Allan Purdy, chairman of the McPherson Playhouse Foundation, for a major Victoria festival of the arts.

"There's nothing but a tremendous future for the arts

McKenzie and Dowell began separately working on proposals for a civic centre last January and only recently have been collaborating.

McKenzie, Dowell and other civic officials will meet April 25 with George Haynes, executive director of the Saskatchewan Centre of the Arts, and Bruce McIntyre, project director of the BCDC.

'Horrendous' Union Moves

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier expressed disappointment today at the provincial government's decision not to set up its own monitoring agency on wage and price controls.

The federal Anti-Inflation Board's controls are to be phased out later this year.

Couvelier said his own observations are that voluntary restraint policies have not worked anywhere else in the world and he can't see how they can in Canada.

"From my discussions in the community my guess is we could see some horrendous union requests."

In Victoria, Ald. Murray Glazier said the province's promise to pay full property taxes to the city will mean an additional income of between $1.5 million and $1.1 million.

Glazier said the difference will come on whether the government agrees to pay taxes on land, such as parking lots, that is without any buildings.

Glazier also said he was pleased with the government's decision to increase the elderly homeowner grant by $50, from $430 to $480.

He said the move affects 1,400 individuals in the city.

TOWN TALK

The cultural involvement of some big corporations is not all that wonderful in the opinion of Victoria Symphony honorary treasurer D.C. (Michael) Field.

In fact, he says, with particular reference to du Maurier's widely-vaunted "pop concerts", they get what amounts to a free ride in quantity of advertising and enhancement of their corporate image in return for a peanut-sized grant.

This season Victoria Symphony opted to present three du Maurier concerts, with three guests — the Vancouver-based Savoyards for whom the fee was $4,000; Peter Nero, who cost a whopping $9,500, and the cancelled Kostelanetz at $5,000.

The total du Maurier donation was its standard $4,000, a sum which not only barely made a dent on guest artist expenses and orchestra musicians' fees but was inadequate even for the advertising budget.

Maybe you had to be there but the show stopper at the Grace McCarthy tourist committee meeting at the legislature last week came with the "bing, bang, bong" of the signal bells.

He says he'll recommend to the police board special commendations for Cpl. Dennis Lush and Acting-Cpl. John Archer.

Lush and Archer were first on the scene of a fire at a house at 786 Middleton. They broke down the front door and crawled on their hands and knees searching for Marguerite Neave Brindley.

Lush, close to collapsing, staggered out of the house and fell unconscious. Archer managed to find the unconscious woman and drag her outside where he too collapsed. Their efforts were in vain.

Police believe the woman died some time before the fire was spotted.

First, Get Them Into the Bedrooms

Tourists don't spend much money when they drive around in their cars sight-seeing. They have to get into the hotels and restaurants before the money begins to flow.

That, apparently, was the message Visitors Information Centre manager Don Nixon wanted to convey to Travel Minister Grace McCarthy at last week's tourist committee meeting.

Only it didn't quite come out that way.

"The sooner we get them out of the cars and into the bedrooms, the sooner they will get going and start doing the things we want them to do," said Nixon.

Committee members nodded in agreement.

When it comes to langos, it appears the Times is as uninitiated as anybody.

On Page 7 of Monday's paper we explained — "for the uninitiated" — that langos are Hungarian sausages.

Miklos Kovats, president of the Hungarian Society of Victoria, says there is no meat in langos. They are made of bread dough, which is deep fried and seasoned with salt and garlic.

By the way, the 130-member Hungarian Society donated $250 to the Lions Club charities from the sale of langos, sausages, coffee and soft drinks on Sunday.

A couple of illustrated books edited by two members of the Institute of Ocean Sciences here could become ecological best-sellers if the public finds out about them.

The two titles, Oil Spill Countermeasures and Birds and Marine Mammals, are the first two in a series of six entitled The Beaufort Sea and the Search for Oil, the condensed result of a two-year study by the Beaufort Sea Project.

The work was based at the institute under direction of Allen Milne assisted by Brian Smiley and was funded jointly by the oil industry and Canadian government. It took a detailed look at fisheries, marine life, wildlife, physical and chemical oceanography and possible effects of oil spill on ice-covered waters.

Three thousand copies of each title were printed and 2,000 of each were left in storage after libraries and scientific interests were supplied.

They are readable, timely and well stocked with black and white and color plates. Price, $2.50 each, available by mail from Beaufort Sea Project, Institute of Ocean Sciences, Box 6000 Sidney.
